TWO PLACES IN BILLERICA VISITED BY ROBBERS LAST NIGHT

Safe Rifled in Office of Richardson Lumber Co.—Intruders Interrupted at Bay State Coal and Grain Company's Office by Street Railway Motorman

Two breaks last night in the offices of well known Billerica business concerns, one of which netted the robbers $38 in cash, are being investigated by the police today. The more serious of the breaks, occurring in the office of the Richardson Lumber Co., was not discovered until this morning when employees found the safe rifled and $38 in money missing. Chief Henry Livingston of the Billerica police was notified and is now working on the case, and it is his opinion that entrance to the lumber company's office was made previous to that in the Bay State Coal and Grain company at Bennett Hall station, where the intruders were interrupted before they could complete their job. The Richardson Lumber company's offices are located directly across the street from the Bay State. The discovery of the thieves at the Bay State plant was made by James Ryan, a motorman of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway company, who noticed the suspicious actions of two men in the Bay State Co. office on his trip to Billerica about 9:45 o'clock last night. The motorman notified James O'Neil, an employee of the grain and coal company, who lives near the point. The latter investigated and discovered that the building was occupied. He got in touch with Chief Livingston, who arrived on the scene to find that the robbers had disappeared, leaving the office in a disturbed condition. No valuables were missing, however.

Judge Enright Warns That Some Day the Old-Fashioned Whipping Post May Come Back—Cases in the District Court This Morning

A predominance of alleged wife-beaters in district court this morning prompted Judge Enright to remark that "some day the old-fashioned whipping post may come back and your fellows will get what's coming to you."

"I wish I could send you away for life," the court said to Peter Beaulieu when his wife appeared on the witness stand and testified to being cruelly beaten by defendant while he was in

NO BELL ALARM FOR FIRE HERE IN FIVE DAYS

No bell alarm has been sent in for a fire in the city since August 7, although in this five-day stretch there have been several still and telephone alarms for inconsequential fires.

At 3:37 a.m. today Engine 7 was called to the Boston and Maine roundhouse in Middlesex Village for a fire in a freight car loaded with white lead. The damage was slight.

SUDDEN DEATH OF LOWELL WOMAN

Fannie Barnes, 70 years old, died suddenly this morning at her home, 387 Central street. The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of William A. Mack after Medical Examiner Marshall L. Alling viewed the body and pronounced death due to natural causes. Deceased leaves one sister, Mrs. Minnie French.

G. A. R. PARADE IN BOSTON

More Than 3000 Veterans Trudged Along Line of March—5000 in Autos

58th Annual National Encampment Attended by Vets From All Sections

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—More than 3000 of the G. A. R. veterans here for the 58th annual national encampment trudged along the line of march of the parade which began at 10 o'clock this morning. Comrades less sturdy, to the number of 5000 followed them in automobiles.

Temperature much lower than that which has visited Boston during the past few days and cooler because of the early hour made it easier for the veterans.

After the parade, the sons, wives and daughters of the proud marchers, convening in their various allied organizations, held meetings. The commander-in-chief, Gaylord Saltzgeber, was the guest of his aides at a com-

Seek to Reach Agreement on Time Limit For Evacuation of Ruhr

LONDON, Aug. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—The French and German delegates to the international conference today resumed their struggle for a compromise on a time limit for the evacuation of the Ruhr—one of the questions which is holding up the work of the conference and which must be disposed before the conference can proceed in a definite way with the program for instituting the Dawes reparations plan.

The Germans say that the evacuation should be completed within six months after it has been started, while the French are holding out for one year.

THIS DOG HAS PENCHANT FOR RUBBER TIRES

A big St. Bernard dog is being detained at the police station following several attempts to chew up automobile tires yesterday. The animal apparently is suffering from slight internal injuries as the result of being struck by an unknown machine, and while the injuries are not considered serious, the dog's attraction for rubber tires is causing no end of speculation.

This morning, Sergt. Fred Cotter, police chauffeur, presented the dog with a large and juicy portion of raw meat. But the St. Bernard declined the invitation to partake of this inviting viand. A discarded inner tube was then produced, and the "prisoner" went at it with evident self-satisfaction. And he didn't tire of it for a long time.

SAYS HE WAS ASSAULTED

Crosby Street Man Alleges He Was Manhandled By Liquor Squad Officer

Judge Enright Visits Premises Where Alleged Assault Took Place

Charging that he was assaulted by Police Officer Alfred J. Kilroy during a liquor raid at 183 Crosby street on August 6 last, Thomas P. Lane of the above address appeared on the witness stand in district court this morning at a special hearing to tell his story of the alleged rough treatment accorded him by the officer while searching for liquor on the day mentioned.

Both sides produced several witnesses. Attorney J. Joseph Hennessy, counsel for the accused officer, calling upon Officers William Liston, William Kegan and Clyde Aldrich, who participated in the alleged raid on the Crosby street premises. Each of the defense witnesses testified that Officer Kilroy did not assault nor attempt to assault the complainant, but conducted an orderly search of the premises against the protestations of the complainant.

Mr. Lane was represented by Attorneys Daniel J. and Joseph P. Donahue and asserted that Officer Kilroy "roughed" him in attempting to search his person. After hearing several other witnesses for the complainant, Judge Enright visited the premises where the assault is said to have taken place and took the case under advisement.

Promises Real Progressive Policies With Honesty in Government His Slogan

Makes Solemn Declaration For Religious Liberty—Favors World Court

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 12.—Having sounded the battle cry of his party, John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, prepared today to begin an intensive drive over the country.

In a series of speeches, the first of which will be delivered at Columbus, O., on Aug. 26, Mr. Davis will treat in more detail those subjects which he announced in his acceptance address here last night, he views as the outstanding issues of the campaign.

Honesty in Government

First among these is honesty in government. The nominee devoted a major portion of his first address—delivered in a downpour of rain—to a discussion of the issue. He laid full responsibility upon the republican party for corruption in office and charged that some of those in high places in the administration had made an effort to weaken the effect of the exposures at Washington by crying out against the gully but against

STATE TO CALL FOUR ALIENISTS AT HEARING

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—Conclusion today of the defense testimony offered in mitigation of the penalty Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb must pay for kidnapping and killing Robert Franks was expected to be followed at once by prosecution expert evidence in rebutting the claim that the slayers are mentally diseased.

After the state ends its cross-examination of Dr. H. S. Hubbert, of Chicago, last of the corps of psychiatrists and pathologists who have said the youths are emotionally childish and the victims of phantasies, three or four witnesses, including Allan Loeb and Foreman Leopold, brothers of Richard and Nathan, will be questioned briefly.

Dr. William C. Krahn, who interviewed the slayers after they confessed, was scheduled to head the list of four alienists and nearly fifty other witnesses the prosecution will question in rebuttal.

Dr. Harold D. Singer also will testify. Susan Lurie, with whom Leopold had several engagements between the slaying and his confession, was included in the list of lay witnesses.

Mr. O'Sullivan Selected at Conference of Democratic Leaders of Fifth Congressional District—Nominee Calls for Complete and Whole-hearted Co-operation

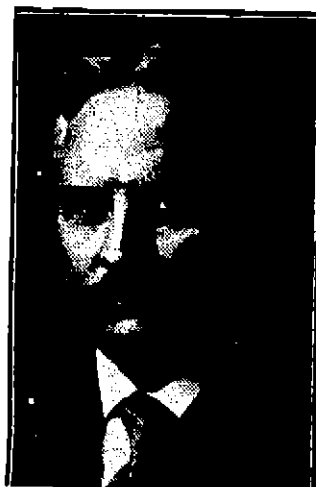

At a conference of democratic leaders of the fifth congressional district held in Liberty hall, Memorial Auditorium, last night, Humphrey O'Sullivan was named as a candidate to oppose Hon. John Jacob Rogers who seeks re-election to the national house of representatives.

Mr. O'Sullivan, the unanimous choice of the meeting, personally accepted and expressed the belief that with a united front the democratic of the district can conduct a successful campaign.

"It is no easy task you have given me," said the candidate, "but the very fact that it is difficult makes it inviting. There must be complete and whole-hearted co-operation and I accept the nomination only upon the condition that campaign expenses will be met through public subscriptions in the cities and towns of the district. It must be the co-operative plan, not the 'Christmas Tree' plan."

Also at the meeting it was decided to run sticker candidates under the democratic standard in the seventh and eighth state senatorial districts and in the 15th representative district. Attorney Cornelius J. O'Neill will be the candidate in the 15th district, with

BROOKLYN WOMAN CHARGES LOCAL MAN WITH POLYGAMY

George Percy Ellis Arraigned in District Court Today and Continued in $1000 Bonds Until Sept. 4—Was Arrested Here Last Night

George Percy Ellis of 612 Broadway was arraigned before Judge Enright on a charge of polygamy in district court this morning, and on a plea of not guilty he was continued to Sept. 4 with bonds set at $1000.

Ellis was arrested at his home last night by Police Officers Alfred J. Conroy and Francis Moore on the complaint of his first wife, a Brooklyn woman, who came here to corroborate the rumor that her husband had married again and was living in this city. The original Mrs. Ellis first came here about three weeks ago, having received word through friends that her husband was in this city. In company with Officers Conroy and Moore, she went to Ellis' home in Broadway and found him alone. Unmoved by his wife's sudden appearance, he persistently denied that he knew her, but finally gave in, and stated that he thought a pre-separation in Brooklyn was legal. He admitted marrying a second time under the impression that his first marriage was to be annulled. Ellis has been employed as a stock room man by the Lowell Gas Light company.

MANAGER FLETCHER OF PHILLIES SUSPENDED

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—President Heydler of the National League today announced that he had indefinitely suspended and placed a fine of $100 on Arthur Fletcher, manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, as a result of the latter's row with Umpire Pittman in the game with Pittsburgh at Philadelphia yesterday.

Fletcher and Pittman came to blows in the first game of yesterday's double header after Fletcher rushed to the plate to dispute a decision on the hurling of Glusner, Quaker pitcher. Umpire Hart was involved as a placemaker but was also struck before the battle was stopped and Fletcher bled.

PERSHING WAR SECRETARY ON EVE OF RETIREMENT

BY HARRY H. HUNT

WASHINGTON, August 12.—General John Pershing, who will quit the United States army next month, rounded out his military record late last week by taking a whirl at being secretary of war.

Secretary Weeks had left Washington for his mountain-top farm in New Hampshire. Assistant Secretary Dwight P. Davis had also been out of town just in advance of an invading red spell.

Whereupon the whole responsibility for Uncle Sam's armed forces devolved upon the chief of staff, who is Pershing.

He at once became acting secretary, and in that capacity "held the fort" during the absence of his civilian superiors.

On September 13, Pershing's 64th birthday anniversary, the "General of the American Armies" will be retired automatically to the retired list and his active army service will end.

Following a visit to his sister and his son at the old home in Lincoln, Neb., after retirement, Pershing will pitch again into the work of shaping up his long-awaited history and memoirs of the World War.

Had Frank Lowden not refused the republican nomination for vice president, Gen. Shaver, democratic national chairman in charge of the Davis-Bryan campaign, would have had the chance of his life to "get even."

Not that Gen. Shaver has anything personal against Lowden. He hasn't. But he has an awful grudge against Pullman.

And as Lowden, through his wife, who was a daughter of George Pullman, inherited a large interest in the sleeping-car business, he inherited also a considerable part of Shaver's animosity.

Shaver's job of running a national campaign is complicated by the fact that he simply cannot sleep on trains. No matter how sleepy he may be, as soon as he is shut in behind the swaying green curtains of a Pullman boudoir he loses all ability to slumber.

The best he ever gets out of it is a fitful night-mareish doze, which leaves him more wearied than before.

As a result, Shaver will stick rather close to headquarters and national democratic headquarters during the campaign. When impersonal messages won't do, he'll send out a radio or airplane in long-distance managing, he may utilize them. But the fewer overnight trips via Pullman, the better Shaver will like it.

By contrast, William Butler, who tried to have Lowden picked as running mate for Coolidge and who is running the Coolidge-Dawes bandwagon, doesn't leave Pullman travel.

He jumps about the country with the same gay abandon exhibited by Will Hays, the boy prodigy from Indiana, four years ago.

Butler makes overnight jumps at least once or twice a week between Chicago and New York, Washington and Chicago and Chicago and Boston. And he says he doesn't expect to do much sitting still between now and the first of November.

And sleep? Why, on a train is about the only chance he gets to sleep!

The one party without a candidate in the campaign this fall is the National Woman's party. To decide what is to be done about this situation, an "election conference" of woman's party leaders has been called for Westport, N. Y., August 15-17.

Alice Paul of Washington, who issued the call for the conference, says the old parties are not nominating enough women for congress.

The Westport meeting will undertake to determine what is to be done about this. Women candidates for congress on a woman's party ticket may result.

Luncheon
Fruit Cup
Molded Cheese Salad
Whole Wheat Bread
Radishes Olives
Iced Chocolate

Substantial and delicious for luncheon, but out of the ordinary and appeal for that reason as well as one or two others.

Molded Cheese Salad
Three-fourths cup grated cheese, ¼ teaspoon mustard, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1 cup whipping cream, ½ teaspoon onion juice, ¼ teaspoon celery pepper, paprika, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, 1 tablespoon minced parsley.
Soften gelatin in four tablespoons cold water and melt over boiling water. Whip cream until stiff, fold in cheese, nuts and seasonings and dissolved gelatin. Turn into a mold and put on ice to chill and become firm. Remove from mold and cut in slices. Serve on a bed of lettuce hearts with french dressing made with minced pimientos.

Dinner Menu
Jellied Bouillon Radishes
Broiled Porterhouse Steak
Creamed Potatoes Lima Beans
Cabbage Salad
Watermelon Cones

Many people serve iced tea or coffee for the summer dinner rather than a hot drink.

Watermelon cones make even a rather poor meal into something refreshing and delicious.

Watermelon Cones
Cut the red part of a melon into cone shaped pieces. Dip in hot heavy syrup. The syrup must not boil. Pack cones in the mold of an ice cream freezer and pack in half salt and half ice. Let stand one or two hours, depending on the make of your freezer, and serve three or four cones to each person. Orange juice can be added to the syrup.

Boil 1 cup sugar and 1-3 cup water five minutes to make the syrup. Remove from the fire, add fruit and let stand until the fruit is saturated with the syrup. If you hold the syrup too long a brittle coating will be formed over the melon.

IN NEW YORK

By Stephen Hannagan

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Nineteen years ago, Isadore Plisker came from Russia to become an employe at the Green Room club, an organization of men of the theatre. His name was too long so he was rechristened "Sam."

Today, it is said, members of the organization, "on their uppers" owe him at least $5000 and still call him Sam. His devotion to members of the club amounts to reverence. Their troubles are his.

He started as an assistant porter. Now he is a waiter and chief card room attendant.

Years ago a prominent actor living at the club gave Sam some old clothes and worn shoes. Five years later days of prosperity had passed and the prominent actor was destitute, not an uncommon lot at times for members of the profession. He awakened one morning to find the old clothes and shoes he had given Sam neatly repaired and generally rehabilitated.

The performer has today climbed to even most successful heights. To mention his name would be unfair.

At one time when the club was in financial difficulties, Sam offered to give the $5000 that would make it solvent.

In days of conflagration the imperiled clapped the rope. Jumped out the window, and "turned to the left," one of the club members suggested to Sam that the fire escapes had not been tested in a long time and that the ropes on many of them might be rotten.

A late homecoming that night found Sam dangling from the end of the last rope fire escape. He had tested them all at the risk of his life, after his regular work was done. He tested from the top instead of the bottom.

Sam worked an average of 16 hours a day for the first seven years he was at the club without a holiday. Then he asked for an afternoon off

"to get married." It was granted. Members of the club have never been able to decide just when and how Sam courted his wife.

Or $750 Sam had saved for his wedding day, he spent $350 furnishing an apartment and the remaining $400 for a party he gave to club members who attended his wedding.

Sam never has had time to learn to read or write. But he can remember the dinner orders of any number of guests. Never once has he forgotten, club members relate.

He has a wealthy aunt in Los Angeles who has offered him an annual income if he would go to the California elly and make his home. Sam refuses. How could the Green Room club get along without him?

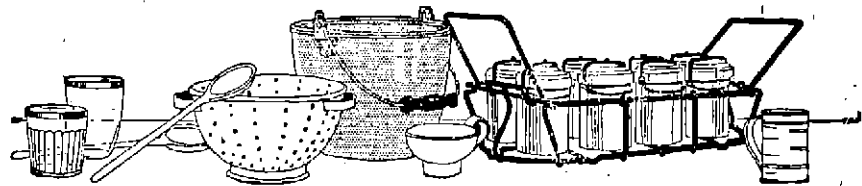

The members can't answer.

ROLLING PIN

A porcelain rolling pin is preferred by the dinner orders to the wooden variety since it is possible to keep it much more sanitary.

"WELCOME HOME, JOHN!"

When John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, went back to Clarksburg, W. Va., first to greet him was Colonel John W. Johnson, political patriarch who taught Davis the political ropes. Davis is shown riding through the streets of his old home town with his arm about the shoulders of his mentor.

JOHN W. DAVIS

Charges G. O. P. With Corruption

those who opposed them. "I charge the republican party with corruption in administration," Mr. Davis declared, "with favoritism with privileged classes in legislation. I also charge it with division in counsel and impotence in action."

Passing to a discussion of economics, Mr. Davis accused the administration in offering the Mellon tax bill with a desire to favor a few possessors of swollen incomes and declared that in the enactment of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act, there had been an unblinking return to the evil days of rewarding party support and political contributions with legislative favoritism.

Foreign Policy Assailed

The administration's foreign policy was denounced by the candidate who declared that in this, too, there had appeared the symptoms of a "recrepting paralysis." He promised that if he became president of the United States, America would sit as an equal among equals whenever she sat at all in conference with the other nations of the world. With respect to the League of Nations, he said the democratic party could not accept the dictum, unauthorized by an expression of popular will, that the league is a closed incident for as America is concerned. He declared the day could and would come when this great question would finally be lifted entirely above the plane of partisan politics and when the voice of public approval would mean to make itself heard. The world court was endorsed and Mr. Davis declared he deemed it the duty of the chief executive to cooperate "officially" by every means at his command, with all legitimate endeavors, whether they come from the league or from any other source, to lessen the prospect of war and to promote disarmament.

Declares For Religious Liberty

While omitting direct reference to the Ku Klux Klan the democratic standard bearer made a solemn declaration of religious liberty and told his audience that every right-thinking American must endorse such a declaration.

Referring to any possible criticism concerning his past career and conduct as a lawyer, Mr. Davis said he had no apology to offer for either.

This statement by the candidate was in response to references in the notification address of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, to Mr. Davis' former employment professionally as a lawyer by gigantic business interests "whose policy and conduct has aroused quite general indignation."

"A lawyer may honorably defend one accused of murder, or treason, or of defending widows, or orphans without suspicion of sympathy with such hideous crimes or with violators of the law seriously or specifically. Now, then, does a lawyer forfeit the regard in which he would otherwise be held by accepting employment from those whose career is open to censure on grounds of public policy or who may have been guilty of even the grossest violations of the laws designed and enforcing the same?"

Unjustifiable Inference

"It is an unjustifiable inference that your views on matters of public concern approximate those of your employers or that called to high public office you would, upon any consideration, accommodate your own to theirs or grant them credit but justice. You owe them nothing, not even gratitude. You have rendered them service. They paid you. Your power, your clients never discovered you until you came as a lawyer was firmly established, until your pre-eminence at the bar was nationally and internationally recognized. I am sure your gratitude is reserved for those humble friends who took a chance on you when you were a struggling at the law, eager to demonstrate your ability, yet unproved."

Senator Walsh gave Mr. Davis, as a member of the house judiciary committee, much credit for the Clayton act, "sometimes referred to as labor's Magna Charta."

Wahle's Notification Speech

Mr. Davis was hailed as a leader of "character, training and experience" for the presidency. In the address of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana here yesterday formally notifying him of his nomination to head the democratic ticket.

Tried by the touchstone, the acid test, Mr. Walsh said, the nominee had been adjudged by all fair-minded men as a liberal and a progressive.

"In the 62nd congress," he continued, "you were conspicuous in the advocacy of every measure that served to differentiate the reactionary from the progressive. You assailed government by injunction, set forth with a great wealth of illustrations the abuse of that process and of the power to punish for contempt, and supported with marked ability and eloquent tongue the effort, subsequently successful, to remove or minimize the opportunity for oppressing labor through resort to that remedy. In the same congress you supported with zeal and learning the Webb-Kenyon bill, the farthest advance then considered toward suppressing through federal action the unspeakable evils of the liquor traffic. The entire program of remedial legislation entered upon when the Wilson administration assumed control of our national government had your cordial support."

After summarizing Mr. Davis' record in advocating progressive legislation and later supporting it before the supreme court, Senator Walsh declared the argument "that you are a Wall Street man, an unapproachable enemy of the tariff, the nation's income tax law, and frank co-operation with the nations of Europe for the restoration of peace and the revival of industry to ensure an increased demand for our surplus, mainly of agricultural products."

Senator Walsh said the "audience" of Mr. Davis' "offending" had been nothing more or less than that since willing to private life he had been employed professionally by "gigantic business interests" whose policy had aroused "quite general indignation."

"It is not advanced," he said, "that you have represented as their advocate before the courts. It is not charged that you have been either the defender of or apologist for their misdeeds in public address or through the press, or that you have forwarded or attempted to forward their plans before either legislative assemblies or administrative officers."

"You have been retained, as it is understood, to render such services as a lawyer may legitimately perform."

"A lawyer may honorably defend one accused of murder, or treason, or of defending widows, or orphans without suspicion of sympathy with such hideous crimes or with violators of the law seriously or specifically. Now, then, does a lawyer forfeit the regard in which he would otherwise be held by accepting employment from those whose career is open to censure on grounds of public policy or who may have been guilty of even the grossest violations of the laws designed and enforcing the same?"

resonant voices exposed the infamy of Archbold as a judge of the court of commerce and that as one of the managers on the part of the house in the trial before the senate your conduct of it was marked by distinguished ability."

Visions Unhappened

The career of Mr. Davis, the senator said, had not hampered his vision. "Your practice has been general," he said, "one day speaking for some great and possibly ruthless corporation, the next for an impoverished contender against the amassed wealth of such or the victim of its ruthlessness; today appearing for interests demanding the process of the law in some industrial war, tomorrow for organized labor striking for living wages or individuals charged with illegal acts in aid of a strike."

"Even more fortunately you were privileged to speak for five years before the supreme court of the United States in the capacity of solicitor general for all the people of this mighty nation against the contempters of the law of all classes, high and low, against the most odious trusts and monopolies, against the pillagers of the public domain and the insidious robber who piles his nefarious trade of deception and fraud through the mails. Your professional engagements peculiarly fit you, they in no sense disqualify you for eminent service as president of the United States. The anthracite trust, the lumber trust, the shoe machinery trust, the steel trust, found you an antagonist worthy of the highest talent they could command. You fought a good, though losing fight, to uphold the first child labor law and a winning one to maintain the Adamson law."

Secretary Walsh vigorously attacked the record of the republican administration and spoke of the "shocking scandals" which had "rocked the country." He was especially sharp in his attack on officials connected with the oil leases and charged the administration and the republican party with indifference toward them. Concluding his address with a call for "agricultural and tariff issues," he declared the democratic party offered a candidate in whom there "will be general pride."

Speech of Acceptance

The supreme need of the hour is to bring back to the people confidence in their government. John W. Davis declared last night in his address accepting the democratic presidential nomination.

Formally putting under way the national campaign of 1924, he indicted the republican party "in the eyes of the public" for having taken public confidence to its very foundations, and laid against it these specific charges: "Laying exhibited deeper and more widespread corruption than any that this generation of Americans has been called upon to witness."

"Complicity in the face of that corruption and with ill will towards the efforts of honest men to expose it."

"Gross favoritism to the privileged and utter disregard of the unprotected."

"Indifference to world peace and civility in the conduct of foreign affairs."

"Disorganization, division and ineffectiveness."

Declaring that on the record he would ask the voters of the country to pass judgment of condemnation, "as a warning to all men who aspire to public office, that dishonesty, either in thought, word or deed will not be tolerated in America," Mr. Davis said the democratic party was prepared to offer in exchange a "program based on democratic principles and guaranteed by a record of democratic performance."

The chief things to which he pledged himself were:

An honest, impartial, and so far as human wisdom will permit, a just government.

Opposition to any challenge—"organized or unorganized, under whatever name or in whatever character it may appear"—of the constitutional guarantees of religious freedom.

Enforcement of all laws, including the prohibition amendment and statutes enacted under it.

SEN. REED TO SUPPORT TICKET

Missouri Man Will Support Democratic Ticket, State and National

Pleased With Mr. Davis' Attitude on the League of Nations

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 12.—James A. Reed, United States senator from Missouri, will support the democratic ticket, state and national, he declared in a statement here today. Senator Reed who is recovering from an illness of several weeks, made the statement after he had read the address of John W. Davis, accepting the democratic presidential nomination, and after he had been asked whether there was any truth to rumors that he would not support the ticket.

The Missouri senator said that although he did not agree with Mr. Davis' views on certain international problems, he understood from the presidential nominee's address that he "pledged there would be no entrance into the League of Nations until the people have, by a vote, approved such a course."

Mr. Reed said that "with that attitude, I am content."

League of Nations or from any other source, to lessen the prospect of war; to aid in repairing the ravages of past wars; to promote disarmament and to advance the well being of mankind.

In opposition to the impairment, "either by injunction or by any other device" of the rights of labor to organize and to bargain collectively for "an adequate wage earned under healthful conditions."

The protection of women and children from human greed and unequal laws.

Prevention of child labor and suppression of the illicit traffic in soul-destraining drugs.

To conserve natural resources.

"Conservation of all of the natural resources of the country."

"Grateful care" to the "veterans of our wars, especially to those who were stricken and wounded in the country's service and whose confidence has been so cruelly and corruptly abused."

Also he declared that when it became necessary to raise funds for the conduct of the campaign, he would be contributed "with this understanding and this only: that neither the democratic party nor I as its leader have any favors for sale."

Expressing in general terms his approval of the program contained in the platform adopted by the convention which nominated him, the candidate said he could not be expected at this moment to discuss them in detail or to outline the methods by which they are to be carried into effect.

"There will be time enough for that," he said.

He said he had no candidates today but the democratic party and, if they will it so, the people of the United States.

disagreement between the president and the republican majority in congress to agree on public questions.

Declaring that it was not in domestic matters alone that "the symptoms of this creeping paralysis" have appeared, Mr. Davis said that not only have executive recommendations for adherence to the world court been "outed and ignored, but no evidence is in sight that the republican party as now constituted can frame and carry to its conclusions any definite and consistent foreign policy."

"With the reconstruction of Europe weighing heavily on the world," he said, "with American economic life dwarfed and stunted by the interruption of world commerce, with the agricultural regions of the west sinking into bankruptcy because of the loss of their foreign markets; we have stood by as powerless spectators, offering to the world nothing but private charity and individual advice."

Denounces Bigotry

Moving from his attack on the opposition to a discussion of other issues, Mr. Davis saved to the last his utterances on the subject which was the basis of a bitter fight in the New York convention—religious freedom. Without referring by name to any organizations, the nominee said he wished to "denounce bigotry, intolerance and race prejudice as alien to the spirit of America" and promised that when elected he would "set up no standard of religious faith or racial origin as a qualification for any of the thousands of offices he would be called upon to fill."

To Aid Farmer

For the aid of the farmer, Mr. Davis said the democrats proposed to see to it that the discriminations which the tariff makes against him shall be removed; that this government by doing its share toward a European settlement shall help to relieve and enlarge his foreign markets; that the forces of government shall be put actively to work to lend assistance to endeavors for extending the principle of co-operative marketing; that when widespread distress has overtaken him, every power which the government enjoys under the constitution shall be exerted in his aid.

"He is entitled, too, to demand an adequate service of transportation at reasonable rates," the candidate said. "In spite of the failures and shortcomings of existing laws, this is an ideal which I cannot believe to be beyond the reach of attainment."

Foreign World Court

Turning to the field of foreign affairs, Mr. Davis told his audience that the democratic party favored the world court "in sincerity and not merely for campaign purposes."

Regarding it as a real advance toward the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

As to the League of Nations, the candidate declared that "we do not and cannot accept the dictum unauthorized by any expression of popular will that the League of Nations is a closed incident so far as we are concerned." Adding that at no time had he believed that the entrance of America into the league could occur, would occur or should occur until the common judgment of the American people was ready for the step, he said he was "beyond confident that a day would come when the voice of public approval would find means to make itself heard."

Promising that if he became president of the United States of America he would act "as an equal among equals whenever she sits at all at international gatherings," Mr. Davis said he could not reconcile it with his sense of the dignity of a great nation to be represented at such gatherings only "under the poor pretense of 'unofficial observers.'"

SHAYER UNANIMOUSLY CHOSEN CHAIRMAN

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., August 12.—Reorganization of the democratic national committee was perfected yesterday with the unanimous selection of Clem L. Shaver of Fairmont, as chairman.

James W. Gerard of New York, former ambassador to Germany, was named treasurer and Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri, Frank S. Hague of New Jersey and Suel Armidon of Kansas, were elected vice chairmen.

Charles Greenhouse of Indiana, was elected secretary and Bert New of Indiana, was made executive secretary.

James Jones, a Texas banker, was named chairman of the finance committee which will raise campaign funds.

STRIKING SENTENCES OF DAVIS' ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

The allied forces of greed and dishonesty, of self-seeking and partisanship, of prejudice and ignorance, threaten today as they have rarely done before, the perpetuity of our national ideals, traditions and institutions.

To bring the government back to the people is and always has been the doctrine of democracy. Today, in addition, it is the supreme need of the hour to bring back to the people confidence in their government.

An executive who cannot or will not lead, a congress that cannot or will not follow—how can good government exist under such conditions?

The civic unit in America is not the dollar, but the individual man.

Democracy in government and democracy in industry alike demand the free recognition of the right of all those who work, in whatever rank or place, to share in all decisions that affect their welfare.

Recent experience has proved, if proof were needed, that an effort to help the farmer by a tariff on his products is the blindest political false pretense.

Government employees are justly entitled to pay equal to that they would receive from private employers for similar work. Every business executive knows that underpaid service is the dearest of all.

We are resolved that the laying and collecting of taxes shall remain a public and not a private business and that monopoly shall find no section of the law behind which to hide itself.

We favor the World Court in sincerity and not merely for campaign purposes. We do not accept the dictum, unauthorized by any expression of popular will, that the League of Nations is a closed incident so far as we are concerned.

Nor can I reconcile it with my ideas of the dignity of a great nation to be represented at international gatherings under the poor pretense of "unofficial observation." If I become president of the United States America will sit as an equal among equals whenever she sits at all.

We must face the humiliating fact that we have a government that does not dare speak its mind beyond the three-mile limit.

An administrative officer is no more entitled to choose what statutes he will or will not enforce than is a citizen to choose what laws he will or will not obey.

No disaster that the mind can picture equals in its hideous possibilities the coming in this country of a separation of its citizenship into discordant groups along racial or religious lines.

Into my hands will fall, when I am elected, the power to appoint thousands of persons to office. No selection to be made by me will be dictated, inspired or influenced by the race or creed of the appointee.

It is known of all men that the nomination which you tender me was not of my own seeking. It is not for me to reject so clear a call to duty. I am happy, however, in the thought that it finds me free from pledge or promise to any living man. I shall hold it so to the end.

the senatorial aspirant yet to be named. Mr. O'Neill ran two years ago and without any great amount of campaigning nearly captured one of the three available seats in the district. This year he is out to win and in a brief speech last night outlined some of his plans.

The O'Sullivan campaign will be well organized and will maintain headquarters in Lowell in conjunction with the Davis club. City and town committees already are in the field with active chairman at the helm and every effort will be made to send the nominee to Washington. It will be an active campaign on the part of the candidate, who plans an extensive speaking tour.

The steering committee in the district is made up of the following men: J. Joseph Hennessy, Lowell, chairman; Bernard J. Golden, Woburn, vice chairman; Thomas J. Donohue, Groton, secretary; Dr. Patrick J. McEneaney, Lowell, treasurer; John J. Hennessy, Concord; John J. Lynch, Andover; George F. Lynch, Maynard; James F. Markham, Ayer; Joseph Levine, Hudson; Joseph J. Nagle, Concord Junction, and Louis Braddon, Tyngsboro.

The chairman of each city and town committee will serve as a committee of one to assist in securing funds by popular subscription to defray the campaign expenses. The first donation coming last night from John H. McDonald of Andover, who pledged $100. The meeting was attended by about 50 men from different sections of the district and was presided over by Cornelius J. Cronin of Lowell. He outlined its purpose, saying that it was the result of a conference of democratic leaders in Boston.

"This conference was for the express purpose of selecting a man to carry the party's fight into the fifth district," said Mr. Cronin. "And it was agreed that Humphrey O'Sullivan, the fighting democrat of the old fifth district, was the man. Mr. O'Sullivan has agreed to accept the nomination under certain conditions which will later personally outline to you."

Touching upon the labor situation in Lowell and in the district, Mr. Cronin said Mr. O'Sullivan would take steps to correct it and "not think only of building new residences for ambassadors and consuls in foreign lands."

Mr. O'Sullivan's name formally was placed before the conference by James B. Hennessy of Concord and was seconded by John H. McDonald of Andover. It was unanimously approved and the candidate was escorted into the hall to make his speech of acceptance.

After the conference the delegation remained at the hall to listen to the acceptance speech of Hon. John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, which was taken out of the air by a powerful radio receiving set operated by John J. Hogan.

European caravans are doing so much damage to vegetation and to crops and other household fabrics in Oregon that a special bureau has been established to fight the pest.

G. A. R. VET WANTS A PRETTY WIDOW

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Comrade Louis Leub, hailing from Milton, Penn., a soldier long ago in the 49th Pennsylvania infantry, believes that it pays to advertise. He is looking for a widow. There is a little card dangling from the topmost buttonhole of his old blue army coat that states as much, and Louis does not deny it.

"Wanted a Widow" is what the sign says, and in finer print below are the qualifications, "Sweet and Pretty." So widows take notice. Louis has been a widower or seven years. For the last two he has been trying to get himself a companion at the G. A. R. camp in Boston. He is hale and hearty in appearance and very merry and fun-loving. When it comes to playing a harmonica he is an accomplished musician. He made several of his old comrades go through their paces when he played "Marching Through Georgia" and other old time tunes at Dartmouth street yesterday afternoon.

SEN. COLL. CRITICALLY ILL

BIUSTOL, R. I., August 12.—Senator LeBaron B. Colt, critically ill at his home here, was said by his physicians today to have passed a comfortable night. The doctors said they were not prepared to say whether his condition had improved since the turn for the worse of yesterday, which caused a consultation of specialists of Boston and Providence to be called. The exact nature of the senator's illness, which set in a week ago, had not been announced. He is 78 years old.

pitched, the trouble started at Chertum Saturday when military orders which paraded with rifles, refused to give up their arms upon returning to their school. The orders were surrounded and arrested by British troops.

Yesterday the Egyptian railway battalion at Athens made a demonstration after which the Egyptian soldiers were confined to their barracks from which they attempted to escape. When they attacked the British troops with bricks and other missiles, the British soldiers fired upon them, causing 13 casualties, 10 being killed and nine wounded.

A minor demonstration at Port Sudan was dispersed without trouble. The disturbances in the Sudan are likely to have a disquieting political effect upon the coming negotiations in London of said Ziegler Pasha, the Egyptian premier, according to the British officials. "The officials assert there is no thought of the British government giving up its rights to the Sudan and that demonstrations such as those reported, will only make more difficult the establishment of the Sudan's status in relation to Egypt and Great Britain."

DAVIS' SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

In his speech of acceptance, John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, touched many points of the highest excellence, in ideals rising to the level of Jefferson and Cleveland and in logic and elegance of diction rivalling some of the best efforts of Woodrow Wilson.

He dealt out no threadbare platitudes, no flamboyant statements of policy, no overdrawn charges against the administration of the republican party; but on every question touched, he presented undeniable facts and cogent arguments showing what is wrong in existing conditions; and then laid down the democratic policies and principles by which existing abuses in government can be overcome, necessary reforms effected and popular confidence in government restored.

Eloquently did he portray how the solidarity of the great war has been followed by the exploitation by the allied forces of greed and dishonesty, prejudice and ignorance, blocs and class interests, each striving for mastery with a selfishness that threatens the perpetuity of our national ideals, traditions and institutions. Thus he demonstrated that the need of the hour is to bring the government back to the people and to restore popular confidence in its administration.

In this connection, he presented a crushing indictment of the republican administration of the last four years, showing that it brought forth corruption in high places, division and discord in party councils, favoritism in legislation and scandals that have shocked the entire nation. Yet he held that all these betrayals of public trust were as strongly condemned by the rank and file of the republican party as by citizens of other political faiths.

But he arraigned high officials of the government who, when the disclosures of corruption came through the efforts of honest, earnest men, endeavored to suppress the testimony and to cast the odium of it all upon those who had taken a leading part in trying to bring the corrupt officials to justice.

With modest irony, he referred to the libelous suggestion by the president that "the wonder is not that so many have fallen, but that so few have been shown untrue." He refuted the claim from republican sources that this corruption came from alleged democratization resulting from the war, and pointed to the fact that no taint of dishonesty or corruption attached to any official who held high office during that struggle or who continued to hold office until the democratic administration closed in 1921.

His word picture of the conflict between the executive and congress resulting in impotence of action on various important measures, was particularly graphic, citing as he did the wrangles over the Mellon bill, the bonus, the postal employees' salary bill, Japanese immigration, the world court, the promised association of nations for world peace and our indirect representation in the reparations conference merely by "unofficial observers."

All this the speaker aptly attributed to "the inability of the executive to lead or the unwillingness of his party to follow" and as a result, we have a government that does not dare speak its mind beyond the "three mile limit," or perhaps it might now be said the "twelve mile limit." Assuming that the people want a change, the speaker pointed out what the democratic party offered in its platform, including equal rights and opportunities to all, liberty for every individual in local self-government as against centralized bureaucracy and in line a government administered as a public trust without fear abroad or favoritism at home. As a pledge that such policies will be carried out when the democratic party is put in charge of the government, he could offer the long roll of beneficent legislation of the last democratic administration and the conduct of a great war without scandal or corruption. He insisted that in the United States, the civic unit is not the dollar but the individual man. In discussing the terms "progressive" and "reactionary" now vaguely used, he asserted that all that goes to make freer, happier and more prosperous homes for men and women is progress, all else reaction.

Mr. Davis discussed the rights of labor to fair treatment and adequate wage, claiming that these rights must not be impaired by injunction or any other device. The depression affecting the farmers more particularly, he said, was due largely to the fact that they had to buy in a protected market and sell in a market open to the world. But the government can aid the farmer by practical measures calculated to overcome the causes of present distress, to promote co-operative marketing, and provide adequate transportation at reasonable rates. All this he held to be an obligation which the government owes to the great agricultural industry.

On the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment and the statutes provided to put it into effect, Mr. Davis said he would hold in contempt any official who took oath to support the constitution and who made a mental reservation in reference to any of its provisions. That should surely be amply specific.

In reference to the proposed reduction of armaments and world peace, he took the sensible stand that the United States should co-operate with other nations remembering, however, that "we cannot throw away the sword while other scabbards are not empty."

In dealing with the subject of religious freedom, Mr. Davis stated that he stood squarely upon the pronouncement of the democratic platform in upholding all constitutional guarantees of religious freedom and condemning any effort from whatever source to arouse racial or religious dissension in this country. "Such a declaration," said the speaker, "every right-thinking American must endorse." He defended in eloquent terms, the right of every citizen to worship in his own way the one God and Father of us all. He held further, that "church and state should be forever so far separate that neither the right nor the duty of public service should be diminished or enlarged by the religious belief of any man."

That surely is sufficient to show where Mr. Davis stands in reference to the sectional issue. But he went further and said that when elected, he will not allow any question of racial origin or religious faith to interfere with his choice of public servants, which he will make solely upon the ground of honesty, efficiency and loyalty to the constitution.

In closing his address, the candidate gave assurance that he would enter office without having given a pledge of any kind except that which he offered to all men alike in promising honest, progressive and so far as human wisdom will permit just government for all the people.

In scope, tone, dignity and style, the speech was a masterpiece. It presented the party issues in a clear and convincing manner and as a sample of political oratory, it is not likely to be excelled by anything delivered during the campaign.

FARM OR COLLEGE

Many parents living in rural communities are doubtless debating whether they should send their boys and girls, who completed the courses in the small district schools last spring, to high schools this fall, or keep them at home to perform duties about the farms. One question probably asked is: "Will it pay in dollars and cents to send our children to high school?"

The United States department of agriculture and various state agricultural colleges have made a number of investigations of the difference between incomes of educated and uneducated farmers. All of these studies show that in the majority of cases the better trained farmers receive the better income. The results cited in the following studies are typical of these investigations:

The department of agriculture reports a survey of three representative areas in Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, which shows that tenant farmers with a high school education, receive an average annual labor income of $526 a year more than the men with only a common school education. A college education will add to this average $457 a year, making the income of college graduates $983 more a year than the labor earnings of the men with only a common school education.

One of our leading universities—Cornell—has estimated that a high school education is worth as much to a farmer as $6,000 worth of bonds bearing five per cent interest, and that a college education is worth twice that amount.

LA FOLLETTE'S SLOGAN

La Follette announces that he will make his chief fight in this campaign against private monopoly. We do not understand quite clearly what he has in mind as coming under the caption of private monopoly. Does he refer to the corporations that are enjoying special privileges under the republican tariff or to those concerns that control certain industries under patent rights secured by inventors? Possibly he alludes to certain public necessities such as oil, coal, and some other commodities which he as an advocate of socialism, may think the government should control. He makes a very sweeping statement in regard to the system of private monopoly which he alleges controls the political and economic life of the American people. The only policy that can change the present conditions, would be the application of government ownership as advocated by the socialists who form the backbone of La Follette's support.

INTERNATIONAL ADVERTISING

Nations should advertise among each other, urges Stanley Baldwin, the British politician. A good suggestion. For instance, Uncle Sam would conduct a gigantic newspaper advertising campaign in Japan to tell Japanese the truth about why we exclude them. The cost would be considerable, but very cheap compared with possible war costs later, viz: if it did not help to forestall the trouble.

It is estimated that fifty millions, spent in hostile countries by England, Germany, France and Russia, would have averted the World War. It pays to advertise in the right way and through the right medium.

AUTO ACCIDENTS

Over speeding and inattention are two of the main causes which the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce finds responsible for most of the accidents to motor vehicles on the highways. It is surely a matter of most serious concern that an average of 14 persons lost their lives in motor accidents during the first six months of 1924, not to speak of the vast number who were injured, many of them maimed for life.

Let these two chief causes be kept in mind by all drivers and carefully avoided, viz: "Over speeding" and "Inattention."

RADIO CAMPAIGNING

We are informed that James Jackson, candidate for the republican nomination for governor, and Louis A. Coolidge, candidate for the nomination for United States senator, are to use the radio in their campaigns; but they do not say from what station they will broadcast or what wave-lengths they will use in sending out their tales of woe. Nor do they calculate what Lieutenant Governor Fuller and Senator David I. Walsh will be doing while they are broadcasting their personal appeals.

DEFENSIVE EYESIGHT

Two million American school children are backward in their studies because of defective eyesight, claims an organization with a name as long as the number of German marks in circulation. Proper spectacles would correct this defect. Woe to those realizing that brains cannot be trained to function at their best unless expert care is devoted to pupils' eyes, teeth, diet and physical fitness. Therefore they provide eye specialists, dentists and physicians to look after the needs of the school children.

According to the representation of the City or City committee, some of the streets in the congested districts are cluttered while men are waiting time on other streets where their services are not required. It is alleged that there are too many sparrows in the city and naturally with the increase of the horse, it is but reasonable to suppose that this crowding should be either cut down or else assigned to streets where their services are really required.

It will now be all-out vs. all-out in the Chicago murder trial and the lawyers can find distinguished specialists of this type to prove that any particular man is insane and ought equally distinguished to prove that the same man is perfectly sane. It is not pertinent, therefore, to test the sanity of the accused before they are allowed to go on the stand?

Congressman La Guardia of New York denounces his party to support La Follette. Well, we republicans we know not the charms of good riding, but the question arises as to whether many of his constituents will do likewise. That he deserted to support the democratic ticket, we should have given him credit for good judgment.

And R. Campbell, a republican candidate for the two-year congress, charges that he has been cross-billed by his opponent but the effect of this political trick can be overcome by a sufficient number of signatures placed opposite his name at the primaries.

Safety of the airman at Iceland is now of more importance than that they complete the round-the-world tour. It is expected, however, that they will be provided with a landing place on the coast of Ireland, and it is to be specially constructed for the purpose.

Already Manager Butler of the republican campaign has adopted the plan of claiming everything in sight and admitting weakness nowhere. That campaign managers usually follow that policy to encourage their adherents even in the face of defeat.

More stringent regulations are needed relative to the granting of permits to carry firearms. Permits can now be obtained under any flimsy pretext.

When closely examined La Follette will be found to be socialism under a thin disguise and supported by the avowed socialists of the country.

The column of Thursday afternoon was said compared to what Lowell will experience when all the candidates of the three political parties are let loose upon a defenseless people.

Are the Chicago murderers too rich to hang? We shall see.

Rheumatism Cured

Charles H. Bates, 92, of West Bath, Me., who was rendered unconscious when a bolt of lightning struck his house July 9, now claims that it entirely cured him of rheumatism, which he had so badly that he was obliged to walk with canes, and that he has not felt the trouble since.

One on the Lawyer

Counsel—"Tell the court where you were on Wednesday, March 8?" Defendant—"I was in Chicago." "And what were you doing?" "Asking a man a question." "Aha! But how do you know it was 5.30?" "Ah, yourself! I was asking him the time."

The Poor Clerk

A clerk in a Contrivance, Ia., shoe store whose head was almost bald, was trying on a pair of shoes for one of the happier species. She was paying more attention to the shining of the sole than she was to her fool. When she happened to look down, she spied the clerk's head and, thinking it was her bare knee, she quickly grabbed her skirt and covered it.

Christmas Carol

"Well, how is the kid getting along in school?" "That reminds me of something he must have immediately," said Mrs. Tensper in response to this question from her husband. "Stop in a music store tomorrow and get him a Christmas carol." "At this time of year—a Christmas carol?" "Yes, it's by a composer named Dickens."

Lonely Existence

"I never do anything I can't afford." The stranger to whom this casual remark was addressed looked at the speaker with considerable interest. "That is doubtless commendable," worthy sir, but will you pardon me if I venture a bit of comment?" "Certainly." "You must lead a lonely existence." "I do. About the only person I know socially is the receiving teller."

He Stuck to It

A youthful member of the club had been drinking unwisely, and strolling unceremoniously into the smoking room he espied a certain member who was his personal aversion. "Shay—," he began, with all the candor that wine can impart. "I just looked in to tell you that you are a silly idiot." The object of his wrath merely looked him up and down indignantly. "I am," he said shortly. "You're right." "I know I am," came the reply, "but tomorrow I'll be sober again, and you'll still be a silly idiot."

Much Ado About Nothing

In an English murder trial a witness was asked what he had said to a certain person at whose house he had called. The question had scarcely been put when the attorney, who was defending, jumped to his feet almost while with well-stimulated passion he protested against it. His lordship ordered all the witnesses out of court, while for an hour counsel and judge discussed the propriety of the question. Finally the judge decided that the question could be put and that it must be answered. Accordingly the witness was brought back into court and placed in the box. Counsel rose, and with extra solemnity and self-importance befitting the victor of a fierce and protracted debate, asked what he had said to the gentleman on whom he had called. The witness answered: "He was out, sir."

The Battle of Snow and Flowers Like ancient gods the great trees stand, Watching this war of snow and flowers. Long have they seen this battle rage In silence underneath their towers. Year after year the cold hands reach; The green spears from the earth are tossed; Here is a battle that is always won A battle that is always lost.

—CHARLES DAVIES, Elix's Magazine.

ANNUAL CONFERENCES AT NORTHFIELD

A meeting of the Northfield delegates of the local Christian Endeavor branch was held last evening in the assembly hall of the Y. M. C. A. with about 65 young people present. President Nathaniel Trull spoke and final plans were made for the annual conferences at Northfield to be held next week.

The party will leave the square on Monday morning next, arriving at Northfield about 1 o'clock. During the week there will be a regular program as follows: Monday, 7 a. m. breakfast; 7:45, period of Bible study; dismissal for conferences; 12 noon, dinner. There will be three conferences daily and each attendant is expected to be present at least two. The afternoons will be devoted to recreational activities and sports.

The officers of the club are: President, Nathaniel Trull; vice-president, C. H. Gardner; treasurer, Norman Olson; secretary, Mariel Anderson.

WERE GUESTS OF MR. AND MRS. FORD

Members of James A. Garfield and B. P. Butler G.A.R. posts and Woman's Relief corps organizations of Lowell, attended the old-fashioned country breakfast served at Wayside Inn, Saturday morning. The affair was conducted by members of patriotic organizations, led by prominent women of the state at large. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford received the visitors at the inn and later posed with a group of distinguished guests on the lawn across the way from the ancient hostelry.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Several New England textile mills are displaying new cloth weaves on the specially exhibition counters for the inspection of the "fall buyers." New lines of so-called cotton fancies have been shown by wholesale houses handling goods from three Lowell mills. Underneath these goods are brand new and equal to the changing over of certain weaving machines in local establishments, but not the purchase of new ones. Bleached cottons have been advanced in price by producers and are selling better even at the advance. Wide sheetings have just begun to move more freely, which of course will please the management of the Markland street branch of the Y. E. Southern mills. Lowell has advanced five per cent in prices for staples and business has increased, the demand being considered quite healthy for all Lowell brands in wholesale quarters. Do not mills reflect some of this increased demand. I am mentioning just these few things to show truthfully what a brief jaunt around the "wheel" of the textile mill districts of Lowell brings forth in new business promise. The hope is there; so are some of the signs. Whether the business will continue to spread, remains for the future to determine.

I rather doubt that we Americans are devoid of that spirit of gallantry and chivalry that we formerly held towards all women. There was a time when, if a woman, young or old, entered a crowded street car she would be immediately offered a seat by some of the gentlemen present. But the custom has changed of late. A male passenger rarely said to me: "I don't see why I should give a girl or woman my seat, unless she is older or less able to stand than myself. After working all day, I wish to read the paper and to relax a bit. Some of these young maids want too much. Only the other day I was coming up from my work in Lawrence and several girls carrying golf clubs boarded the car. They had to stand, something that they were quite reluctant to do. At last one of them said, 'I wish some one would give me his seat. I am tired.' No one did so, however, and she was obliged to stand. It was but right, the girls were all younger than any of the men present and they had not been working all day." They were out for exercise and a period of standing in a street car might be as good as a few rounds on the links.

Every reputable newspaper office experiences the same thing time and time again—persons requesting that certain articles be left out of print and offering money in exchange. It is more or less expediting. It requires every bit of self-control to keep from pitching the fellow downstairs, although we realize he is not to blame. In some manner, the general opinion has developed that to keep a news item out of print, it will cost something. Where such a belief springs from we do not know, but it is deep-rooted, much to the disgust of every square-shooting newspaper man in the business. No news-paper worthy of the name would countenance such a practice for an instant and the guilty person would be on the outside looking in. We have this paragraph reaching some people who hold such an impression and that it will be the means of correcting it.

Have you noticed the number of out-state automobiles that have been visiting Lowell in the last few weeks? They come from all over the union. For instance, it is a common sight to see New Hampshire cars on our streets, but until lately the sight of cars from Pennsylvania, Florida, Indiana, Texas and other distant states has been comparatively rare. We have heard no comment what so ever, and nearly all of these tourists, so my police friends tell me, ask directions to the Lowell Memorial Auditorium. Among recent visitors was a party driving from Honolulu, the year-wish orange plate of Hawaii. Evidently Lowell's fame is world wide.

Many Lowell people will be interested to know that a bronze tablet of William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, was unveiled last Saturday morning in the Administration building in Shawheen village. The tablet is the gift of Mr. Wood's employees in honor of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the company. It is five feet high, the work of Bryant Baker of New York, prominent English sculptor.

Judge Enright took occasion to compliment Attorney Charles A. Donahue for a statement in district court yesterday. When the court session was over, Charlie said he was glad to make a hit with the court as it is not often such a compliment comes to a young lawyer.

IF THE KIDS DO IT

Dads are a queer lot of fellows, at best, and you often can't quite understand 'em. In family affairs they are never out-guessed and it's seldom their wives reprimand 'em. They find a way out of the toughest things that Mom has to tell them at night. Their calm nonchalance is the action that brings the feeling that makes things all right.

Just take any day when the kidlet runs wild and his actions are terribly bad. Poor mother will say, "You're a terrible child; when your father gets home, I'll be glad."

Then Daddy arrives and the story is told. Why, Mom doesn't know where she's at. She'll fret and she'll fume and she'll fuss and she'll scold and then Dad says, "I'll see about that."

What thoughts, in the meantime, has sunny boy had? He knows that he's quite in a pickle. He rushes right up and he kisses his dad and his father then gives him—a nickel.

Now what can you do with such fathers as that? 'Course mother will say, "Oh, I knew it!" Dad says he will spank but he never stands pat. The wrong thing is right—when kids do it.

PRES. COOLIDGE NOT TO GO ON SPEAKING TOUR

WASHINGTON, August 12.—President Coolidge's speaking engagements are being held to a minimum and unless the situation changes in the early part of the campaign, it is considered likely he will not leave Washington, except for his vacation, on any speaking tour.

Airline from his address accepting the nomination to be delivered here Thursday night, at the formal notification of the president has only one other speaking engagement definitely listed—at the unveiling here, October 1, of the First Division memorial statue.

Invitations to speak have been received by the executive, however, from practically every section of the country. Among the tentative dates he has decided on is an address before the American Society, convention here September 21. He also is believed to be giving serious consideration to an invitation, received yesterday, from Baltimore to speak there September 6, at the unveiling of the Lafayette statue, which would require only a short trip.

"DICKIE" LOEB, AS A CHILD, PLAYED "BAD MAN"

Childhood pictures, cherished and hidden away for years, have been dragged out by the family of Richard Loeb to be submitted as defense evidence to support the claim of alienists that the child slayer is "emotionally deficient." As a wild west gunman, his conversations with his teddy bear and at playing policeman, Loeb was photographed in his early life. These childhood "phantasies" are now considered of great importance and the above pictures will be made part of the defense record.

Printer to Be King! At Least Chances Are Good

By N. F. A. Service
CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—"A pig herder once became king of Bulgaria, and a common soldier got to be king of Sweden."

This is the challenge to the kid-dish and the scoundrel thrown back by an outwardly prosaic, gray-haired American printer, Frederick T. O. Wood, candidate for the throne of Albania.

And so far as any one knows, Wood has as good a chance at the throne as any other—whatever that chance is worth. So far as any one knows, the blonded Bosnian cat in Wood's dark flat may be riddling against the legs of a king-to-be, and the canary bird may be destined to sing in a royal palace.

Started by Josher

The Albanian dream flashed out brilliantly last winter when Wood heard a lecturer describe that tiny Balkan spot which has unseated a handful of rulers since the great war began and which offered its crown in vain last year to the oil king, Harry Sinclair. Wood thought he could handle the toughest Balkan territory on the map, and said so.

Then one of his friends, he says, just to josh him wrote a letter nominating him for the king job, addressing it to M. Pierre Guglielmo, agent diplomatique of Albania, at Bucharest, Rumania.

Now there comes back to Chicago a message from M. Guglielmo, saying he is interested in the description of Wood's plans and his qualifications. There is a chance for success in the kingdom, he suggests, provided only that funds are forthcoming to finance the campaign. There's the only hitch. Business in the printing press just now is a little slow. Yet Wood is not entirely discouraged.

"If those fellows back in history could make a position for themselves, I don't see what's to prevent a competent mechanical engineer who has

Traveled the World

The printing job at present is just a pot boiler, to keep things going at home in the fourth floor rear flat over a bakery on Wells street. Wood has traveled the world as an engineer. About 20 years ago he helped install American engines in a Russian torpedo boat and he remained in the service during the war with Japan. At Port Arthur he was a lieutenant, commanding a boat, as he says, for the "Hogwarts." During the great war, he helped build and operate American merchant ships.

Wood is 43 years old, born in Kansas and reared in Ohio. Mrs. Wood doesn't care for the prospect of becoming queen. She's more interested in her Persian cats, and in their kittens which bring $20 a piece.

"TO SHEIK OR NOT TO SHEIK" IS PROBLEM

BY A. H. FREDERICK
N.E.A. Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 12.—Norma Talmadge, having had her flatter with sheikish leading men, again is directed back to the American juvenile type. And Sister Constance is to be given her whirl with the dark-haired, ardent ones.

Thus Joseph M. Schenck, husband and brother-in-law of the respective Talmadges and producer for both, takes his flight in the airplane-handwagon set in motion by Valentino—but notice that Schenck, why in the ways of moviedom, keeps one foot on financial solid ground.

While Wife Norma was adventuring in the unknown territory, Sister-in-Law Constance was sure to bring in her accustomed returns with leads tried and found good with the public; now that Norma has had this venture and found public production not so warm upon it, she will keep on known ground while Miss Constance advances.

New leading man for Constance is Ronald Colman, suave, handsome Englishman of Latin characteristics; not altogether sheikish, but with sufficient propensity thereof for determination as to what type the public prefers for his new leading lady. Picture fans will remember him in "The White Sister" and "Romola," while theatre audiences of England and New York have had opportunity of witnessing him upon the stage.

The first picture with the Constance Talmadge-Ronald Colman combination now is being directed by Sidney Franklin. It is a society comedy, love element not neglected, written by Hans Krall, formerly associated with Lucille, Colman is cast as a young lord of engaging presence, perfect manners, and one not lacking in love. All these requisites he may fulfill ideally.

Across the studio, Miss Norma—former Schickelkraut line now—has been abandoned—is making "Eight" with Eugene O'Brien, typical "modified" American "he-man."

Intrigues of "to sheik or not to sheik" thus solved on the Schenck lot are indicative of what is transpiring in many of the studios here.

If the sheik is to be the style this winter, if the bad (and his happier sequent) is not yet run, then all will want to be on the bandwagon. But it, as many declare, the public has had the same surfeit of this which it got from too many costume pictures, that is another matter. Happy are they who, like Schenck, can blow both hot and cold.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

MERRIMACK SQUARE

A storm-at sea with rescues that thrill, and then the Ishmael's cut on the shore—home and all that goes with home where families reign to comfort weary mates—all this, and more, is told in a stirring motion picture offering, "Women Who Give," the first three days this week at the Merrimack Square theatre. The picture is drawn from a wonderful story of suffering men and women by Sara P. McLean Greene, whose tales of life on sea and shore in connection with men who devote their lives to riding the wave in sailing ships, are widely read and fascinating in the extreme.

The homely scenes of "Women Who Give," are taken largely from familiar New England hamlets that border the "stern and rock-bound coast" of Massachusetts. There are Cape Cod folks in abundance, faithfully portrayed in every scene. A love story that touches the heartstrings is revealed in the course of the picture tale—the love of a poor fisher boy for the daughter of a rich man who frowns upon a love match that appears to him far from ideal or suited for the daughter in the passionate entanglement.

There is the usual rural scandal, temporarily beaming the name of our sailor boy hero, then the shattering of the story lover. But the rich man's daughter failed her father, of course, hiding herself away in the same vessel that was to take away her lover. The vessel did not sail the western seas nor the eastern that night, for a great storm came up and great damage was done to all shipping off shore. There is a ship wrecking scene, a rescue by the brave young captain-lover and all is well.

The cast includes Robert Frazer, Hene Adams, Barbara Bedford, Frank Keenan, Joseph Dowling, Margaret Seddon, Joan Standing, Victor Foy, Eddie Phillips and William Eugene. The second excellent feature of the first three days' picture presentation is "His Forgotten Wife," Malva Belamy is featured and is supported by Warren Barker. The story is laid in France with the World War as a background. A story on the same program is "Will Rogers in 'Going to Congress,'" a laugh-producer from start to finish with the usual Rogers oddities prodroming. The international news has an exceptionally good showing of current news events.

LOEW'S RIALTO THEATRE

Presented at the Rialto theatre yesterday was "No Mother to Guide Her," a William Fox production starring Genevieve Tobin. Scheduled to run three days, this production reveals with much simplicity and truthfulness the various paths trod by children of the rich and poor. The sort of home-ness found in "No Mother to Guide Her" is reminiscent of "Over the Hill," another William Fox success, which was offered with great acclaim last year. In addition to Miss Tobin, the star whom Broadway has been applauding this year by reason of her performance in "Tolly Preferred," the cast includes Lillian Robertson, J. D. Walsh, John Webb Dillon and Jack McLean. It is splendid in its entirety, performed with fine restraint and high-strung sympathy.

For purely technical merits, "No Mother to Guide Her" is excellent. Magnificent sets, both interior and exterior, together with much natural beauty, form an adequate setting for this appealing story. The hopes of each of the children, all of whom are ambitious, are stories in themselves. The director has entwined them into a single story thread from which the interest can never stray. To see life as "No Mother to Guide Her" presents it, is quite helpful in guiding our own destinies. The mothers, fathers, daughters and sons, too, who composed yesterday's audiences all found a direct message for them in this cinema production which is certainly worth seeing.

The associate feature presents Tom Moore in "Harbor Lights," a powerful drama of the sea. Moore is seen as a young naval officer who, returning home from a cruise, to claim his bride, finds her sister in the power of an unscrupulous rogue who plans to throw her over, in order to marry the girl affianced to the sailor. One can well imagine what can come out of a weird situation like this. Moore, with his usual breezy style, cleans up everything and in the end he's "sitting on the world."

Umpire Bob Hart Intervenes in Fist Fight at Pirates-Phillies Game and Prevents Serious Trouble

MANAGER FLETCHER AND UMPIRE PFERMAN COME TO BLOWS

Pittsburgh Scores Double Victory Over Phillies and Makes Slight Gain on Giants—Carl Mays' Winning Streak Broken by Giants—Other Games

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—An American League holiday compelled followers of Dan Johnson's obstacle race to turn to the National League for their sustenance. The younger circuit clubs spent the day traveling to the cities where the western teams will open their third invasion of the east today.

Pittsburgh's double victory over Philadelphia furnished what little thrill that apathetic flag chase is capable of arousing. This feat cut down to three the lead over the Pirates from seven games and a half to seven.

Manager Fletcher of the Phillies and Umpire Pferman exchanged the first Pittsburgh-Philadelphia tilt with a fist fight over the umpire's decision on Giants' pitching. Umpire Bob Hart acted in the role of peacemaker, and with the assistance of the police prevented serious trouble. Carey's two homers were a secondary feature of the game. The scores were 7 to 3 and 6 to 4.

In defeating Cincinnati, 4 to 2, New York broke Carl Mays' winning streak of nine straight. Jackson played sensationally both at bat and field.

Behind six hit outtings by Kauffmann, Chicago downed Boston 3 to 2. The Cubs lived up to their reputation for speed by pulling off two double steals in the second inning.

Four out of five is Brooklyn's record in their series with St. Louis as a result of a 2 to 1 triumph in the concluding contest. The Robins closed their home stand against the western clubs with 11 victories out of 19 starts.

LEONARD WINS BUT IS INJURED

Lightweight King Scores Decisive But Costly Victory Over Pal Moran

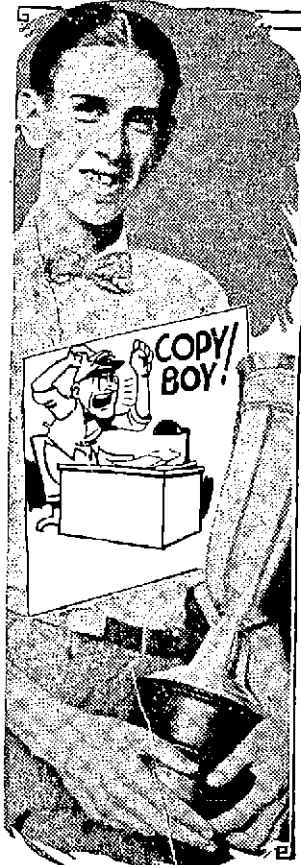

Injury to Right Thumb Will Prevent Leonard Meeting Walker Aug. 20

CLEVELAND, August 12 (By the Associated Press).—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight boxing champion, returning to the ring after nearly a year's absence, scored a decisive but costly victory over Pal Moran, of New Orleans here last night, when he defeated the challenger in a ten-round contest, winning all but one of the rounds by a wide margin.

The champion suffered a lacerated ligament of the interphalangeal joint of the right thumb, with a possible fracture of the distal phalanx, when he sent a crashing swing to Moran's head in the fourth round. The injury, physicians said today, will prevent Leonard from engaging Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, in a 15-round contest scheduled for the Yankee stadium, New York, a week from tomorrow. Leonard, the physicians said, probably will be forced to rest for at least a month before he will be in condition to resume training. Leonard, with his damaged thumb in splints, left for St. Louis today to submit the injury to specialists for an X-ray examination. If the injury is as serious as the preliminary examination indicated, Leonard will request that his match with Walker be postponed until probably September 15.

The champion, engaging in his first contest since last September, revealed his old-time form. He was in and out, shooting left jabs and hooks and right crosses, that invariably found their mark. He displayed remarkable judgment in distance and accuracy in punching, despite his long absence from the ring.

Moran was no match for Leonard. He was unable to penetrate Leonard's almost perfect defense and instead of mixing it, seemed desperately anxious to keep at a safe distance and stay the limit. Whenever Moran dared enter the fight the champion would meet the force with force and rush with rush. Leonard was particularly effective with left hooks and solid right crosses. Any time that he chose to open up he did so with difficulty, reaching the champion's jaw and body with perfectly timed blows.

TOMMY DARLINGTON

Ugton, copy boy for the Chicago Evening Post, was the other day when the newspaper men of that city held their annual tournament. And all Tommy did was to turn in the low net score of the day, shooting a 91, which with his handicap of 25, gave him a winning total of 116.

SCHOOL-BOY STAR GOES TO MICHIGAN

By N.E.A. Service
ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 12.—Hennrich Osterman will enter Michigan this fall.

To the casual reader that statement may not mean a great deal but to followers of athletics at the Matze and Blue institutions it carries quite a bit of weight.

For he it known that Osterman ranks as one of the greatest all-around athletes ever developed in Michigan prep school circles. Osterman is a star, and then some. He has been making sport history.

Osterman the sports it that was himself) is a four sport man. He performs in baseball, football, basketball and track. He is a pitcher, end, center and weight man.

Michigan prep school circles reached the limit of the national tournament of Chicago. Osterman carried it up that far. As a reward, he was named All-American prep school center.

Michigan looks hopefully to Osterman to fill the shoes of Harry Kipke.

NATIONAL DOUBLES TENNIS TOURNAMENT

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The number of entries for the national doubles tennis tournament which will open on the courts of the Longwood Cricket club, Brookline, on Monday, had been increased to 10 today. Among the latest entrants is a new young Pacific coast combination, Harvey Sandgrass and Walter Westbrook. Paul Kong and Lack Wel, members of the Chicago Davis Cup team, have also entered. George Lott and Bennett Pare, promising youthful stars from the middle west district, will compete.

Trained Muscles Make Yde a Pitching Star

By N. E. A. Service
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 11.—Will baseball players of tomorrow attend special colleges to learn the game—become graduate bachelors or doctors of baseball?

A Nordic baseball prodigy, Emil Yde of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has raised this question.

Yde's record of spending only one year in minor league baseball and leading the National league pitchers at least through the mid-season of his first year, has given impetus to the discussion.

Yde was trained for an athletic career in a Wisconsin school of physical culture. The major courses there trended toward physical direction in athletic clubs and schools. But not for Yde.

Baseball was his game, his first love and chosen profession. As each muscle in his sturdy body was limbered and strengthened by special exercise Yde visualized its application to baseball.

At 20 Yde was graduated. He pitched a few semi-pro games in Wisconsin and was picked up by Jack Holland of the Oklahoma City Western league team.

The result of Yde's physical education was shown from the start. The young recruit bore the brunt of the hardest campaign ever waged for a Western league pennant.

Yde, this first season in organized baseball, won 28 games while losing only 12. In 339 innings pitched he allowed only 330 hits. He pitched in only 47 games and was credited with a win or loss in 33 of them, showing his stability in the box.

Yde was also the team's regular pinch hitter. It was one of the few instances of organized baseball where a pitcher was the regular pinch hitter. His average for 93 games was .369.

Small wonder that the scouts beat a path to Oklahoma City, among them Eddie Hess of Detroit.

Passed Up by Tykers
Owner Jack Holland wired President Natch of the Tykers that Yde was a likely major leaguer. Hess was sent to look him over and made an adverse report. Holland had previously sent Natch Lil Stoner, one of his chief pitching stars.

After long argument and much quibbling Yde was sold to the Pirates. Pittsburgh says the price was $10,000 but Holland, while not stating the exact figure, says "he wishes it was that much." Authentic report says the Pirates got Yde for $8000.

CHELMSFORD A. A. DEFEATED BY CENTRALVILLE PRINCETONS

Lowell Twilight League Game on South Common Last Evening—Pouliot and Foye Constitute Winning Battery for Princetons—Score 3 to 1

The battery for the Centralville last night was Pouliot and Foye. That's what the Centralville Princetons of the Lowell Twilight league took a 3 to 1 verdict from the Chelmsford A. A. on the South common. Ray Foye was another reason. He played first base for the winners and cracked out two singles off Sully Kneeland in three times at bat.

The game marked the return to the fold of the three above-named veterans. They showed a lot of pep and added strength to the Centralville outfit. Pouliot pitched a one game striking out five men, including the last two to face him. He was opposed by Sully Kneeland, who also twirled good ball, but was accorded poor support in the pinches.

The visiting team was the first to score. In the second inning, L. McElroy got a single to left and G. McElroy, who took one at Legrand, who threw wild to second and both runners advanced. A hot bunt down the first base line by Conlon scored L. McElroy.

In the third, the Princetons dented the count. Pouliot slammed out a triple to left. Jimmy Cayley knocked one to short and reached first in safety when Belleville bobbled Greenwood's peg, allowing Pouliot to cross the pan.

Legrand's single with a man on base in the fifth gave the Princetons another run. Cayley had walked and stolen second when Legrand injected his telling blow. Ray Foye started things in the sixth by striking out. Marcel Pratus was safe when his fly to short center resulted in a crash by Pouliot, by pitcher. Kneeland (Pouliot). Umpire: Buckley.

Frank Pratus reached first on the shortstop's error, on which his brother reached home.

Blinding Speed Under Perfect Control—That's Vance's Secret

THIS IS DAZZY VANCE, FIRE BALL KING OF THE NATIONAL LEAGUE. THEY CALL HIM DAZZY BECAUSE OF HIS DAZZLING SPEED.

BY BILLY EVANS
Control, plus blinding speed. That's the secret of Dazzy Vance's great success in the National League.

Seven or eight years ago Vance came to the New York Yankees a raw recruit.

The late Wild Bill Donovan was managing the club. In his day Wild Bill had been a great pitcher himself. As his nickname implied, he was swift of his career. That's plenty fast enough for me.

Vance, however, doesn't rely wholly on his fast ball. His knuckle ball is as easily thrown to him, and his curve has a highly developed deceptive quality. Against Chicago recently he fanned seven batters in a row. During that span he mixed 'em up in a manner that stumped him as a smart pitcher as well as an unusually gifted one.

Vance is a product of the great open spaces of Iowa, is 31 years old, a six-footer and a right-hander. He has been pitching professionally for about 10 years. He got his start with the Hastings club of the Nebraska State League. Brooklyn got him in 1922.

and profited materially by his opponent's numerous double faults. Victorias also were recorded by Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston over Wrigley of St. Louis at 6-0, 6-4, and over Ignacio Berthella of Mexico, at 6-3, 6-4, and by Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles over Fritz Mercur of Lehigh University at 10-8, 7-5.

Today's principal match will be that between Niles and Griffin.

BUD TAYLOR BEATS PETE SARMIENTO
CHICAGO, August 12.—Bud Taylor, Terre Haute scrapper, easily whipped Pete Sarmiento, Filipino, in their 10-round bout at Aurora last night, the newspapermen giving him every round. Taylor kept up a running fire of lefts to Sarmiento's jaw and chest that completely puzzled the islander. They fought at 213 pounds.

Do you know Baseball?

by Billy Evans

Questions

1. With runner on first base, batter hits a ground ball that strikes the base umpire and bounds into the shortstop's hands. A double play was completed and umpire allowed same. The ball went directly from the bat to the umpire, no play being made on it.—S. R. D.

2. Batter hits the ball to deep center field and beats the relay to the plate for a home run. As the runner round third, the catcher slipped him on the back. The team in the field insisted that the catcher pushed the runner, thereby making him try for the plate.

The umpire called the runner out for interference on the part of the catcher. Please explain the catching rule relative to this play.—S. R. E.

Answers

1. When a batted ball on which no play has been made hits the umpire, the batsman is entitled to first base. No runners can advance unless forced. The umpire erred in allowing a double play. Butler goes to first, runner on first to second.

2. When a home run is made on a ball hit over the fence, no attention is paid to any act of the catcher, as no play is really possible.

However, when ball remains in field of play, any act of the catcher in touching the runner rounding third can be construed as interference by the umpire.

2 TO 2 TIE IN JUNIOR TWO LEAGUE GAME

The Ironquols and Pawtucket Blues, of the Junior Twilight league, battled to a 2 to 2 tie on the North common last night.

Both teams correlated their tactics in the first round of the engagement while opposing pitchers were still a bit cool. However, when the battery got down to work there was not a chance for a man to make a circuit.

The most spectacular play of the evening, besides the pitching of B. Sullivan and Ducharme, was a lightning double play. Robarge to Rosenberry. Robarge, Ironquols short stop, gathered in a sizzling liner, turned completely around and tossed to first.

Ruth Ironquols runs came in after two men had taken the air. The third man was also out but the catcher let the strike go by and then threw wildly in first. Then Pouliot singled and Robardus doubled and two men came home.

This evening's twilight game on the South common between the Butlers and the Centralville East Ends will start at 6 o'clock sharp. This change of time is to allow the teams to play seven full innings before darkness sets in. The days are getting noticeably shorter and the old starting time of 6:15 has not been working to advantage for a week or more.

The Butlers and East Ends are in perfect trim for tonight's act-to. "Duke" Carroll may twirl for the Butlers, and Phil Payton for the East Ends. The Butlers will play Ricard's Belmonts Wednesday night.

PENNOCK STAR YANK PITCHER

Bush and Shawkey Not as Consistent as They Were a Few Years Ago

Hoyt Temperamental and Jones at His Best Only When Team Is Winning

N.E.A. Service
NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The five-star pitching staff of the New York Yankees is slipping.

For three years, superb pitching, more than any other one thing, has carried the club to three pennants and one world series.

Opposing clubs in the American league are inclined to the belief that the pitching spell has been broken. Like all other clubs, the Yankees must have effective pitching to win consistently.

Here is the way a certain veteran American league star sums up the Yankees' pitching staff:

"Bush no longer boasts the fast ball that won him fame. He depends largely on his fork ball, which breaks like a dry stick. This delivery calls for great control. Lack of it makes him just an ordinary pitcher."

"Shawkey is no longer a consistent performer. One day he looks like a million dollars, the next time out, counterfactual money. Too erratic to be depended upon."

"Hoyt, a great twirler but temperamental. Just got the breaks to be a winning pitcher. When his team stumps, Hoyt's work falls off to a surprising degree."

"Jones shows in advancing when not hard pressed. In a race such as the present American league struggle, is not at his best."

"Pennock is the one consistent performer on the Yankee staff. The possession of an ideal disposition and plenty of courage, he does his best work under the severest pressure."

"In reality the Yankees' staff is merely a one instead of a five-star combination."

ABBOTS AND SOUTH BOSTON THIS EVENING

Playing at tip-top form, the Abbot Worrieds will clash with South Boston in an important Ballowa Twilight league game in Graniteville this evening. North Cambridge, runner-up to the Abbot in the bitter pennant fight will face the Chelsea Millstreams this evening. Naturally, Abbot rooters are pulling for the Millstreams to down the Lenox sunk, as a defeat for the Cambridge will practically mean the hunting and a chance to meet the Lawrence independents for the Abbot. That is providing the Graniteville outfit pins the ace on the South Bostonians this evening.

The Silas mills team plays in Woonsocket this evening. Tomorrow evening, the team goes to Manchester, N. H., for a tilt with the representatives of that city.

TOMMY ROBSON WINS OVER ROBINSON

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Tommy Robson of Malden and George Robinson, veteran Cambridge negro, former middleweights but now legitimate light-heavyweights, boxed 10 sensational rounds at the all-star show of the Commercial A. C. at the Arena last night and the colored man, who a few years ago, when both were at their best, won a decision over Robinson. Tommy, took the worst beating of his ping career and was adjudged the loser.

But it was a thrilling bout, nevertheless, notwithstanding that it was only a question of how much punishment Robinson could assimilate. The bout served as the swiftest event, but it so far overshadowed the feature event, that between Pat McCarthy of Roxbury and Wolf Larsen that the crowd took kindly to the slow, tedious performance of the feature, which eventuated in McCarthy winning the award.

Denelo Bent Jarvier
The 10-round bout between the diminutive Filipino flyweights, Young Denicio and Jose Jarvier, the latter at present stationed at the Charlestown navy yard, was practically all the test for a few rounds, with Denicio playing the greatest speed and hitting powers and his aggressive tactics soon wore down his taller and more lanky compeer. Denelo weighed 107 pounds, and Jarvier was three pounds heavier, but sent him on his way because he couldn't get the ball over the pitcher's mound.

"The kid's got everything a great pitcher needs," admitted Donovan, "but it won't do him any good until he learns how to keep it close to the plate."

As the years rolled on the wisdom of Donovan's size-up became clear to all. Vance certainly had everything that makes for success on the mound and, as soon as he required control, he became a great pitcher.

STANDING OF SCHOOL BASEBALL TEAMS

The Moody school playgrounds baseball team is scheduled to clash with the representatives of the Moody grounds, Friday afternoon at Shedd park. The Moody boys played three games last week, winning two, one each from the Alkens and the South common teams and losing one to the Moody. As the Moody team is leading the playground league and the Moody crowd second, there is bound to be intense rivalry displayed.

The standing of the senior and junior playground leagues are as follows:

Senior Baseball
Greenhalge ..... 3 Won North Common ..... 2 Lost
Richmond ..... 0 3
Moody ..... 2 0
Junior Baseball
Moody ..... 2 0
Alken ..... 2 1
No. Common ..... 0 2
So. Common ..... 0 2

The Pawtucket boys will go in the Junior league. The Lincoln boys will go in the Senior league.

Papa Beats His Boy!

ST. LOUIS, S. D., Aug. 12.—John Barton, 47, one of the best known bankers in this community, beat his young son, Horace, 17, the other night, right out in public. And then laughed.

"You will get fresh with the old man," he chuckled.

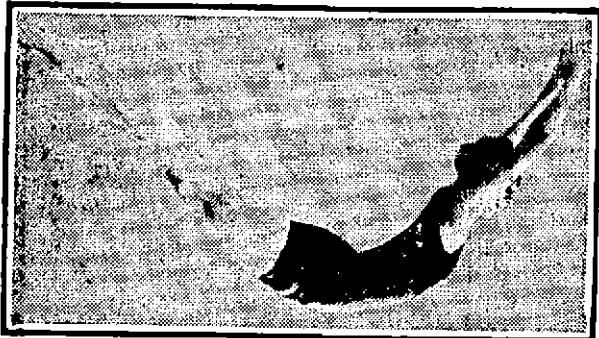

It was in a tennis match, the finals for the championship of South Dakota.

The elder Barton and the youngster dominated the tournament from the start, and the day of the finals found them on opposite sides of the nets battling earnestly and enthusiastically for cup and title.

Adding to the rarity of the situation was the sturdy youngster's defeat at the hands of his father, who has been a high ranking tennis player for 30 years.

Old Colored Stars Would Have Bothered Present Day Champs

By N. E. A. Service
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—Could Dempsey defeat Jack Johnson when the "Golden Smile" was in its prime?

Could Mike McTigue take Sam Langford when the "Tar Baby" was right?

Could Benny Leonard win from Joe Gans, Baltimore conquis?

Could Micky Walker stand up to Joe Walcott when the "Barbadoes Demon" ruled the welterweight division?

Could Johnny Dundee outpoint George Dixon when "Little Chocolate" was recognized as the greatest boxer in the world?

To two of these questions you can answer "Maybe." Dempsey is real, so is Leonard. The other answers follow:

Langford would have stopped McTigue with a punch. Walker hardly could have lasted more than one or two rounds with Walcott. Dundee would have been a punching bag for Dixon.

No Colored Stars Left

There isn't a fighter left to uphold the prestige established for the colored race by Johnson, Langford, Walcott, Gans and Dixon. Harry Wills' poor showing against Bartley Madden shows that he is a has-been. Wills was a fighter 10 years ago.

Leonard, lightweight champion, and Walker, welterweight champion, are matched. Experts predict Walker will win.

Gans, lightweight champion, and Alton, welterweight champion, fought a sensational 20-round battle.

RENAULT BEATS MADDEN

Canadian Wins All the Way,

But Is Unable to Put Irishman Away

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Bartley Madden today is doctoring numerous pains.

bruises sustained last night in the round match with Jack Renault at Queensboro stadium in Long Island City, which the Canadian fighter, weight won on points. In spite of cruel punishment the New Yorker was on his feet with considerable stamina to spare at the final going.

Although he decidedly outgeneralled his opponent, Renault lacked the power to put the game Irishman away.

After the fight the Irishman was taken to the hospital and contented himself with the few rounds and contented himself with the few rounds and contented himself with the few rounds.

In the last round Renault rushed Madden in the ropes and rained a fusillade of blows upon him but Madden, after a brief rest, came up for more at the finish. The spectators gave Madden a big hand for his attitude against overwhelming odds.

AMERICAN DEFENSE TEAM LOOKS GOOD

By JOE WILLIAMS

No one can find serious fault with the team which has been picked to defend the Walker cup against the British invader next month at Garden City, L. I. Captain Bob Gardner's selection comes close to representing the 10 best amateur golfers in the country.

A mild exception may be noted here and there. Bill Powders of Pittsburgh is hardly the golfer he used to be, but he is a wise head, a matchless general and, altogether, a mighty valuable citizen to have around.

Gardner himself has not been playing up to old-time form, due largely to a recent operation. It may come to pass that Gardner will not attempt a conspicuous role in the cup matches, but will assign the burden of the fight to another.

Golf fans of the country will rejoice in the selection of Dr. O. K. Willing of Portland. The good doctor performed bravely with the American team abroad two years ago. The last has never been him in action in an important tournament. In 1921 he qualified in the national amateur at St. Paul but was demolished by Bobby Jones in the second round, 9 and 8.

Marion Johnson won his place on the team in the spectacular manner in which he won the recent western amateur, and is richly entitled to the honor.

Chick Evans is again on the team.

MARY BROWNE LEAPS FROM GOLF TO TENNIS AND BACK AGAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Ten years ago Mary Browne of California was good enough to win the national women's tennis championship. Three years ago she was good enough to come out of semi-retirement and again go to the finals in the national where she lost to Molla Mallory. In between times she took up golf and played the ancient game of Scollia as enthusiastically as ever she did the game of tennis. Last winter she was good enough to go to the semi-finals in the California women's championship. That shows what kind of a golfer she is. Now she is back in the east playing in the big tennis championships—and playing, mind you, just about as well as ever.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Police officials throughout the state were requested today by motor vehicle commission Charles A. Harnett to supply him with the names of persons deemed "incapable of carefully and prudently" operating an automobile as preliminary to licensing the drivers of motor cars a New York state.

Mr. Harnett explained that such information would make it possible to conduct an investigation to weed out the reckless or physically unfit drivers and to check every case before a driver's license is issued.

The commission said power was granted to him to grant such licenses without examination prior to Jan. 1, and it was desired to learn as far as possible the names of operators who certainly should be required to undergo an examination.

great deal, often the ball game, naturally more inside stuff was pulled in. "Trying to break up the hit-and-run seems to be the blindest task of an effort to put over a tally."

The old-time catcher had a dozen worries to this one.

Sullivan can't see that the game has changed any for the better, and says he would like to be playing with the White Sox of 1906 in the present American league race.

"I would start spending some of the world's money right now," is the way he puts it.

The American League race of this year is offering ample proof of what pitching means to a ball club.

Pitching, or lack of it, has been the dominating factor in the success or failure of the eight contending teams.

When Washington made its sensational start to the top of the American League standing, it got air tight pitching.

The team presided over by Stanley Harris hasn't a batting punch like the Yankees; it must get good pitching, and make the most of it.

The Nationals backed up the good pitching with a strong defense and did just enough timely hitting to give them the edge.

Pitching to the Washington club in the race.

Lack of consistent pitching has kept the Yankees three times pennant winners, from being far out in front.

Father Time is beginning to show up some of the veteran Yankee hurlers. No doubt it's a good thing for the American League race as a whole.

Brilliant pitching, from three or four of the veteran hurlers, has kept the Detroit team up in the race. Likewise the failure of some of the veterans has proved a great handicap.

The Tigers have a powerful offensive, easily give their pitchers a pretty good working margin. Despite this, several pitchers backed on by Manager Cobb to be very helpful have failed to come through.

With the race two-thirds over, the St. Louis Browns have stepped to the front in the Johnsonson organization.

This year is just one thrill after another in the American League. The Browns are now having their inning.

In the first half of the season St. Louis suffered from lack of pitching. The great Shocker just couldn't hit his stride. Dixie Davis was troubled with his old fault, wildness. Van Citter was unable to win.

The sensational work of the rookie, Winchell, and the fine showing of Dave Danforth saved the club.

With the arrival of warm weather the veterans on the St. Louis staff seem to have struck their stride.

Despite the fact that the British-American polo matches are set for September, the annual clamor of the Polo Hangers' union will be carried out as per schedule.

Some gifted alienist may yet take the stand and prove to our complete satisfaction that the defeat of the White Sox in 1919 was merely the outgrowth of a "childish fantasy."

It is broadly hinted that Firpo does most of his road work lying down. What if it isn't that the way he does most of his fighting?

The Canadians can not understand why Haggen declined to compete in their championship. Maybe he's still got some left.

SUMMER SPORTS BY B. &amp; M. MEN

Boston & Maine railroad shopmen in Billerica and in Concord, together with squads of Boston & Maine railroad shopmen, "right of way" hucksters and even station agents and baggage men in some instances in nearby traffic territories, have the athletic fever in dead earnest.

Some of them never knew they could hit a home run over the round-house from the spot where they took the unused side tracks up, until they tried it. Trick hurdlers have been developed in one Western avenue.

switching center. Sprinters are born and not made over in Billerica, and brakemen are sprucing up to show the stuff they always had under cover.

The mechanical employees in the car shops started the ball a-rolling when the "new regime" spread its benign wave of sympathetic support and encouragement over the station workers as they caught the fever of athletic entertainments and hurled for the preliminaries.

What happened?

This summer has been filled with wonderful things in the car shop workers' spare time calendar of vigorous entertainment over in Billerica. With the co-operation of the Boston Railroad "Y" (meaning Y.M.C.A.) the mechanical employees at the Billerica shops have been conducting a brand new summer series of noon athletic contests.

The interesting news tidbits that come from employees' circles reveal that during the month of June, 75 athletic events were conducted for the edification of the car shop workers, that is, the immediate newly discovered athletes of the railroad corporation's best brain and brawn.

Get these figures:

Just 315 workmen participated in these events, before an attendance of brother shopmen estimated at 15,000 when you count up the attendance for all contests. Small prizes were given by the shopmen from personal contributions. Each event was a huge success. The contests brought out nothing but friendly rivalry. Champions were discovered in different classes and better things are still to come before the final noon-day athletic contest results are chalked up.

Then the boys will begin to think of winter sports to let off surplus steam until summer rolls around again.

Incidentally, the thirtieth annual outing of the New England Association of Railroad Veterans (don't call 'em old) will be held at Crescent park on the Providence river in Rhode Island next Sunday. There will be a real claim buster, and served on the sandy shore hot from coals that cook 'em. Crescent Park's fame will never die, as every New England railroad worker knows.

MOVIES AND BAND CONCERT

More than 10,000 people attended the band concert and motion picture show given on the South common last evening. The Lowell Military band and the Boy Four rendered the music, while an exceptionally good movie program interested the children.

GREAT PITCHERS' BATTLE

Tardiff and Pearsall in Brilliant Exhibition —

P. A. A. Defeats Dixons

The Dixon Shoe Fix team won and lost on the diamond last night. The victory came by forfeit when the Collinsville team, which was scheduled to play off the 1 to 1 tie of a week ago, failed to show up on the Highland playground. The umpire waited until the announced time to start and then declared the Dixons winners by the score of 9 to 0. Rather than disappoint to see a game, Bert Dixon, live manager of the Dixons, immediately got into communication with the manager of the Pawtucket A.A. runners up in the City Twilight league, who had beaten the Dixons a week ago by a 1 to 0 score. The Pawtucket agreed to fill in and they deserved considerable credit for their ready response. No time was wasted in batting practice, etc., the umpire calling the game as soon as the players showed up. The contest opened up in whirlwind fashion and it continued at a thrilling clip until the last man was out. It developed into another pitchers' battle between "Tiger" Pearsall and "Chick" Tardiff. Each had a world of stuff and complete control, and were very stingy with their hits. Pearsall allowing but two bingles and Tardiff being touched for a trio of hits. But for errors at shortstop by Clough of the Dixons, no runs would have been scored as the two rallies of the Pawtucket came as the result of "boots." The Dixons were held scoreless, the game ending with the count 9 to 0. It was a great battle and the fans highly appreciated the efforts of both teams.

The Dixons will play the C.M.A.C. team Friday night on the Lawrence Manufacturing company grounds.

OPEN TOURNAMENT AT MT. PLEASANT

An open golf tournament under Massachusetts Golf association auspices will be held at the Mt. Pleasant club on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 21, 22 and 23. Three gross and three net prizes are offered. The course will be open for practice for entrants on the 19th and 20th.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 20

"We'd better go back to those three ice mounds," suggested one of the sailors. So back they went. Each of the sailors went into one of the houses and Jack and Flip went into the third one. Jack found it very comfortable inside and it was a relief to be out of the heavy snowfall.

Jack remembered that the sailors had told him that snowfalls didn't last long up in the north. So, after a short time, he stuck his head out of the ice hut door. A blanket of fresh snow lay in front but the air was clear once more. "Come on, Flip," shouted Jack, "we can go out again."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 7—THE TRAVELERS VISIT THE KANGAROOS

WEENY GAVE A FEW FLAPS WITH HIS BIG EARS

"Where are we going now, Weeny?" asked Nick when the elephant had placed them both successfully on his back after they had left the icebergs. "Who else are you going to visit on your vacation?"

"I believe I'll go to see Kicky Kangaroo," said Weeny. "We used to have a lot of fun in the circus. He lives a long way off, but that doesn't matter, since the Fairy Queen taught me to fly with my ears. I can go anywhere that ends. The last postcard I had from him had his address on it."

"It must be in your satchel," said Nancy.

"So it must," said Weeny. So the Twins opened the satchel and took out Weeny's nightgown and his specks and his toothbrush and there, sure enough, was the lost postcard.

"It says 'Bambon Grove, Australia,'" read Nick.

"Yes, sir! Of course!" said Weeny. "I wish my memory was as long as my trunk. But it's only as long as my tail. My head will never save my heels, I'm afraid. Weren't I lucky I happened to have that card along! Hold tight now, here we go."

Weeny gave a few flaps with his big ears and soon the travelers were whizzing away over mountains and seas until they came to Australia. At least that's what the whole said it was, when they asked him out in the noon.

And before they knew it there they were at the Bambon Grove, where Kicky Kangaroo lived.

KLAN FACTIONS BURY HATCHET

Agreement Signed Between
K. K. K. and Anti-Klan
at Niles, O.

Action Comes as Culmination of Series of Disorders
Recently

NILES, O., August 12.—What is believed to be the first agreement ever signed between the Ku Klux Klan and anti-Klan factions has been reached here as a culmination of a series of disorders which have occurred here
recently.

The agreement provides that both sides forget their differences and "bury the hatchet" as a means of promoting peace in the community. It was signed by members of the Klan and Knights of the Flaming Circle, an anti-Klan organization, at a conference presided over by Sheriff John Thomas of Trumbull county.

Because the burning of the Klan's
crosses and the opposition organization's circles in Niles have led to frequent street fights, the agreement provides specifically that no crosses or circles be burned in Weatherfield township, in which this city is located. It includes the abandonment of all charges and counter charges between the two parties.

DR. THIERY IS UNDER ARREST

Charged With Murder of His Brother-in-Law, D. M.
Noble of Somerville

Accused Man Remains in Serious Condition at Mass.
General Hospital

SOMERVILLE, Mass., August 12.—
Dr. Raymond Thiery, who was placed under formal arrest at the Massachusetts General hospital in Boston, late last night, charged with the murder
of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble,
in this city last Friday night, remained in a serious condition today. It was understood that he would not be arraigned until he was in better shape to undergo the ordeal.

The authorities declined to make public a statement obtained from Thiery yesterday, when he said had given them important information.
The arrest followed a search of the house in this city where the two men lived with Dr. Thiery's parents. In the course of this search an Austrian army rifle was found and seized by the officers.

The police said that Thiery, who had told them a story of his wife's slay-ing the house, shooting Noble and attacking him, was suffering from the effects of an operation performed at the hospital where he was taken after being found semi-conscious at the foot of the cellar stairs. His condition was complicated, they said, by his previous indulgence in some form of drug. They declined to say whether they had developed any theory as to a possible motive for the shooting.

were able to participate in the Boston
ceremonials of their beloved organization, had been eagerly anticipating the Boston trip today. Not one who planned to attend the convention and march with heroic comrades from every section of the nation, failed to be on hand for the departure in automobiles for the Hub.

An early start from Lowell was agreed upon. Local Sons of Veterans
street at 7:30 this morning, carrying camp members and Civil war veteran guests. Lucius A. Derby was in charge of this group of convention
visitors. A number of other G. A. R. members made the journey in privately-owned automobiles, friends gladly loaning cars and drivers for the day's trip. Some of the Lowell automobiles appeared in the G. A. R. parade, a few veterans preferring to ride because of physical disabilities that prevented them appearing with more vigorous veterans parading on foot.

Among the Lowell veterans who appeared in the parade, were the following:

Commander Franklin S. Povey,
Senior Vice Commander Albert J. Gilman, Junior Vice Commander George
E. Bryant, Officer of the Day Charles
E. Bixby, Officer of the Guard Albert
J. Bixby and Chaplain Coburn S.
Smith of Billerica, all being of Ladd and Whitney post 155, Col. Albert
P. Bixby of B. E. Butler post 42, A. R.
Lowell of James A. Garfield post 129,
and Albert A. Davis, George F. Tilton, Eugene F. Morrill and J. T. Phillips, all of Ladd and Whitney post 155.

shires. They will return to Lowell
Thursday.

Miss Elizabeth M. Donoghue, stenographer to the mayor, returned to her desk at city hall yesterday after a two weeks' vacation. During her absence Mrs. Edith P. Gill acted as a substitute.

Inspectors Eugene C. Loupret and Edward Fitzgerald of the state motor vehicle department spent last night
on NeSmith street halting auto drivers
whose headlights failed to conform

A marriage license was issued today by City Clerk Stephen Flynn to Fred Jennings, a stevedecker living at 97 St. Stephen street, Boston, and Miss Delcia Goureau of 269 Appleton street, a waitress.

Miss Mary S. Reed, stenographer in the lands and buildings department at city hall, Miss Grace Reed, teacher at the Greenhatch school, and Miss Mary Maguire, teacher at the Varnum school, are enjoying a vacation at Oak Bluffs.

Francis P. Cogger, elevator inspector in the office of the inspector of buildings, returned from Oak Bluffs over the week-end and started for Newfound lake, where he will spend the remaining week of his annual vacation.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Callahan at St. John's hospital, Monday, August 11. Mrs. Callahan was formerly Miss Mary E. Clifford.

The Misses Mary E. Whelan and Mary P. Cryan are making an automobile trip to New York, Atlantic City
and Philadelphia.

No particular change was reported today at St. John's hospital in the condition of Edward Elliott, West Chelmsford automobile accident victim, who has been in an insensible state for eight days. Some signs of returning consciousness were noted, but only at widely separated intervals.

Representative Charles H. Slowey is in Boston today as a member of the honorary committee appointed by the speaker of the house for the celebration of the Grand Army of the Republic. The committee today joined the governor's council to review the parade from the Tremont street grandstand.

Miss Maude E. MacPherson today received a card from Miss Katherine R. McAlister, a co-worker in the office of City Treasurer Fred H. Rourke who is spending her vacation on an auto trip with Miss Isabelle R. Whitlock,
Miss Olive Johnson and Mrs. Fred J.
Nevery. The card, from Narragansett Pier, conveys the information that their auto was rammed by a drunken driver the first day out. No one was injured and damage to the car was slight. The party will proceed from Narragansett Pier to Atlantic City, thence into Canada and return to

TO HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC AT HENRY FORD'S INN

Many members of farm bureau organizations and granges, located in numerous Middlesex cities and towns, will participate in the fourth annual county picnic to be conducted by Middlesex County Extension service
and the Middlesex County Farm bureau, at Henry Ford's Wayside Inn,
in Sudbury, tomorrow.

The rally of the tillers of New England soil and the guardians of New England homes promises to be an epoch-making event. Practically every farmer in Middlesex county who can possibly do so, will be there, with wives and children.

Mr. Ford has taken a keen personal interest in this grand outdoor picnic and has done everything possible
through his personal representatives at the Wayside Inn, to make this the most successful event of its kind ever conducted in New England. He has made special contributions to the day's program, among them being features
to appear in a parade representing agriculture from the days of the ox-toke to the tractor.

The Chelmsford brass band has been engaged to furnish music for the entire day. There will be agricultural exhibits and a parade of floats of boys' and girls' clubs representing the activities of these organizations
and the projects being carried on.

The day's program is as follows:

8:45 a. m.—Arrival and parking of autos.

10:00 a. m.—Band concert, acquaintance rings, agricultural exhibits, play festival for boys and girls, inspection
of Wayside Inn.

11:30 a. m.—Horseshoe tournament.

12:00 p. m.—Bug-of-war, town teams, link one), milk, tonic and ice cream
to be purchased at refreshment booth.

1:00 p. m.—"The Story of Wayside Inn." Speakers include President
Edward N. Lewis, Massachusetts Agricultural colleges; Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, Massachusetts Department of Agriculture; President Leon Wetherbee,
Middlesex County Farm bureau.

2:00 p. m.—Parade of floats, boys'
and girls' "4H" clubs.

2:15 p. m.—Athletic contests for everyone, young and old.

3:00 p. m.—Baseball game, married men vs. single men.

The committee on arrangements for the Wayside Inn visitation and festival includes Raymond L. Clapp, manager of the Middlesex County Farm bureau; Allison P. MacDougall, tension service, and Louis W. Pean, trustee of both organizations. They will be assisted by the entire extension service attaches and farm bureau staff employees, as well as the local town
directors of both organizations.

WILL STUDY STREET CONDITIONS HERE

The Lowell cleaner city committee, composed of about 100 citizens, headed by Peter F. Sullivan as chairman, today announced the employment of H.
S. R. McCurdy of Manchester, N. H.,
for the purpose of making a study of Lowell street cleaning conditions.

"The expense of this study is being borne by private contributions," the announcement says. "His report will be made public."

Mr. McCurdy first came into the limelight here last week when it was announced from Manchester that he had resigned a position with the city highway department which he had held for about 15 months. Coupled with the announcement was the statement that he intended to enter private business
as an efficiency engineer in street work
and had been employed to come to Lowell at once. City officials dis-claimed any knowledge of him or any such agreement. A few days later he was identified as having been invited
here by the cleaner city committee, an offshoot of the planning board. Formal announcement of his employment
was made today.

NURSES FINED FOR WEARING KNICKERS

HAMMOND, La., Aug. 12.—

The newly ordained law of the county commissioners of Livingstone parish, prohibiting among other things, the one-
piece bathing suits, kissing,
"petting" parties and the wearing of trousers by women, had its first try-out yesterday, when two nurses, claiming to hail from Mississippi, were arrested at Denham Springs charged with wearing knickers. They were taken before a justice of the peace, entered pleas of guilty
and paid fines of $5 each.

The justice let it be known
that the law in Livingstone parish is supreme and must be respected.

DAIL EIREANN MEETS

Free State Government to Present Bill Dealing With Boundary Commission

DUBLIN, Aug. 12. (By the Associated Press).—With the reassembly today of the Dail Eireann, the Free State government is expected to introduce a bill
dealing with the Irish boundary commission, similar to the legislation becoming sponsored in the house of commons by the British government. The bill makes no attempt to fetter the commission by limiting the authority in the matter of boundary changes.
Debate on the measure is expected to be prolonged and is certain to develop considerable opposition from the independents, led by Tom Johnson, and the new republican group headed by Joseph McGrath, former minister of commerce.

GIRLS' PLAYGROUND BASEBALL LEAGUE

There is no doubt but that the Girls' Playground Baseball league is producing as fast and interesting games as any amateur collection of teams of their size and age in the city. Several times weekly the different teams meet and endeavor to place themselves at the top of the league.

In the wholesome and interesting activities that were enjoyed until recently, only by their brothers. The standing of the girls' league is as follows:

Team	Won	Lost
Fayette	4	0
Greenhatch	5	1
Varnum	5	1
Butler	3	1
Lincoln	3	1
Pawtucket	3	1
Washington	2	2

OFF ON LONG FLIGHT

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 12.— Lieutenants James H. Doolittle and Ewart Plant, flying in a specially equipped de Havilland plane on what they planned to be a non-stop flight to Denver, took off at Rockwell field here today at 4:14 a. m. (3.44 eastern daylight time).

UNDERAKER DROPS DEAD

CLINTON, Aug. 12.—George W.
Marsh, a Marlboro undertaker, dropped dead yesterday as he was removing a body from a Clinton home.

Mr. Marsh's firm continued their arrangements for the Clinton man's funeral, while Undertaker King of Clinton took charge of Mr. Marsh's remains.

SIX KILLED IN FIGHT AMONG MINERS

WILBURTON, Okla., Aug. 12.—Officials here were awaiting this morning
word from Hughes, a small mining center six miles away where last night,
according to meagre reports, six men
had been killed in a fight among miners at the Bull Hill coal mine. Two
midnight, but nothing could be learned, since there was no telephone service to the town.

Feeling has been more or less tense
in Latimer county since a group of miners raided a mine at Cambria three weeks ago and drove a number of non-union men from their work.

Several men were charged with participation in the incident, and their hearing is scheduled to start here today.

GREAT INTEREST IN VOLLEY BALL LEAGUE

The Girls' Playground Volley Ball league is now beginning the second half of a very successful season. With the South common aggregation leading for 1,000 and the North common players running a close second with only a few points to go the remainder of the season will witness some thrilling battles. The entire personnel of the league is filled with ambition for the first in the fall-enders, so action is assured. The standing of the league:

Team	Won	Lost
South Common	4	0
North Common	3	1
Pawtucket	4	1
Fayette	3	2
Lincoln	3	2
Moody	3	2
Washington	3	2
Varnum	3	2

MINOR CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

The second arrest in the collo-cated "Bucket of Blood," an alleged liquor rendezvous in Fayette street,
was made last night by Officers Clyde R. Aldrich and William Liston of that liquor room, and in district court this morning William Cudworth was arraigned on a complaint charging him with maintaining a liquor nuisance. He
in $300 bonds until Sept. 4.

Anthony S. Bucci of Billerica pleaded guilty to operating an automobile
without a license and was fined $20.
Joseph L. Rondeau, charged with operating a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of liquor, was continued until tomorrow.

James L. Ryan and John J. Dunaway, each charged with a similar offense were continued to next Monday and Tuesday, respectively.

A charge of operating while drunk,
preferred against Tony Sygla of Tyngboro, was dismissed for lack of evidence.

John Unick, charged with driving at an unreasonable rate of speed, was continued to Aug. 19.

CONVENTION OF DANCING MASTERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Plans have been outlined here for the annual convention of the International Association of Dancing Masters for the elimination of extreme forms of dances.
Many of the delegates agreed that dancing was being carried to an extreme and that it is time to call a halt.

The association has forbidden the teaching of dancing by mail. The members declare it cannot be done.

SHORTAGE LED TO SHOOTING

Bank Officials Refuse to Discuss Amount Involved
in Gilpatric Case

Cashier Seriously Injured
and Probably Permanently
Blinded

PUTNAM, Conn., August 12.—Beyond the fact that there is a shortage of the accounts of the First National bank of this city, whose cashier, G. Harold Gilpatric, also state treasurer, is seriously injured as a result of a self-inflicted bullet wound, and probably permanently blinded, nothing is officially known today as to the nature or extent of the financial troubles, which are admitted to have led to the shooting. The bank directors, after a total conference of 11 hours yesterday, adjourning late last night without giving out any official statement.

From close friends of the state
treasurer's family it was learned that in the note left for his wife, after the shooting, he had revealed the fact that he was financially involved. But the family continued up to today to maintain complete silence as to the reason for the suicide attempt, or the extent
or nature of the financial difficulties
which impelled the attempt at suicide.

Whether any statement could be expected from official sources today was not made known.

Mr. Gilpatric was reported to be about the same at the hospital today
as the only change, if any could be noted, being a slight improvement, the hospital authorities stated.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—New bond offerings today totalled slightly more than $30,000,000, the largest being the $22,000,000 issue of external three-year six per cent gold debenture notes
of the Industrial Bank of Japan at 98 1/2 and interest at yield 6.27 per cent. The only other larger issue was the $5,000,000 six per cent gold
debenture bonds of the American Power & Light Co. at 94 1/2 to yield 6.35 per cent. The $75,000,000 offering of first mortgage five per cent bonds of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad is expected later in the week.

Stockholders of the Wickwire
Spencer Steel corporation will meet in Worcester, Mass., Sept. 25 to act on a plan of reorganization necessitated by a lack of sufficient working capital.

Recent heavy liquidation of Superior Oil is reported to have been for the account of the Atlantic Refining company which recently lost a $3-500,000 suit involving the sale of superior stock a few years ago.

Freight brokerage will be paid to bonafide brokers only and not to brokers maintained by shippers or con-signees since Aug. 15, the Inter-Coastal and Levant conference lines notified shippers today. The other conference lines expect to adopt the same practice either this month or in September. New bills of lading will be printed bearing the statement that brokerage is paid by the line to the broker with the strict understanding that no part of it shall revert to the shipper or consignee. It was charged by the lines the former practice vic-iated the shipping act of 1916 and was an attempt by the shippers to obtain a rebate under the usual tariff rates.

Subscription books for the $22,000,000
Industrial bank of Japan six per cent
notes were opened and immediately closed as the issue was promptly
over-subscribed.

TO AID SHENANDOAH IN MANOEUVRES

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 12.—The fuel
ship Patoka with the dirigible Shenandoah's mooring mast put to sea yesterday. It was the opinion aboard
the ship when she sailed that she was going to take some part in the weekend maneuvers in connection with the Shenandoah, since at present her duty is exclusively in connection with the airship.

The deduction here since last night's announcement from Littleport is that the former tanker will take position far at sea to serve in case of emergency but not to otherwise appear in the maneuvers.

SÃO PAULO REBELS ARE IN RETREAT

BUENOS AIRES, August 12.—São
Paulo rebels are retreating in the direction of Parna, under the pressure of Brazilian federal forces, according to official advices from Cunha, quoted by the Santos correspondent of La Nacion.

Continued arrests are being made at São Paulo of persons suspected of having been involved in the rebellion.

SPRINGFIELD MAN SHOT

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 13.—
Peter Payne, 32, of this city, is in Morey hospital with little chance of recovery as the result of being shot through the neck this morning by Patrolman Arthur F. Deppey

TWO PLACES IN BILLERICA VISITED BY ROBBERS LAST NIGHT

Safe Rifled in Office of Richardson Lumber Co.—Intruders Interrupted at Bay State Coal and Grain Company's Office by Street Railway Motorman

Two breaks last night in the offices of well known Billerica business concerns, one of which netted the robbers $18 in cash, are being investigated by the police today. The more serious of the breaks, occurring in the office of the Richardson Lumber Co., was not discovered until this morning when employees found the safe rifled and $38 in money missing. Chief Henry Livingston of the Billerica police was notified and is now working on the case, and it is his opinion that entrance to the lumber company's office was made previous to that in the Bay State Coal and Grain company at Bennett Hall station, where the intruders were interrupted before they could complete their job. The Richardson Lumber

20 SHOE CUTTERS QUIT JOBS AT HAVERHILL

HAVERHILL, Aug. 12.—Twenty cutters employed by the Rickard Shoe company, quit their jobs one by one today declaring dissatisfaction with their jobs because of a recent decision of Chairman Edwin Newkirk of the Haverhill shoe board refusing them an increase in rates. No strike, walkout or cessation of work has been sanctioned by the Shoe Workers' Protective union where the cutters are members. It is regarded as merely individual action on the part of the cutters and if the firm asks the union to fill their vacancies help will be supplied. If concerted action on the part of the crew can be proven, the action will constitute a violation of the local working agreement.

THIS DOG HAS PENCHANT FOR RUBBER TIRES

A big St. Bernard dog is being detained at the police station following several attempts to chew up automobile tires yesterday. The animal apparently is suffering from slight internal injuries as the result of being struck by an unknown machine, and while the injuries are not considered serious, the dog's attempt to nibble tires is causing no end of speculation.

This morning, Sgt. Fred Gutter, police chauffeur, presented the dog with a large and juicy portion of raw meat. But the St. Bernard declined the invitation to partake of this inviting viand. A discarded inner tube was then produced, and the "prisoner" went at it with evident self-satisfaction. And he didn't tire of it for a long time.

SAYS HE WAS ASSAULTED

Judge Enright Visits Premises Where Alleged Assault Took Place

Charging that he was assaulted by Police Officer Alfred J. Killoy during a liquor raid at 133 Crosby street on August 6 last, Thomas P. Lane of the above address appeared on the witness stand in district court this morning at a special hearing to tell his story of the alleged rough treatment accorded him by the officer while searching for liquor on the day mentioned.

Both sides produced several witnesses, Attorney J. Joseph Hennessy, counsel for the accused officer, calling upon Officers William Liston, William Keegan and Clyde Aldrich, who participated in the alleged raid on the Crosby street premises. Each of the defense witnesses testified that Officer Killoy did not assault nor attempt to assault the complainant, but conducted an orderly search of the premises against the protestations of the complainant.

Mr. Lane was represented by Attorneys Daniel J. and Joseph P. Donohue and asserted that Officer Killoy "roughed" him in attempting to search his person. After hearing several other witnesses for the complainant, Judge Enright visited the premises where the assault is said to have taken place and took the case under advisement.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 12.—Having sounded the battle cry of his party, John W. Davis, democratic presidential candidate, prepared today to begin an intensive drive over the country.

In a series of speeches, the first of which will be delivered at Columbus, O., on Aug. 25, Mr. Davis will treat in more detail those subjects which he announced in his acceptance address here last night, he views as the outstanding issues of the campaign.

Honesty in Government

First among these is honesty in government. The nominee devoted a major portion of his first address—delivered in a downpour of rain—to a discussion of the issue. He laid full responsibility upon the republican party for corruption in office and charged that some of those in high places in the administration had made an effort to weaken the effect of the exposures at Washington by crying not against the guilty but against

Fatally Shot Wife and Then Ended Own Life With Same Gun

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 12.—Christoph Mekalis, 45, fatally shot his wife, Mary, and then killed himself with the same gun at their home early today, in a rage, because his wife, angered because he stayed out until after midnight, locked him out. Mekalis also fired a wild shot at Mrs. Mary Averch, of Fall River, Mass., his sister-in-law, who was visiting the family.

When Mekalis found he could not get in the house he climbed through his wife's bedroom window. She fled to the hall, where he seized her by the throat and shot her in the head, according to Mrs. Averch. Mekalis then took his own life by firing a bullet in his brain. Mrs. Mekalis died an hour later in the hospital.

Mr. O'Sullivan Selected at Conference of Democratic Leaders of Fifth Congressional District—Nominee Calls for Complete and Whole-hearted Co-operation

At a conference of democratic leaders of the fifth congressional district cities and towns in Liberty hall, Memorial Auditorium, last night, Humphrey O'Sullivan was named as a candidate to oppose Hon. John Jacob Rogers who seeks re-election to the national house of representatives.

Mr. O'Sullivan, the unanimous choice of the meeting, personally accepted and expressed the belief that with a united front the democrats of the district can conduct a successful campaign.

"It is no easy task you have given me," said the candidate, "but the very fact that it is difficult makes it inviting. There must be complete and whole-hearted co-operation and I accept the nomination only upon the condition that all campaign expenses will be met through public subscriptions in the cities and towns of the district. It must be the co-operative plan, not the 'Christmas Tree' plan."

Also at the meeting it was decided to run sticker candidates under the democratic standard in the seventh and eighth state senatorial districts and in the 16th representative district. Attorney Cornelius J. O'Neill will be the candidate in the 15th district, with

George Percy Ellis Arraigned in District Court Today and Continued in $1000 Bonds Until Sept. 4—Was Arrested Here Last Night

George Percy Ellis of 512 Broadway was arraigned before Judge Enright on a charge of polygamy in district court this morning, and on a plea of not guilty he was continued to Sept. 4 with bonds set at $1000.

Ellis was arrested at his home last night by Police Officers Alfred J. Cooney and Francis Moore on the complaint of his first wife, a Brooklyn woman, who came here to corroborate the rumor that her husband had married again and was living in this city.

The original Mrs. Ellis first came here about three weeks ago, having received word through friends that her husband was in this city. In company with Officers Cooney and Moore, she went to Ellis' home in Broadway and found him alone. Unmoved by his wife's sudden appearance, he persistently denied that he knew her, but finally gave in, and stated that he thought a pre-separation in Brooklyn was legal. He admitted marrying a second time under the impression that his first marriage was to be annulled.

Ellis has been employed as a stock room man by the Lowell Gas Light company.

CAR TURNS SOMERSAULT, TWO MEN INJURED

DANIELSON, Conn., August 12.—Edward J. Burke of 29 Maxim street, Brockton, Mass., suffered a fracture of the right shoulder and his right leg was broken today when a touring car in which he was riding with a chauffeur turned a somersault on the Providence highway, a mile east of here.

The car skidded on a wet pavement. Willie Davies, the chauffeur, also of Brockton, was thrown clear of the car and escaped with minor cuts and bruises. Both were taken to the Day-Kimball hospital at Putnam. Neither is seriously injured.

PERSHING WAR SECRETARY ON EVE OF RETIREMENT

BY HARRY B. HUNT

WASHINGTON, August 12.—General John Pershing, who will quit the United States army next month, rounded out his military record late last week by taking a whirl at being secretary of war.

Whereupon the whole responsibility for Uncle Sam's armed forces devolved upon the chief of staff, who is Pershing.

He at once became acting secretary, and in that capacity "held the fort" during the absence of his civilian superiors.

On September 13, Pershing's 61st birthday anniversary, the "General of the American Armies" will be retired automatically to the retired list and his active army service will end.

Following a visit to his sister and his son at the old home in Lincoln, Neb., after retirement, Pershing will pitch again into the work of shaping up his long-awaited history and memoirs of the World War.

Had Frank Lowden not refused the republican nomination for vice president, Clem Shaver, democratic national chairman in charge of the Davis-Bryan campaign, would have had the chance of his life to "get even."

Not that Clem has anything personal against Lowden. He hasn't. But he has an awful grudge against Pullman.

And as Lowden, through his wife, who was a daughter of George Pullman, inherited a large interest in the sleeping-car business, he inherited also

a considerable part of Shaver's animosity.

Shaver's job of running a national campaign is complicated by the fact that he simply cannot sleep on trains. No matter how sleepy he may be, as soon as he is shut in behind the awning green curtains of a Pullman boudoir he loses all ability to slumber.

The best he ever gets out of it is a fitful night-march dose, which leaves him more wearied than before.

As a result, Shaver will stick rather close to Washington and national democratic headquarters during the campaign. Where his impersonal messages won't do, he'll send out a lieutenant.

To such extent as he can use a radio or airplane in long-distance managing, he may utilize them. But the fewer overnight trips via Pullman, the better Shaver will like it.

By contrast, William Butler, who tried to have Lowden picked as running mate for Coolidge and who is running the Coolidge-Davies handwagon, dearly loves Pullman travel.

He jumps about the country with the same gay abandon exhibited by Will Hays, the boy prodigy from Indiana, four years ago.

Butler makes overnight jumps at least once or twice a week between Chicago and New York, Washington and Chicago and Chicago and Boston. And he says he doesn't expect to do much sitting still between now and the first of November.

And sleep? Why, on a train is about the only chance he gets to sleep!

The one party without a candidate in the campaign this fall is the National Woman's party. To decide what is to be done about this situation, an "election conference" of woman's party leaders has been called for Westport, N. Y., August 15-17.

Alice Paul of Washington, who issued the call for the conference, says the old parties are not nominating enough women for congress.

The Westport meeting will undertake to determine what is to be done about this. Women candidates for congress on a woman's party ticket may result.

Substantial salads are delicious for luncheon, but out of place for dinner. This cheese salad may be out of the ordinary and spicy, but that reason as well as one or two others.

Molded Cheese Salad
Three-fourths cup grated cheese, ¼ teaspoon mustard, 1 cup chopped nuts, 1 cup whipping cream, ½ teaspoon onion juice, ½ teaspoon celery pepper, paprika, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, 1 tablespoon minced parsley.

Soften gelatin in four tablespoons cold water and melt over boiling water. Whip cream until stiff, fold in cheese, nuts and seasoning and dissolved gelatin. Turn into a mold and put on ice to chill and become firm.

Remove from mold and cut in slices. Serve on a bed of lettuce hearts with French dressing made with minced pimientos.

Watermelon Cones

Many people serve iced tea or coffee for the summer dinner rather than a hot drink.

Watermelon cones make even a rather poor meal into something refreshing and delicious.

Watermelon Cones
Cut the red part of a melon into cone shaped pieces. Dip in hot honey syrup. The syrup must not boil. Pack cones in the mold of an ice cream freezer and pack in half salt and half ice. Let stand one or two hours, depending on the make of your freezer, and serve three or four cones to each person. Orange juice can be added to the syrup.

Boil 1 cup sugar and 1-3 cup water five minutes to make the syrup. Remove from the fire, add fruit and let stand until the fruit is saturated with the syrup. If you boil the syrup too long a brittle coating will be formed over the melon.

Herbert Arbo, 5, of 28 Shafter street was struck by an automobile operated by George A. Evans of Vermont avenue about 6.30 o'clock last night and received injuries to his foot which necessitated treatment at the Corporation hospital. The accident happened in Shafter street, near Broadway, the machine passing over the boy's foot. He was released from the hospital after an X-ray picture of the injured member was taken.

GRANDMOTHER OF 80 HAS HAIR BOBBED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—First Miss Sylvia Smith King, 20, had her hair bobbed.

Then her mother, Dr. Cora Smith King, 50, submitted to the same treatment.

Mrs. Emma Barnes Smith, 80, yesterday her grandmother, sat on the same chair.

For a moment only, as the shears began their work, eighty felt the misgivings alien to twenty or even fifty.

"I'm only doing it," she admonished her daughter and granddaughter, "because you insisted it would be more comfortable."

IN NEW YORK

By Stephen Haganagan

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Nineteen years ago, Isadore Plasker came from Russia to become an employe at the Green Room club, an organization of men of the theatre. His name was too long so he was rechristened "Sam."

Today, it is said, members of the organization, "on their uppers" owe him at least $5000 and still call him Sam. His devotion to members of the club amounts to reverence. Their troubles are his.

He started as an assistant porter. Now he is a waiter and chief card room attendant.

Years ago a prominent actor living at the club gave Sam some old clothes and worn shoes. Five years later days of prosperity had passed, and the prominent actor was destitute, not an uncommon lot at times for members of the profession. He awakened one morning to find the old clothes and shoes he had, given Sam neatly repaired and generally rehabilitated.

The performer has today climbed to even more successful heights. To mention his name would be unfair.

At one time when the club was in financial difficulties, Sam offered to give the $1000 that would make it solvent.

In days of rope fire escapes, when in case of conflagration the imperiled clung to the ropes, jumped out the window, and "turned to the left," one of the club members suggested to Sam that the fire escapes had not been tested in a long time and that the ropes on many of them might be rotten.

A late homecoming that night found Sam dangling from the end of the last rope fire escape. He had tested them all at the risk of his life, after his regular work was done. He tested from the top instead of the bottom.

Sam worked an average of 16 hours a day for the first seven years he was at the club without a holiday. Then he asked for an afternoon off

"to get married." It was granted. Members of the club have never been able to decide just when and how Sam courted his wife.

Of $750 Sam had saved for his wedding day, he spent $350 furnishing an apartment and the remaining $400 for a party he gave to club members who attended his wedding.

Sam never has had time to learn to read or write. But he can remember the dinner orders of any number of guests. Never once has he forgotten, club members relate.

He has a wealthy aunt in Los Angeles who has offered him an annual income if he would go to the California city and make his home. Sam refuses. How could the Green Room club get along without him?

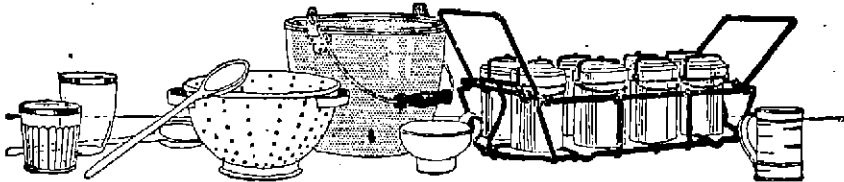

The members can't answer.

CHAPLAIN CALLS LEE MEMORIAL U. S. FLIERS TO MONUMENT TO TREASON RESUME TRIP

Rev. Mr. Shergur Speaks at Unveiling of Lincoln Memorial in Boston—Mayor Curley Calls K. K. K. "Collection of Mongrels"

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Dedication of the Lee Memorial to the other generals of the confederacy being carved in the face of Stone Mountain in Georgia as a "monument to treason" and a "collection of mongrels" which the Ku Klux Klan, as an American and contrary to the spirit of the Great Emancipation, were the outstanding features of the speaking at the dedication yesterday afternoon of the memorial tablet to Abraham Lincoln erected at Providence and Bromfield streets.

Where Lincoln Spoke

The place marks the spot where once stood Washington hall where in 1843 Lincoln, then an obscure congressman from Illinois, on his only visit to Boston, addressed a young men's club rally advocating the election of General Zachary Taylor for president. These historical facts were unearthed through the researches of a Boston newspaperman, Alexander Corbett, and brought to the attention of the committee on historical sites. The latter arranged for the erection of the tablet, which is a simple bronze affair by the sculptor Parham, showing Lincoln in profile. The inscription is "Abraham Lincoln, first visited Boston in 1843 spoke at a Whig rally Sept. 16 in Washington hall, which was on this spot. Placed by the City of Boston 1924."

The location is temporary as a new building is now in the course of erection and the permanent outer walls facing Province street, in which the tablet will rest, have not yet been built.

The exercises were conducted from a temporary grandstand, with chairs for G. A. R. veterans and their friends placed on the "rough hewn" concrete of Province street, now being reconstructed at the widening. The historic old steps leading to Bownston street formed a natural gallery for the crowd that gathered.

plimentary dinner. Later the Massachusetts department officers gave an exemplification of the Grand Army of the Republic ritual.

When the Connecticut delegation passed the reviewing stand, they shouted "More power to you" in response to General Pershing's salute.

Vermont turned out with green sprigs, a group of 40 men. Maine has about the same number as did New Hampshire, and the Rhode Islanders looked like younger men with neatly blue coats and white trousers.

Massachusetts was the rear of the column, with a turnout of 300 men, among them a veteran who marched on crutches, hobbling over the entire line of march.

March in Hills

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The Grand Army of the Republic marched again today. Survivors of the two millions who turned out at Lincoln's call sixty years ago, today made a show of strength in a drizzle of rain that was inspiring.

Commander-in-chief Gaylord M. Saltzberger headed an army that had the grave and the gay; the sturdy lined and the trim veterans of the Civil war. Gray old boys, some of them, pushing their lungs to life, or playing away at a drum; soldier-faced veterans who regarded the annual reunion as a sacred rite. Their ranks were fewer by 10,000 than a year ago, but they marched leapt up the cadence at ninety years.

Those who rode because of infirmities were more numerous than before. They were prompt in getting under way, and were off on the line of march a little more than a mile long through the narrow streets with the rain falling as they went. The department of Illinois headed by Commander Philip Smith, had the honor place among the departments as the first to be formed, and passed in review by Major-General Pershing, Governor Cox, Mayor Curley and other officials half a mile from the city center.

Then came the departments of Wisconsin and of Pennsylvania, the latter making a brave showing with nearly 200 veterans in line, some with the McCellan caps of war-time, a few with the ragged coats of their campaigns. The life and drum corps of the Iowa department, although the drummer found he could make little noise with his dampened instrument.

Ohio, New York and Connecticut, with one of the old boys carrying umbrellas, followed by New Jersey and Maine.

A group of veterans who had come from California and Nevada in larger numbers than for some years to press the candidacy for national commander of their department, E. L. Hawks, passed the word along Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont, formed a New England division that preceded the department of the Potomac.

So it went. The veterans marching

the tablet in the absence of Judge Thomas H. Dowd.

In the invocation the Rev. Charles L. Shergue, chaplain-in-chief of the G. A. R., described the Georgia memorial to the generals of the confederacy as a "monument to treason," which would be forgotten while the memorial to Lincoln would live.

"Scavengers of the battlefield," was Mayor Curley's designation of the Ku Kluxers. They were not known in 1861-1865, or in the World war, or in any other war in which the country was engaged, he said. Lincoln did not limit the enjoyment of the constitutional rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness to any one section of the community, race, creed or color. Lincoln recognized but one uniform, that of blue, worn by 2,500,000 American soldiers, which left the faces exposed, not masked, he said.

Blind Leader Speaks

"This unnatural un-American collection of mongrels must be destroyed for the good of the country," he declared, and loud applause greeted him. He ended by accepting the tablet, saying it would be an inspiration to every future citizen and would mark another sacred spot in Boston.

The sightless commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., General Gaylord M. Saltzberger, was tenderly led to the platform and echoed the denunciation of the K. K. K. pronounced by the mayor.

"It violates the very spirit of Lincoln, which was intolerance," he said, and then paid the mayor the high compliment of saying, "I have known him for 12 years and he is the best type of Lincoln I have met anywhere in the United States."

To the strains of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," Miss Hazel E. Lurie, daughter of Judge Lurie, drew aside the American flag that shielded the tablet. Then the band played "The Star Spangled Banner" with the assistance of the three choruses for monies.

by status formed abbreviated cross sections of the war campaigns.

The rain increased as the march began, but the veterans held their places in line. Bands blared out with "Trump, Trump, Trump, The Boys Are Marching," and the old soldiers returned the cheers of the crowds with a wave of the canes that were helping them.

The department of Maryland came along with an escort of young men who discharged a miniature gun. Kansas presented a front of giant sunflowers.

Aged wives accompanied some of the veterans and daughters and sons assisted others.

South Dakota kept up the representation of state departments, but with only five men. Delaware, Missouri, Oregon—comrades of negro blood marching arm in arm with those of white—kept step to the life and drum corps that was sounding out "While We Go Marching Through Georgia," Kentucky, West Virginia, Washington and Alaska with the banners of their posts or of their states, and the national colors all held high, preceded the southern group of states.

Vets Cut Up Jigs

George A. Hosley, national chief of staff, of Abraham Lincoln post, Charlestown, indignantly at improper displays of flags spread over the tops all sun-gate in front of the grand stand and, assisted by the police, forced the removal of the flags.

At the reviewing stands where General Brewster and the civic officials exchanged salutes with the marching veterans, they were amused to see some of the old boys cutting up like to show that they were still able to step out.

In all, it was estimated that about 4000 of the old boys marched.

ALLAN J. COBHAM WINS KING'S CUP

MARTLESHAM, Eng., Aug. 12.—Allan J. Cobham, flying a Fuma plane today won the king's cup race over a 550-mile course around Great Britain, in which ten planes competed on a handicap basis. Cobham completed the course in nine hours, three minutes, 12 seconds, but after the deduction of his handicap allowance his net time was computed at five hours, 59 minutes.

Capt. N. MacMillan, piloting a sea-plane, was second in the net time of six hours, 16 minutes, 41 seconds. Alan S. Butler, in a DH-37, was third in six hours, 22 minutes.

Ten thousand people were guests at the wedding of a rabbi's daughter in Rumania.

MARTLESHAM, Eng., Aug. 12.—Allan J. Cobham, flying a Fuma plane today won the king's cup race over a 550-mile course around Great Britain, in which ten planes competed on a handicap basis. Cobham completed the course in nine hours, three minutes, 12 seconds, but after the deduction of his handicap allowance his net time was computed at five hours, 59 minutes.

Capt. N. MacMillan, piloting a sea-plane, was second in the net time of six hours, 16 minutes, 41 seconds. Alan S. Butler, in a DH-37, was third in six hours, 22 minutes.

Ten thousand people were guests at the wedding of a rabbi's daughter in Rumania.

Rev. Mr. Shergur Speaks at Unveiling of Lincoln Memorial in Boston—Mayor Curley Calls K. K. K. "Collection of Mongrels"

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Dedication of the Lee Memorial to the other generals of the confederacy being carved in the face of Stone Mountain in Georgia as a "monument to treason" and a "collection of mongrels" which the Ku Klux Klan, as an American and contrary to the spirit of the Great Emancipation, were the outstanding features of the speaking at the dedication yesterday afternoon of the memorial tablet to Abraham Lincoln erected at Providence and Bromfield streets.

The place marks the spot where once stood Washington hall where in 1843 Lincoln, then an obscure congressman from Illinois, on his only visit to Boston, addressed a young men's club rally advocating the election of General Zachary Taylor for president. These historical facts were unearthed through the researches of a Boston newspaperman, Alexander Corbett, and brought to the attention of the committee on historical sites. The latter arranged for the erection of the tablet, which is a simple bronze affair by the sculptor Parham, showing Lincoln in profile. The inscription is "Abraham Lincoln, first visited Boston in 1843 spoke at a Whig rally Sept. 16 in Washington hall, which was on this spot. Placed by the City of Boston 1924."

The location is temporary as a new building is now in the course of erection and the permanent outer walls facing Province street, in which the tablet will rest, have not yet been built.

The exercises were conducted from a temporary grandstand, with chairs for G. A. R. veterans and their friends placed on the "rough hewn" concrete of Province street, now being reconstructed at the widening. The historic old steps leading to Bownston street formed a natural gallery for the crowd that gathered.

plimentary dinner. Later the Massachusetts department officers gave an exemplification of the Grand Army of the Republic ritual.

When the Connecticut delegation passed the reviewing stand, they shouted "More power to you" in response to General Pershing's salute.

Vermont turned out with green sprigs, a group of 40 men. Maine has about the same number as did New Hampshire, and the Rhode Islanders looked like younger men with neatly blue coats and white trousers.

Massachusetts was the rear of the column, with a turnout of 300 men, among them a veteran who marched on crutches, hobbling over the entire line of march.

March in Hills

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The Grand Army of the Republic marched again today. Survivors of the two millions who turned out at Lincoln's call sixty years ago, today made a show of strength in a drizzle of rain that was inspiring.

Commander-in-chief Gaylord M. Saltzberger headed an army that had the grave and the gay; the sturdy lined and the trim veterans of the Civil war. Gray old boys, some of them, pushing their lungs to life, or playing away at a drum; soldier-faced veterans who regarded the annual reunion as a sacred rite. Their ranks were fewer by 10,000 than a year ago, but they marched leapt up the cadence at ninety years.

Those who rode because of infirmities were more numerous than before. They were prompt in getting under way, and were off on the line of march a little more than a mile long through the narrow streets with the rain falling as they went. The department of Illinois headed by Commander Philip Smith, had the honor place among the departments as the first to be formed, and passed in review by Major-General Pershing, Governor Cox, Mayor Curley and other officials half a mile from the city center.

Then came the departments of Wisconsin and of Pennsylvania, the latter making a brave showing with nearly 200 veterans in line, some with the McCellan caps of war-time, a few with the ragged coats of their campaigns. The life and drum corps of the Iowa department, although the drummer found he could make little noise with his dampened instrument.

Ohio, New York and Connecticut, with one of the old boys carrying umbrellas, followed by New Jersey and Maine.

A group of veterans who had come from California and Nevada in larger numbers than for some years to press the candidacy for national commander of their department, E. L. Hawks, passed the word along Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Vermont, formed a New England division that preceded the department of the Potomac.

So it went. The veterans marching

the tablet in the absence of Judge Thomas H. Dowd.

In the invocation the Rev. Charles L. Shergue, chaplain-in-chief of the G. A. R., described the Georgia memorial to the generals of the confederacy as a "monument to treason," which would be forgotten while the memorial to Lincoln would live.

"Scavengers of the battlefield," was Mayor Curley's designation of the Ku Kluxers. They were not known in 1861-1865, or in the World war, or in any other war in which the country was engaged, he said. Lincoln did not limit the enjoyment of the constitutional rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness to any one section of the community, race, creed or color. Lincoln recognized but one uniform, that of blue, worn by 2,500,000 American soldiers, which left the faces exposed, not masked, he said.

Blind Leader Speaks

"This unnatural un-American collection of mongrels must be destroyed for the good of the country," he declared, and loud applause greeted him. He ended by accepting the tablet, saying it would be an inspiration to every future citizen and would mark another sacred spot in Boston.

The sightless commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., General Gaylord M. Saltzberger, was tenderly led to the platform and echoed the denunciation of the K. K. K. pronounced by the mayor.

"It violates the very spirit of Lincoln, which was intolerance," he said, and then paid the mayor the high compliment of saying, "I have known him for 12 years and he is the best type of Lincoln I have met anywhere in the United States."

To the strains of "My Country 'Tis of Thee," Miss Hazel E. Lurie, daughter of Judge Lurie, drew aside the American flag that shielded the tablet. Then the band played "The Star Spangled Banner" with the assistance of the three choruses for monies.

by status formed abbreviated cross sections of the war campaigns.

The rain increased as the march began, but the veterans held their places in line. Bands blared out with "Trump, Trump, Trump, The Boys Are Marching," and the old soldiers returned the cheers of the crowds with a wave of the canes that were helping them.

The department of Maryland came along with an escort of young men who discharged a miniature gun. Kansas presented a front of giant sunflowers.

Aged wives accompanied some of the veterans and daughters and sons assisted others.

South Dakota kept up the representation of state departments, but with only five men. Delaware, Missouri, Oregon—comrades of negro blood marching arm in arm with those of white—kept step to the life and drum corps that was sounding out "While We Go Marching Through Georgia," Kentucky, West Virginia, Washington and Alaska with the banners of their posts or of their states, and the national colors all held high, preceded the southern group of states.

Vets Cut Up Jigs

George A. Hosley, national chief of staff, of Abraham Lincoln post, Charlestown, indignantly at improper displays of flags spread over the tops all sun-gate in front of the grand stand and, assisted by the police, forced the removal of the flags.

At the reviewing stands where General Brewster and the civic officials exchanged salutes with the marching veterans, they were amused to see some of the old boys cutting up like to show that they were still able to step out.

In all, it was estimated that about 4000 of the old boys marched.

those who opposed them. "I charge the republican party with corruption in administration," Mr. Davis declared, "with favoritism with privileged classes in legislation. I also charge it with division in counsel and impotence in action."

Passing to a discussion of economics, Mr. Davis accused the administration of offering the nation tax bills with a desire to favor a few possessors of swollen incomes and declared that in the enactment of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act, there had been an unblinking return to the evil days of rewarding party support and political contributions with legislative favoritism.

Foreign Policy Assailed

The administration's foreign policy was denounced by the candidate who appeared that in this, too, there had appeared the symptoms of a "policy paralysis." He promised that if he became president of the United States, America would sit as an equal among equals whenever she sat at all in conference with the other nations of the world. With respect to the League of Nations, he said the democratic party could not accept the dictum, unauthorized by an expression of popular will, that the league is a closed incident so far as America is concerned. He declared the day could and would come when this great question would finally be lifted entirely above the place of partisan politics and when the voice of public approval would find means to make itself heard. The world court was endorsed and Mr. Davis declared he deemed it the duty of the chief executive to encourage the "official" by lifting entirely above the place of partisan politics and when the voice of public approval would find means to make itself heard. The world court was endorsed and Mr. Davis declared he deemed it the duty of the chief executive to encourage the "official" by lifting entirely above the place of partisan politics and when the voice of public approval would find means to make itself heard.

Declares For Religious Liberty

While omitting direct reference to the Ku Klux Klan the democratic standard bearer made a solemn declaration of religious liberty and told his audience that every right-thinking American must endorse such a declaration.

Referring to any possible criticism concerning his past career and conduct as a lawyer, Mr. Davis said he had no apology to offer for either.

The argument that you are a Wall Street man in an opprobrious sense, Senator Walsh said, is without merit as is the assertion that your nomination is a Wall Street nomination. It was effected without any support from Wall Street. "Legations popularly believed to be under the influence of Wall Street, neither industry or over-reliance on Wall Street can rise to such heights as to charge that the convention from which your credentials came was bossed by anyone."

Trounch Drenched

Although he received a drenching as did many in the crowd of 50,000 to 70,000 persons who heard him speak, Mr. Davis apparently had suffered no ill effects. He was rather tired when he had concluded and was driven immediately to his home and retired early.

Late today he will say good-bye again to his neighbors and friends and leave for New York where he will have further conferences with party leaders before visiting national headquarters at Washington next week. Before going to the capital, however, Mr. Davis probably will pay a visit to Governor Silzer of New Jersey.

Before his notification last night, further progress was made in building up a campaign organization, the national committee was reorganized with the selection of Glen L. Shaver, of this state, as chairman.

James W. Gerard of New York, former ambassador to Germany, was elected treasurer of the committee and Jesse H. Jones, a Houston, Tex., banker, was selected to head the finance committee.

Walsh's Notification Speech

Mr. Davis was hailed as a leader of "character, training and experience" for the presidency, in the address of Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana here yesterday formally notifying him of his nomination to head the democratic ticket.

Tried by the touchstone, the acid test, Mr. Walsh said, the nominee had been adjudged by all fair-minded men as a liberal and a progressive.

"In the 62nd congress," he continued, "you were conspicuous in the advocacy of every measure that served to differentiate the reactionaries from the progressive. You assailed government by injunction, not forth with a great wealth of illustrations the abuse of that process and of the power to punish for contempt, and supported with marked ability and eloquence the effort, subsequently successful, to remove or minimize the opportunity for oppressing labor through resort to that remedy. In the same congress you supported with zeal and learning the Webb-Kenyon bill, the farthest advance then considered toward suppressing through federal action the unspeakable evils of the liquor traffic. The entire program of remedial legislation entered upon when the Wilson administration assumed control of our national government had your cordial support."

After summarizing Mr. Davis' record in advocating progressive legislation and later supporting it before the supreme court, Senator Walsh declared the argument "that you are a Wall Street man, in an opprobrious sense, is without merit, as is the assertion that your nomination is a Wall Street nomination."

"Let the campaign then be waged," he said, "upon the political issues which divide the major political parties. These I conceive to be, in the main, four: Honesty in government; revision of the tariff; the maintenance in principle of the present income tax law, and frank co-operation with the nations of Europe for the restoration of peace and the revival of industry to ensure an increased demand for our surplus, mainly of agricultural products."

Senator Walsh said the "head and front" of Mr. Davis' "offending" had been nothing more or less than that since retiring to private life he had been employed professionally by "certain business interests" whose policy had aroused "quite general indignation."

"It is not advanced," he said, "that you have represented them in any capacity as legal adviser or as their advocate before the courts. It is not charged that you have been either the defender of or apologist for their misdeeds in public affairs or through the press, or that you have forwarded or attempted to forward their plans before either legislative assembly or administrative officers."

You have been retained, as it is understood, to conduct such services as a lawyer may legitimately perform. "A lawyer may honorably defend one accused of murder, or treason, or of defrauding widows and orphans without suspicion of sympathy with such heinous crime or with violators of the law generally, or, on the other hand, then does a lawyer forfeit the regard in which he would otherwise be held by accepting employment from those whose career is open to censure on grounds of public policy or who may have been guilty of even the gravest violations of the law, declaring and enforcing the same?"

Unjustifiable Inference

"It is an unjustifiable inference that your views on matters of public concern approximate those of your employers or that called to high public office you would, upon any consideration, accommodate your own to theirs or grant them might but justice. You owe them nothing, not even gratitude. They paid you. Your powerful clients never discovered you until your fame as a lawyer was firmly established, until your pre-eminence at the bar was nationally and internationally recognized. I am sure your gratitude is reserved for those humble friends who took a chance on you when you were a struggling lawyer, eager to demonstrate your ability, not unproved."

Senator Walsh gave Mr. Davis, as a member of the house judiciary committee, much credit for the Clayton act, "sometimes referred to as Senator Munka's Charlie."

"A feature of your congressional career," he continued, "marked by conspicuous public service, has a peculiar significance at this time when honesty in government assumes a place of first importance in the campaign now opening."

"I remind those interested that under your direction the house of representatives exposed the infamy of representatives exposed the infamy of Archbold as a judge of the court of commerce and that as one of the managers on the part of the house in the trial before the senate your conduct of it was marked by distinguished ability."

"WELCOME HOME, JOHN!"

Vision Unhindered

The career of Mr. Davis, the senator said, had not hindered his vision. "Your practice has been general," he said, "one day speaking for some great and possibly ruthless corporation, the next for an impoverished contender against the massed wealth of such of the victims of its ruthlessness; today appearing for interests demanding the process of the law in some industrial war, tomorrow for organized labor striking for living wages or individuals charged with illegal acts in aid of a strike."

"Even more fortunately you were privileged to speak for five years before the supreme court of the United States in the capacity of solicitor general for all the people of this mighty nation against the contempters of the law of all classes, high and low, against the most odious trusts and monopolies, against the pillars of the public wealth and the insidious robber who piles his nefarious trade of deception and fraud through the mails. Your professional engagements peculiarly fit you, they in no sense disqualify you for eminent service as president of the United States. The anthracite trust, the lumber trust, the shoe machinery trust, the steel trust, found you an antagonist worthy of the highest talent they could command. You fought a good, though losing fight, to uphold the first child labor law and a winning one to maintain the Adamson law."

Secretary Walsh vigorously attacked the record of the republican administration, and spoke of the "shocking scandals" which had "rocked the country." He was especially sharp in his attack on officials connected with the oil leases and the administration, and the republican party with indifference toward them. Concluding his address with an outline of agricultural and tariff issues, he declared the democratic party offered a candidate in whom there "will be general pride."

Speech of Acceptance

The supreme need of the hour is to bring back to the people confidence in their government, John W. Davis declared last night in his address accepting the democratic presidential nomination.

Formally putting under way the national campaign of 1924, he indicted the republican party "in its organized capacity for having shaken public confidence to its very foundations," and laid against it these specific charges: "Having exhibited deeper and more widespread corruption than any that this generation of Americans has been called upon to witness."

"Complicity in the face of that corruption and with ill will towards the efforts of honest men to expose it. 'Gross favoritism to the privileged and utter disregard of the unprotected. 'Indifference to world peace and humanity in the conduct of foreign affairs."

"Disorganization, division and ineffectiveness."

Declaring that on the record he would ask the voters of the country to pass judgment of condemnation, "as a warning to all men who aspire to public office, that dishonesty, either in thought, word or deed, will not be tolerated in America," Mr. Davis said the democratic party was prepared to offer in exchange a "program based on democratic principles and guaranteed by a record of democratic performance."

The chief things to which he pledged himself were:

An honest, impartial, and, so far as human wisdom will permit, a just government.

Opposition to any challenge—"organized or unorganized, under whatever name or in whatever character it may appear"—of the constitutional guarantees of religious freedom.

Enforcement of all laws, including the prohibition amendment and statutes enacted under it.

Agricultural aid through revision of the tariff; governmental assistance in extending the co-operative marketing principle and by other means.

Reduction in taxation and revision of the tariff.

Economy in government, but not of the kind that deprives government employees of pay equal to that they would receive from private employers for similar work.

Approval of the world court.

SEN. REED TO SUPPORT TICKET

Missouri Man Will Support Democratic Ticket, State and National

Pleased With Mr. Davis' Attitude on the League of Nations

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 12.—James A. Reed, United States senator from Missouri, will support the democratic ticket, state and national, he declared in a statement here today. Senator Reed who is recovering from an illness of several weeks, made the statement after he had read the address of John W. Davis, accepting the democratic presidential nomination, and after he had been asked whether there was any truth to rumors that he would not support the ticket.

The Missouri senator said that although he did not agree with Mr. Davis' views on certain international problems, he understood from the "pledged" address that he had entered into the League of Nations with the people have, by a vote, approved such a course."

Mr. Reed said that "with that attitude, I am content."

League of Nations or from any other source, to lessen the prospect of war; to promote disarmament and to advance the well being of mankind."

To maintain the means of adequate national defense "until reason is permitted to take the place of force."

In opposition to the impairment, "either by injunction or by any other device" of the rights of labor to organize and to bargain collectively for an adequate wage earned under "healthful conditions."

The protection of women and children from human greed and unequal laws.

Prevention of child labor and suppression of the illicit traffic in soul-destroying drugs.

To Conserve Natural Resources

Conservation of all of the natural resources of the country.

"Gratefully" to the "veterans of our wars, especially to those who were stricken and wounded in the country's service and whose confidence has been so cruelly and corruptly abused."

Finally, Mr. Davis said he entered the campaign free from pledge or promise to any man and would "hold it so to the end." Also he declared that when it became necessary to raise funds for the conduct of the campaign they would be contributed "with this understanding and this only: that neither the democratic party nor I as its leader have any favors for sale."

Expressing in general terms his approval of the proposals contained in the platform adopted by the convention which nominated him, the candidate said he could not be expected at this moment to discuss them in detail or to outline the methods by which they are to be carried into effect.

There will be time enough for that," he said.

He said he had no candidates today but the democratic party said, if they will it so, the people of the United States.

Attacks G. O. P. Record

Much of his address was given over to a measured attack upon the record of the republican party during the past four years. Recounting what he termed "the unmitigated scandals of a melancholy years," Mr. Davis assailed the executive branch of government for "hurried efforts to suppress testimony, to discourage witnesses, to pay upon investigators and, finally, to trump up indictment, to frighten and deter the investigators from their pursuit."

He charged that in the enactment of the present tariff law there was "an unblinking return to the evil days of rewarding party support and political contributions with legislative favors." Also he charged inability of the administration to function due to disagreement between the president and the republican majority in congress to agree on public questions.

Declaring that it was not in domestic matters alone that "the symptoms of this creeping paralysis" have appeared, Mr. Davis said that not only have executive recommendations for adherence to the world court been "flouted and ignored, but no evidence is in sight that the republican party as now constituted can frame and carry to its conclusion any definite and consistent foreign policy."

"With the reconstruction of Europe weighing heavily on the world," he said, "with American economic life dwarfed and stunted by the interruption of world commerce; with the agricultural regions of the west shivering into bankruptcy because of the loss of their foreign markets; we have stood by as powerless spectators, offering to the world nothing but private charity and individual advice."

Denounces Bigotry

Moving from his attack on the opposition to a discussion of other issues, Mr. Davis moved to the last his utterances on the subject which was the basis of a bitter fight in the New York convention—religious freedom. Without referring by name to any organizations, the nominee said he wished to "denounce bigotry, intolerance and race prejudice as alien to the spirit of America" and promised that when elected, he would "set up no standard of religious faith or racial origin" as a qualification for any of the thousands of offices he would be called upon to fill.

To Aid Farmer

For the aid of the farmer, Mr. Davis said the democrats proposed to "set to work" the discriminations which the tariff makes against him shall be removed; that this government by doing its share toward a European settlement shall help to revive and enlarge his foreign markets; that the forces of government shall be put actively to work to lend assistance to endeavors for extending to the principle of co-operative marketing; that when widespread distress has overtaken him, every power which the government enjoys under the constitution shall be exerted in his aid.

He is entitled, too, to demand an adequate service of transportation at reasonable rates," the candidate said. "In spite of the failures and shortcomings of existing laws, this is an ideal which I cannot believe to be beyond the reach of attainment."

Foreign World Court

Turning to the field of foreign affairs, Mr. Davis told his audience that the democratic party favored the world court "in sincerity and not merely for campaign purposes," regarding it as a real advance toward the peaceful settlement of international disputes.

As to the League of Nations, the candidate declared that he did not authorize by any expression of popular will that the League of Nations is a closed incident so far as we are concerned. Adding that at no time had he believed that the entrance of America into the league could occur, he would occur or should occur until the common judgment of the American people was ready for the step, he said he was "seriously confident that a day would come when the voice of public approval would find means to make itself heard."

Promising that if he became president of the United States of America he would sit as "an equal among equals" whenever she sits at all in international gatherings, Mr. Davis said he could not reconcile it with his ideas of the dignity of a great nation to be represented at such gatherings only "under the poor pretense of 'unofficial observers.'"

SHAVEN UNANIMOUSLY CHOSEN CHAIRMAN

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 12.—Reorganization of the democratic national committee was perfected yesterday with the unanimous selection of Glen L. Shaver of Fairmont, as chairman.

James W. Gerard of New York, former ambassador to Germany, was named treasurer and Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri, Frank S. Hague of New Jersey and Suel Amidon of Kansas, were elected vice chairmen. Charles Greenhouse of Indiana, was re-elected secretary and Earl New of Indiana, was made executive secretary. Jesse Jones, a Texas banker, was named chairman of the finance committee which will rule campaign

STRIKING SENTENCES OF DAVIS' ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

The allied forces of greed and dishonesty, of self-seeking and partisanship, of prejudice and ignorance, threaten today as they have rarely done before, the perpetuity of our national ideals, traditions and institutions.

There has developed an alarming tendency to take the administration of the law out of the hands of constituted officials and to execute its processes by methods little different from those of private revenge.

To bring the government back to the people is, and always has been the doctrine of democracy. Today, in addition, it is the supreme need of the hour to bring back to the people confidence in their government.

An executive who cannot or will not lead, a congress that cannot or will not follow—how can good government exist under such conditions?

The civic unit in America is not the dollar, but the individual man.

Democracy in government and democracy in industry alike demand the free recognition of the right of all those who work, in whatever rank or place, to share in all decisions that affect their welfare.

Recent experience has proved, if proof were needed, that an effort to help the farmer by a tariff on his products is the baldest political false pretense.

Government employees are justly entitled to pay equal to that they would receive from private employers for similar work. Every business executive knows that underpaid service is the dearest of all.

We are resolved that the laying and collecting of taxes shall remain a public and not a private business and that monopoly shall find no section of the law behind which to hide itself.

We favor the World Court in sincerity and not merely for campaign purposes. We do not accept the dictum, unauthorized by any expression of popular will, that the League of Nations is a closed incident so far as we are concerned.

Nor can I reconcile it with my ideas of the dignity of a great nation to be represented at international gatherings under the poor pretense of "unofficial observation." If I become president of the United States America will sit as an equal among equals whenever she sits at all.

We must face the humiliating fact that we have a government that does not dare speak its mind beyond the three-mile limit.

An administrative officer is no more entitled to choose what statutes he will or will not enforce than is a citizen to choose what laws he will or will not obey.

No disaster that the mind can picture equals in its hideous possibilities the coming in this country of a separation of its citizenship into discordant groups along racial or religious lines.

Into my hands will fall, when I am elected, the power to appoint thousands of persons to office. No selection to be made by me will be dictated, inspired or influenced by the race or creed of the appointee.

It is known of all men that the nomination which you tender me was not of my own seeking. It is not for me to reject so clear a call to duty. I am happy, however, in the thought that it finds me free from pledge or promise to any living man. I shall hold it so to the end.

Humphrey O'Sullivan To Oppose Cong. Rogers

The senatorial aspirant yet to be named, Mr. O'Neill ran two years ago and without any great amount of campaigning nearly captured one of the three available seats in the district. This year he is out to win and in a brief speech last night outlined some of his plans.

The O'Sullivan campaign will be well organized and will maintain headquarters in Lowell in conjunction with the Davis club. City and town committees already are in the field with active chairmen at the helm and every effort will be made to send the nominee to Washington.

On the part of the candidate, who plans an extensive speaking tour, the steering committee in the district is made up of the following men: Joseph Hennessey, Lowell, chairman; Bernard J. Golden, Woburn, vice chairman; Thomas J. Donehue, Groton, secretary; Dr. Patrick J. Meahan, Lowell, treasurer; John J. Hennessey, Concord, and George J. Lynch, Andover; George J. Ayer, Joseph Lepine, Haverhill; Joseph J. Nagle, Concord Junction, and Louis Braddon, Tyngsboro.

The chairman of each city and town committee will serve as a committee of one to assist in securing funds by popular subscription to defray the campaign expenses, the first donation coming last night from John H. Donald of Andover, who pledged $100.

The meeting was attended by about 50 men from different sections of the district and was presided over by Cornelius J. Cronin of Lowell. He outlined his purpose, saying that it was the result of a conference of democratic leaders in Boston.

"This conference was for the express purpose of selecting a man to carry the party's fight into the fifth district," said Mr. Cronin, "and it was agreed that Humphrey O'Sullivan, the fighting democrat of the old fifth district, was the man. Mr. O'Sullivan has agreed to accept the nomination under certain conditions that he will later personally outline to you."

Touching upon the labor situation in Lowell and in the district, Mr. Cronin said Mr. O'Sullivan would take steps to correct it and "not think only of building new residences for ambassadors and consuls in foreign lands."

Mr. O'Sullivan's name formally was placed before the conference by James H. Hennessey of Concord and was seconded by John H. McDonald of Andover. It was unanimously approved and the candidate was escorted into the hall to make his speech of acceptance.

After the conference the delegates remained at the hall to listen to the acceptance speech of Hon. John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, which was taken out of the air by a powerful radio receiving set operated by John J. Hogan.

G. A. R. VET WANTS A PRETTY WIDOW

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Comrade Louis Leib, hailing from Milton, Penn., a soldier long ago in the 39th Pennsylvania Infantry, believes that it pays to advertise. He is looking for a widow. There is a little card dangling from the topmost buttonhole of his old blue army coat that states as much, and Louis does not deny it.

"Wanted a Widow" is what the sign says, and in fine print below are the qualifications. "Sweet and Pretty" So widows take notice. Louis has been a widower or seven years. For the last two he has been trying to get himself a companion at the G. A. R. campments. Perhaps he will have luck in Boston. He is hale and hearty in appearance, a very merry and fun-loving. When it comes to playing harmonica he is an accomplished musician. He made several of his old comrades go through their paces when he played "Marching Through Georgia."

Other old time airs on Dartmouth street yesterday afternoon.

SEN. COLT, CRITICALLY ILL

BOSTON, N. H., August 12.—Senator LeBaron B. Colt, critically ill at his home here, was said by his physicians today to have passed a comfortable night. The doctors said they were not prepared to say whether his condition had improved since the turn for the worse of yesterday, which caused a consultation of specialists at Boston and Providence to be called. The exact nature of the senator's illness, which set in a week ago, has not been announced. He is 78 years old.

DAVIS' SPEECH OF ACCEPTANCE

In his speech of acceptance, John W. Davis, democratic nominee for president, touched many points of the highest excellence, in ideals rising to the level of Jefferson and Cleveland and in logic and elegance of diction rivalling some of the best efforts of Woodrow Wilson.

He dealt out no threadbare platitudes, no flimsy statements of policy, no overdrawn charges against the administration of the republican party; but on every question touched, he presented undeniable facts and cogent arguments showing what is wrong in existing conditions; and then laid down the democratic policies and principles by which existing abuses in government can be overcome, necessary reforms effected and popular confidence in government restored.

Eloquently did he portray how the solidarity of the great war has been followed by the exploitation by the allied forces of greed and dishonesty, prejudice and ignorance, blocs and class interests, each striving for mastery with a selfishness that threatens the perpetuity of our national ideals, traditions and institutions. Thus he demonstrated that the need of the hour is to bring the government back to the people and to restore popular confidence in its administration.

In this connection, he presented a crushing indictment of the republican administration of the last four years, showing that it brought forth corruption in high places, division and discord in party councils, favoritism in legislation and scandals that have shocked the entire nation. Yet he held that all these betrayals of public trust were as strongly condemned by the rank and file of the republican party as by citizens of other political faiths.

But he arraigned high officials of the government who, when the disclosures of corruption came through the efforts of honest, earnest men, endeavored to suppress the testimony and to cast the odium of it all upon those who had taken a leading part in trying to bring the corrupt officials to justice.

With modest irony, he referred to the libelous suggestion by the president that "the wonder is not that so many have fallen, but that so few have been shown untrue." He refuted the claim from republican sources that this corruption came from alleged demoralization resulting from the war, and pointed to the fact that no taint of dishonesty or corruption attached to any official who held high office during that struggle or who continued to hold office until the democratic administration closed in 1921.

His word picture of the conflict between the executive and congress resulting in impotence of action on various important measures, was particularly graphic, citing as he did the wrangles over the Mellon bill, the bonus, the postal employees' salary bill, Japanese immigration, the world court, the promised association of nations for world peace and our indirect representation in the reparations conference merely by "unofficial observers."

All this the speaker aptly attributed to "the inability of the executive to lead or the unwillingness of his party to follow" and as a result, we have a government that does not dare speak its mind beyond the "three mile limit," or perhaps it might now be said the "twelve mile limit." Assuming that the people want a change, the speaker pointed out what the democratic party offered in its platform, including equal rights and opportunities to all, liberty for every individual in local self-government as against centralized bureaucracy and in line a government administered as a public trust without fear abroad or favoritism at home. As a pledge that such policies will be carried out when the democratic party is put in charge of the government, he could offer the long roll of beneficent legislation of the last democratic administration and the conduct of a great war without scandal or corruption. He insisted that in the United States, the civic unit is not the dollar but the individual man. In discussing the terms "progressive" and "reactionary" now vaguely used, he asserted that all that goes to make freer, happier and more prosperous homes for men and women is progress, all else reaction.

Mr. Davis discussed the rights of labor to fair treatment and adequate wage, claiming that these rights must not be impaired by injunction or any other device. The depression affecting the farmers more particularly, he said, was due largely to the fact that they had to buy in a projected market and sell in a market open to the world. But the government can aid the farmer by practical measures calculated to overcome the causes of present distress, to promote co-operative marketing, and provide adequate transportation at reasonable rates. All this he held to be an obligation which the government owes to the great agricultural industry.

On the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment and the statutes provided to put it into effect, Mr. Davis said he would hold in contempt any official who took oath to support the constitution and who made a mental reservation in reference to any of its provisions. That should surely be amply specific.

In reference to the proposed reduction of armaments and world peace, he took the sensible stand that the United States should co-operate with other nations remembering, however, that "we cannot throw away the sword while other scabbards are not empty."

In dealing with the subject of religious freedom, Mr. Davis stated that he stood squarely upon the pronouncement of the democratic platform in upholding all constitutional guarantees of religious freedom and condemning any effort from whatever source to arouse racial or religious dissension in this country. "Such a declaration," said the speaker, "every right-thinking American must endorse." He defended in eloquent terms the right of every citizen to worship in his own way the one God and Father of us all. He held further, that "church and state should be forever so far separate that neither the right nor the duty of public service should be diminished or enlarged by the religious belief of any man."

That surely is sufficient to show where Mr. Davis stands in reference to the sectional issue. But he went further and said that when elected, he will not allow any question of racial origin or religious faith to interfere with his choice of public servants, which he will make solely upon the ground of honesty, efficiency and loyalty to the constitution.

In closing his address, the candidate gave assurance that he would enter office without having given a pledge of any kind except that which he offered to all men alike in promising honest, progressive and so far as human wisdom will permit just government for all the people.

In scope, tone, dignity and style, the speech was a masterpiece. It presented the party issues in a clear and convincing manner and as a sample of political oratory, it is not likely to be excelled by anything delivered during the campaign.

LA FOLLETTE'S SLOGAN
La Follette announces that he will make his chief fight in this campaign against private monopoly. We do not understand quite clearly what he has in mind as coming under the caption of private monopoly. Does he refer to the corporations that are enjoying special privilege under the republican tariff or to those concerns that control certain industries under patent rights secured by inventors? Possibly he alludes to certain public necessities such as oil, coal, and some other commodities which he has an advocate of socialism, may think the government should control. He makes a very sweeping statement in regard to the system of private monopoly which he alleges controls the political and economic life of the American people. The only policy that can change the present conditions, would be the application of government ownership as advocated by the socialists who form the backbone of La Follette's support.

INTERNATIONAL ADVERTISING
Nations should advertise among each other, urges Stanley Baldwin, the British politician. A good suggestion. For instance, Uncle Sam would conduct a gigantic newspaper advertising campaign in Japan to tell Japanese the truth about why we exclude them. The cost would be considerable, but very cheap compared with possible war costs later, viz: if it did not help to foment the trouble.

It is estimated that fifty millions, spent in hostile countries by England, Germany, France and Russia, would have averted the World War. It pays to advertise in the right way and through the right medium.

AUTO ACCIDENTS
Over speeding and inattention are two of the main causes which the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce finds responsible for most of the accidents to motor vehicles on the highways. It is surely a matter of most serious concern that an average of 44 persons lost their lives in motor accidents during the first six months of 1924, not to speak of the vast number who were injured, many of them maimed for life.

Let those two chief causes be kept in mind by all drivers and carefully avoided, viz: "Over speeding" and "Inattention."

RADIO CAMPAIGNING
We are informed that James Jackson, candidate for the republican nomination for governor, and Louis A. Coolidge, candidate for the nomination for United States senator, are to use the radio in their campaigns; but they do not say from what station they will broadcast or what wave-lengths they will use in sending out their tales of woe. Nor do they calculate what Lieutenant Governor Fuller and Senator David I. Walsh will be doing while they are broadcasting their personal appeals.

DEFECTIVE EYESIGHT
Two million American school children are backward in their studies because of defective eyesight, claims an organization with a name as long as the number of German marks in circulation.

Proper spectacles would correct this defect. Wisely cities are realizing that brains cannot be trained to function at their best unless expert care is devoted to pupils' eyes, teeth, diet and other physical factors. Therefore they provide eye specialists, dentists and physicians to look after the needs of the school children.

According to the representation of the City of Chicago committee, some of the streets in the congested districts are neglected while men are waiting time on other streets where their services are not required. It is alleged that there are too many sparrow men; and naturally with the pastures of the horse, it is but reasonable to suppose that this craft should be either cut down or else assigned to places where their services are really required.

It will now be all set for the trial in the Chicago murder trial and the lawyers can find distinguished specialists of this type to prove that any particular man is insane and others equally distinguished to prove that the defendant is perfectly sane. It is not permanent, therefore, to test the sanity of the alien before they are allowed to go on the stand.

Congressman La Guardia of New York desires his party to support La Follette. Were we republicans we would join the chorus of good riders; but the question arises as to whether many of his constituents will do likewise. Had he desisted to support the democratic ticket, we should have given him credit for good judgment.

Abel R. Campbell, republican candidate for the governor's council, charges that he has been double-crossed by his opponent but the effect of this political trick can be overcome by a sufficient number of St. Gile crosses placed opposite his name at the primaries.

Safety of the airman at Iceland is now of more importance than that they complete the round-the-world trip. It is expected, however, that they will be provided with a landing place on the coast of Greenland where it has to be specially constructed for the purpose.

Already Senator Butler of the republican campaign has adopted the plan of entering everything in sight and admitting weakness now, so that campaign managers usually follow that policy to encourage their adherents even in the face of defeat.

More stringent regulations are now being relative to the granting of permits to carry firearms. Permits can now be obtained under any flimsy pretext.

When closely examined La Follette will be found to be socialism under a thin disguise and supported by the avowed socialists of the country.

The cyclone of Thursday afternoon was mild compared to what Lowell will experience when all the candidates of the three political parties are all loose upon a defenseless people.

Are the Chicago murderers too rich to hang? We shall see.

Reconciliation Cured
Charles H. Bates, 82, of West Litch, Me., who was rendered unconscious when a bolt of lightning struck his house July 3, now claims that it is the duty of the church to forgive him who had so badly that he was obliged to walk with canes, and that he has not felt the trouble since.

One on the Lawyer
Counsel—"Tell the court where you were at 5:30 on Wednesday, March 8." Defendant—"I was in Chicago." "Ah! And what were you doing?" "Asking a man a question." "Ah! But how do you know it was 5:30?" "Ah! Yourself! I was asking him the time."

The Four Clerks
A clerk in a Centerville, Ia., shoe store whose head was almost bald, was trying on a pair of shoes for one of the flapper species. She was paying more attention to those around her than to her own. When she happened to look down, she saw the clerk's head and, thinking it was her bare knee, she quickly grabbed her skirt and covered it.

Christmas Carol
"Well, how is the kid getting along in school?" "That reminds me of something he must have immediately," said Mrs. Tenpott in response to this question and her husband. "Stop in a music store tomorrow and get him a Christmas carol." "At this time of year—a Christmas carol?" "Yes, it's by a composer named Dickens."

Lonely Existence
"I never do anything I can't afford." The stranger to whom this casual remark was addressed looked at the speaker with considerable interest. "That is doubtless commendable, worthy sir, but will you pardon me if I venture a bit of comment?" "Certainly." "You must lead a lonely existence." "I do. About the only person I know socially is the receiving teller."

He Stuck to It
A youthful member of the club had been dining unwisely, and strolling uncertainly into the smoking room to find a certain member who was his pet aversion. "Hi, day," he began, with all the candor that wine can impart. "I just looked in to tell you that you are a silly idiot." The object of his wrath merely looked him up and down dispassionately. "Go away," he said shortly. "You're right." "Yes, I know I am," came the reply, "but tomorrow I'll be sober again, and you'll still be a silly idiot."

Much Afo About Nothing
In an English murder trial a witness was asked what he had said to a certain person at whose house he had put when the murder was committed. The witness decided that the best defense, lumped to his feet almost while with well-simulated passion to protest against it. His lordship ordered all the hour counsel and judge discussed the knotty legal problem, and learned authorities from the seventeenth century onward were cited. Eventually the judge decided that the witness could be put and that it must be answered. Accordingly the witness was brought back into court and placed in the box. Counsel rose, and with extra solemnity and earnestness, he begged the victim of a fierce and acrimonious debate, asked what he had said to the gentleman on whom he had called. The witness answered: "He was out, sir."

The Battle of Snow and Flowers
Like ancient gods the great trees stand. Watching this war of snow and flowers. Long have they seen this battle rage. In silence underneath their towers.

Year after year the gold hands reach. The green spears from the earth are tossed. Here is a battle that is always won. A struggle that is always lost.

—CHARLES DAVIES, Elks' Magazine.

ANNUAL CONFERENCES AT NORTHFIELD
A meeting of the Northfield delegates of the local Christian Endeavor branch was held last evening in the assembly hall of the Y. M. C. A. with about 65 young people present. President Nathan True and his wife were in attendance for the annual conferences at Northfield to be held next week.

The party will leave the square on Monday morning next, arriving at Northfield about 1 o'clock. During the week there will be a regular program as follows: Revell, 7:15; breakfast, 7:45; period of bible study; dismissal for conferences; 12 noon dinner. There will be three conferences daily, and each attendant is expected to be present at least two. The afternoons will be devoted to recreational activities and sports.

The officers of the club are: President, Nathaniel Trull; vice-president, C. H. Gardner; treasurer, Norman Olson; secretary, Muriel Amason.

WERE GUESTS OF MR. AND MRS. FORD
Members of James A. Garfield and B. F. Butler G.A.R. posts and Woman's Relief corps organizations of Lowell, attended the old-fashioned country breakfast served at Wyandale Inn, Sudbury, yesterday morning. The affair was conducted by members of patriotic organizations, led by prominent women of the state at large. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford received the visitors at the inn and later posed with a group of distinguished guests on the lawn across the way from the ancient hostelry.

MAN ABOUT TOWN
Several New England textile mills are displaying new cloth weaves on the specially exhibition counters for the inspection of the "fashion buyers." Now fuses of so-called cotton fabrics have been shown by wholesale handling goods from three Lowell mills. I understand these goods are brand new and required the changing over of certain weaving machines in local establishments, but not the purchase of new ones. Bleached cottons have been advanced in price by producers and are selling better even at the advance. Wide shavings have just begun to move more freely, which of course will please the management of the Marginal street branch of the N. E. Southern mills. Towing has advanced five per cent in prices for staples and business has increased, the demand being considered quite healthy for all Lowell brands in wholesale quarters. Boott mills refused some of these increased demand. I am mentioning that these few facts to show truthfully what a brief jaunt around the "wheel" of the textile mill district of Lowell brings forth in new business promise. The hope is there; so are some of the signals. Whether the business will continue to spread, remains for the future to determine.

I rather doubt that we Americans are devoid of that spirit of gallantry and civility that we formerly held towards all women. There was a time when, if a woman, young or old, entered a crowded street car she would be immediately offered a seat by some of the gentlemen present. But the custom has changed of late. A male passenger recently said to me: "I don't see why I should give a girl or woman my seat, unless she is older or less able to stand than myself. After working all day I wish to read the paper and to relax a bit. Some of these young fellows want too much. Only the other day I was coming up from my work in Lawrence and several girls carrying golf clubs boarded the car. They had to stand, something that they were quite reluctant to do. At last one of them said, 'I wish some one would give me my seat, I am tired.' No one did so, however, and she was obliged to stand. It was but right, the girls were all younger than any of the men present and they had not been working all day." They were out for exercise and a period of standing in a street car might be as good as a few rounds on the links.

Every reputable newspaper office experiences the same thing time and time again—persons requesting that certain articles be left out of print and offering money in exchange. It is more than self-control to keep from pitching the fellow downstairs, although we realize he is not to blame in some manner, the general opinion has developed that to keep a news item out of print, it will cost something. Where such a belief springs from we do not know, but it is deep-rooted, much to the disgust of every square-shooting newspaper man in the business. No news-worthier of the name would countenance such a thing for an instant, and the guilty person soon would be on the outside looking in. We hope this paragraph reaches some people who hold such an impression and that it will be the means of correcting it.

Have you noticed the number of out-state automobiles that have been visiting Lowell in the last few weeks? They come from all over the union. Of course it is a common sight to see New Hampshire cars on our streets, but until lately the sight of cars from Pennsylvania, Florida, Indiana, Texas and other distant states has been comparatively rare. Now such cars cause no comment what so ever, and nearly all of these tourists so my police village men, ask directions to the Lowell Memorial Hotel. A number of recent visitors was a party driving a car bearing the yellowish orange plate of Hawaii. Evidently Lowell's fame is world wide.

Many Lowell people will be interested to know that a bronze tablet of William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen company, was unveiled last Saturday morning in the Administration building in Shawshoon village. The tablet is the gift of Mr. Wood's employees in honor of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the company. It is five feet high, the work of Bryant Baker of New York, prominent English sculptor.

Judge Earle took occasion to compliment Attorney Charles A. Donahue for his statement in district court yesterday. When the court session was over, Charlie said he was glad to make a hit with the court as it is not often such a compliment comes to a young lawyer.

IF THE KIDS DO IT

Dads are a queer lot of fellows, at best, and you often can't quite understand 'em. In family affairs they are never out-guessed and it's seldom their wives reprimand 'em.

They find a way out of the toughest things that Mom has to tell them at night. Their calm nonchalance is the action that brings the feeling that makes things all right.

Just take any day when the kiddie runs wild and his actions are terribly bad. Poor mother will say, "You're a terrible child; when your father gets home, I'll be glad."

Then Daddy arrives and the story is told. Why, Mom doesn't know where she's at. She'll fret and she'll fume and she'll fuss and she'll scold and then Dad says, "I'll see about that."

What thoughts, in the meantime, has sonny boy had? He knows that he's quite in a pickle. He rushes right up and he kisses his dad and his father then gives him—a nickel.

Now what can you do with such fathers as that? 'Course mother will say, "Oh, I knew it!" Dad says he will speak but he never stands pat. The wrong thing is right—when kids do it.

PRES. COOLIDGE NOT TO GO ON SPEAKING TOUR

WASHINGTON, August 12.—President Coolidge's speaking engagements are being held to a minimum and unless the situation changes in the early part of the campaign, it is considered likely he will not leave Washington, except for his vacation, on any speaking tour.

Aside from his address accepting the nomination to be delivered here Thursday night, at the formal notification exercises, the president has only one other speaking engagement definitely listed—at the unveiling here, October 1, of the First Division memorial statue.

Invitations to speak have been received by the executive, however, from practically every section of the country. Among the tentative dates he has decided on is an address before the Holy Name society convention here September 21. He also is believed to be giving serious consideration to an invitation received yesterday from Baltimore to speak there September 6, at the unveiling of the Lafayette statue, which would require only a short trip.

"DICKIE" LOEB, AS A CHILD, PLAYED "BAD MAN"

Childhood pictures, cherished and hidden away for years, have been dragged out by the family of Richard Loeb to be submitted as defense evidence to support the claim of alienists that the child slayer is "emotionally deficient." As a wild west gunman, his conversations with his teddy bear and at playing policeman, Loeb was photographed in his early life. These childhood "phantasies" are now considered of great importance and the above pictures will be made part of the defense record.

Printer to Be King! At Least Chances Are Good

By N. E. A. Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—"A pig herder once became king of Bulgaria, and a common soldier got to be king of Sweden."

This is the challenge to the kid-dish and the scorners thrown back by an outwardly prosaic, gray-haired American printer, Frederick T. O. Wood, candidate for the throne of Albania.

And so far as any one knows, Wood has as good a chance at the throne as any other—whatever that chance is worth. So far as any one knows, the blood of Persian cats in Wood's dark hair may be coddling against the legs of a king-to-be, and the canary bird may be destined to sing in a royal palace.

Started by Josher

The Albanian dream flashed out brilliantly last winter when Wood heard a lecturer describe that tiny Balkan trouble spot which has unsettled a handful of rulers since the great war began and which offered its crown in vain last year to the old king, Harry Stulic. Wood thought he could handle the toughest Balkan territory on the map, and said so.

Then one of his friends, he says, jokingly told him that a king, addressing him to M. Pierre Gugliam, agent diplomatique de Albanie, at Bucharest, Rumania.

Now there comes back to Chicago a message from M. Gugliam, saying that Wood's plans and his qualifications. There is a chance for success in the kindy venture, he suggests, provided only that funds are forthcoming to finance the campaign. There's the only hitch. Business in the printing trade just now is a trifle slow. Yet Wood is not entirely disheartened.

seen the world, such as I am. I think it might be an advantage on all sides if Albania could get somebody to give her a square deal and steer her in the direction of progress."

The printing job at present is just a pot boiler, to keep things going at home in the fourth floor rear flat over a bakery on Wells street. Wood has traveled the world as an engineer. About 20 years ago he helped install American engines in a Russian torpedo boat and he remained in the service during the war with Japan. At Port Arthur he was a lieutenant, commanding a boat, as he says, for the "Roslans." During the great war, he helped build and operate American merchant ships.

Wood is 49 years old, born in Kansas and reared in Ohio. Mrs. Wood doesn't care for the prospect of becoming queen. She's more interested in her Persian cats, and in their kittens which bring $20 a piece.

"Unhappy lies the head that wears the crown," suggests a visitor. "Mine's laid unconscious all my life anyhow," cheerfully answers King-candidate Frederick T. O. Wood.

"TO SHEIK OR NOT TO SHEIK" IS PROBLEM

BY A. H. FREDERICK

N.E.A. Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 12.—Norma Talmadge, having had her fluster with sheikish leading men, again is directed back to the American juvenile type. And Sister Constance is to be given her whirl with the dark-haired, ardent ones.

Thus Joseph M. Schenck, husband and brother-in-law of the respective Talmadges and producer for both, takes his flight in the airplane-bandwagon set in motion by Valentino—but notice that Schenck, wily in the ways of moviedom, keeps one foot on financial solid ground.

While Wife Norma was adventuring in the unknown territory, Sister-in-Law Constance was sure to bring in her accustomed returns with leads tried and found good with the public; now that Norma has had this venture and found public approbation not so warm upon it, she will keep on known ground while Miss Constance adventures.

New leading man for Constance is Ronald Colman, suave, handsome Englishman of Latin characteristics; not altogether sheikish, but with sufficient propinquity thereto for determination as to what type the public prefers for his new leading lady. Picture fans will remember him in "The White Sister" and "Romola," while theatre audiences of England and New York have had opportunity of witnessing him upon the stage.

The first picture with the Constance Talmadge-Ronald Colman combination now is being directed by Sidney Franklin. It is a society comedy, love element not neglected, written by Hans Krall, formerly associated with Lubitsch. Colman is cast as a young lord of engaging presence, perfect manners, and one not lacking idealism in love. All these requisites he may fulfill ideally.

Across the studio, Miss Norma—former Schickelgruth type now definitely abandoned—is making "Flight" with Eugene O'Brien, typical "modified" American "he-man."

Intrigues of "to sheik or not to sheik" thus solved on the Schenck lot are indicative of what is transpiring in many of the studios here.

If the sheik is to be the style this winter, if the fat (and its flapper consequent) is not yet run, then all will want to be on the bandwagon. But if, as many declare, the public has had the same surfeit of this which it got from too many costume pictures, that is another matter. Happy are they who, like Schenck, can blow both hot and cold.

MERRIMACK SQUARE

A storm at sea with rescues that thrill, and then the fisherman's cot on the shore—home and all that goes with home where domestic reign to comfort weary natures—will this and more, is told in a stirring motion picture offering, "Women Who Give," the first three days this week at the Merrimack Square theatre. The picture is drawn from a wonderful story of seafaring men and women by Sarah P. McLean Greene, whose tales of life on sea and shore in connection with men who devote their lives to ruling the waves in sailing ships, are widely read and fascinating in the extreme. The homey scenes of "Women Who Give" are taken largely from familiar New England hamlets that border the "stern and rock-bound coast" of Massachusetts. There are Cape Cod folk in abundance, faithfully portrayed in every scene. A love story that touches the heartstrings is revealed in the course of the picture—the love of a poor fisher boy for the daughter of a rich man who frowns upon a love match that appears to him to be ideal or suited for the daughter in the passionate entanglement.

There is the usual rural scandal, temporary besmirching the name of the sailor boy hero, then the shanghaiing of the sorry lover. But the rich man's daughter felled her father, or course, hiding herself away in the same vessel that was to take away her lover. The vessel did not sail the western seas nor the eastern that night, for a great storm came up and great damage was done to all shipping off shore. There is a ship wrecking scene, a rescue by the brave young captain-lover and all is well.

The cast includes Robert Frazer, Renee Adore, Barbara Bedford, Frank Keenan, Joseph Dowling, Margaret Seidman, Joan Standing, Victor Potel, Edna Phillips and William Eugene.

The second excellent feature of the first three days' picture presentation is "His Forgotten Wife." Madge Bellamy is featured and is supported by Warren Barker. The story is laid in France with the World War as a background. Also on the same program is Will Rogers in "Going to Congress," a laugh-producer from start to finish with the usual Rogers address predominate. The International News has an exceptionally good showing of current news events.

LOUW'S RIALTO THEATRE

Presented at the Rialto theatre yesterday was "No Mother to Guide Her," a William Fox production, starring

Genevieve Tobin. Scheduled to run three days, this production reveals with much subtlety and truthfulness the various paths trod by children of the rich and poor. The sort of home-lessness found in "No Mother to Guide Her" is reminiscent of "Over the Hill," another William Fox success, which was offered with great acclaim last year. In addition to Miss Tobin, the star whom Broadway has been applauding this year by reason of her performance in "Polly Preferred," the cast includes Lollia Robertson, J. D. Walsh, John Webb Dillon and Jack McLean. It is splendid in its entirety, performed with fine restraint and high-strung sympathy.

For purely technical merits, "No Mother to Guide Her" is excellent. Magnificent sets, both interior and exterior, together with much natural beauty, form an adequate setting for this appealing story. The hopes of each of the children, all of whom are ambitious, are stories in themselves. The director has entwined them into a single story thread from which the interest can never stray. To see life as "No Mother to Guide Her" presents it, is quite helpful in guiding our own destinies. The mothers, fathers, daughters and sons, too, who composed yesterday's audiences all found a direct message for them in this cinema production which is certainly worth seeing.

The associate feature presents Tom Moore in "Harbor Lights," a powerful drama of the sea. Moore is seen as a young naval officer who, returning home from a cruise, to claim his bride, finds her sister in the power of an unscrupulous rogue who plans to throw her over in order to marry the girl affianced to the sailor. One can well imagine what can come out of a weird situation like this. Moore, with his usual breezy style, cleans up everything and in the end he's "sitting on the world."

"That's Rich," a Century comedy and Fox News, are included in this program.

"UKULELE NIGHT" AT LAKEVIEW

By popular request another ukulele night will be held at the Lakeview ballroom this evening, and no doubt hundreds will take advantage of this wonderful opportunity to procure one of the many ukuleles to be distributed during the evening. The first three days' picture presentation is "His Forgotten Wife." Madge Bellamy is featured and is supported by Warren Barker. The story is laid in France with the World War as a background. Also on the same program is Will Rogers in "Going to Congress," a laugh-producer from start to finish with the usual Rogers address predominate. The International News has an exceptionally good showing of current news events.

The dancing will be by check to poppy music by "Broderick's Entertainers."

Umpire Bob Hart Intervenes in Fist Fight at Pirates-Phillies Game and Prevents Serious Trouble

MANAGER FLETCHER AND UMPIRE PFERMAN COME TO BLOWS

Pittsburgh Scores Double Victory Over Phillies and Makes Slight Gain on Giants—Carl Mays' Winning Streak Broken by Giants—Other Games

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—An American League holiday compelled followers of Ben Johnson's obstacle race to turn to the National League for their sustenance. The younger circuit clubs spent the day traveling to the cities where the western teams will open their third invasion of the east today.

Pittsburgh's double victory over Philadelphia furnished what little thrill that apathetic flag chase is capable of arousing. This fact cut down the Giants' lead over the Pirates from seven games and a half to seven.

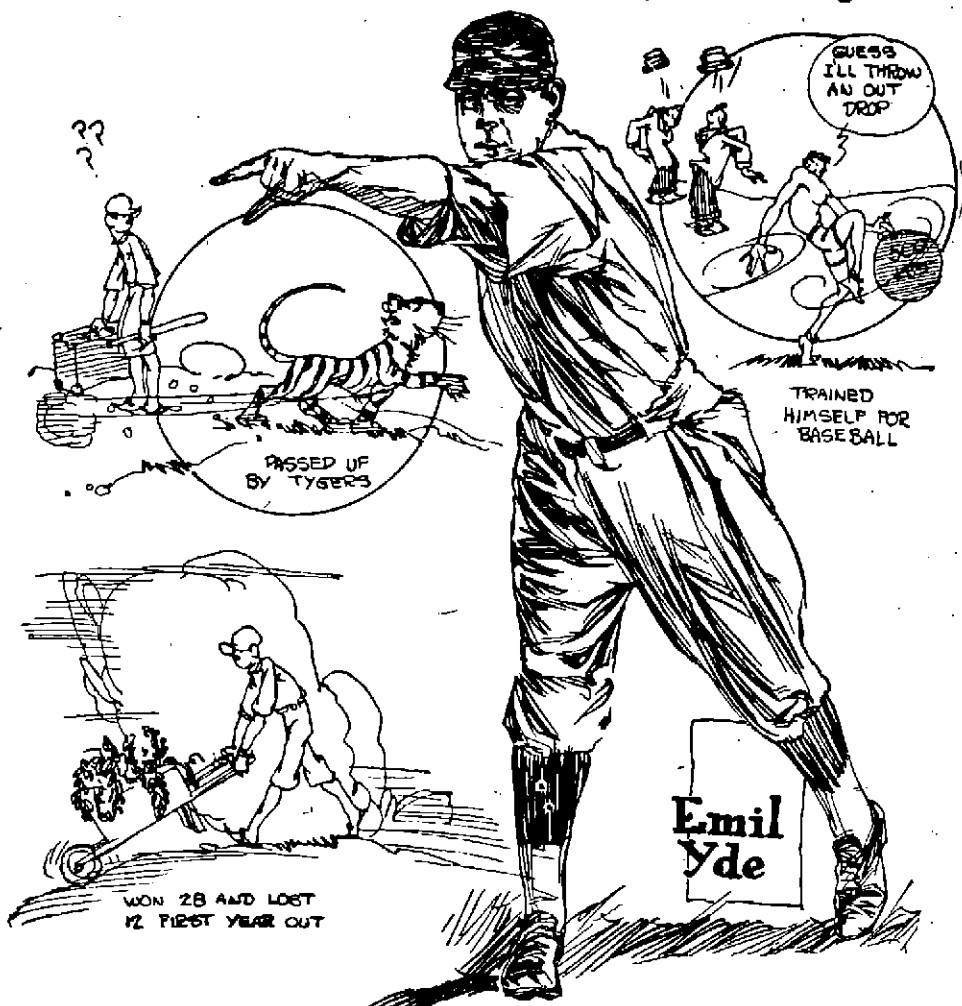

Manager Fletcher of the Phillies and Umpire Pfirman, who had been prevented from intervening in the first Philadelphia-Pittsburgh game by a fist fight over the pitcher's decision on Glazner's pitching, Umpire Bob Hart acted in the role of peacemaker, and with the assistance of the police prevented serious trouble. Carey's two homers were a secondary feature of the opener. The scores were 7 to 3 and 6 to 4.

BOB HART

His home stand against the western clubs with 11 victories out of 18 starts.

Trained Muscles Make Yde a Pitching Star

Emil Yde

WON 28 AND LOST 12 FIRST YEAR OUT

By N. E. A. Service

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 11.—Will Musgrave players of tomorrow attend special colleges to learn the game—become graduate bachelors or doctors of baseball?

A Nordic baseball prodigy, Emil Yde of the Pittsburgh Pirates, has raised this question.

Yde's record of spending only one year in minor league baseball, leading the National League pitchers at least through the mid-season of his first year, has given impetus to the discussion.

Yde was trained for an athletic career in a Wisconsin school of physical culture. The major courses there trended toward physical direction in athletic clubs and schools. But not for Yde.

Baseball was his game, his first love and chosen profession. His first As each muscle in his sturdy body was limbered or strengthened by special exercise Yde visualized its application to baseball.

PRONOUNCE IT E-D, FANS!

The name of Pittsburgh's new hurling star is a tongue-twister but the fans must know how to pronounce the young Nord's name correctly, so here it is:

YDE—Just drop the Y and reverse the DE, making Y-D. Yes, that's just exactly the way. Emil as a first name.

Western League Phenom

At 20 Yde was graduated. He pitched a few semi-pro games in Wisconsin and was picked up by Jack Holland of the Oklahoma City Western league team.

The result of Yde's physical education was shown from the start. The young recruit bore the brunt of the hardest campaign ever waged for a Western league pennant.

Yde, this first season in organized baseball, won 28 games while losing only 12. In 338 innings pitched he allowed only 330 hits. He pitched with a win or loss in 38 of them, showing his stability in the box.

Yde was also the team's regular pinch hitter. It was one of the few instances of organized baseball where a pitcher was the regular pinch hitter. His average for 93 games was .383.

Small wonder that the scouts beat a path to Oklahoma City, among them Eddie Mess of Detroit.

Passed Up by Tygers

Owner Jack Holland wired President Naylor of the Tygers that Yde was a likely major leaguer. Hess was sent to look him over and made an adverse report. Holland had previously sent Naylor Lil Stoner, one of his best pitching stars.

After long argument and much quibbling Yde was sold to the Pirates. Pittsburgh says the price was $30,000 but Holland, while not stating the figure, says he wishes it was that much. Authentic report says the Pirates got Yde for $30,000.

LEONARD WINS BUT IS INJURED

CLEVELAND, August 12 (By the Associated Press).—Benny Leonard, world's lightweight boxing champion, returning to the ring after nearly a year's absence, scored a decisive but costly victory over Pal Moran of New Orleans here last night, when he defeated the challenger in a ten-round contest, winning all but one of the rounds by a wide margin.

The champion suffered a lacerated ligament of the interphalangeal joint of the right thumb, with a possible fracture of the distal phalanx, when he sent a crashing swing to Moran's head in the fourth round. The injury, physicians said today, will prevent Leonard from engaging Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, in a 15-round contest scheduled for the Yankee stadium, New York, a week from tomorrow.

Leonard, the physician, said today, probably will be forced to rest for at least a month before he will be in condition to resume training.

Leonard, with his damaged thumb in splints, left for New York today to submit the injury to specialists for an X-ray examination. If the injury is as serious as the preliminary examination indicated, Leonard will request that his match with Walker be postponed until probably September 15.

The champion, engaging in his first contest since last September, revealed his old-time form. He was in and out, shooting left jabs and hooks and right crosses that invariably found their mark. He displayed remarkable judgment in distance and accuracy in punching, despite his long absence from the ring.

Moran was no match for Leonard. He was unable to penetrate Leonard's almost perfect defense and instead of mixing it, seemed desperately anxious to keep at a safe distance and stay the limit. Whenever Moran fired, carry the fight the champion would meet the force with force and rush with rush.

Leonard was particularly effective with left hooks and solid right crosses. Any time that he chose to open up he had no difficulty in doing so. The challenger's jaw and body with perfectly timed blows.

ington, copy boy for the Chicago Evening Post, was the other day when the newspaper men of that city held their annual tournament.

And all Tommy did was to turn in the low net score of the day, shooting a 91, which, with his handicap of 25, gave him a winning total of 66.

SCHOOL-BOY STAR GOES TO MICHIGAN

By N. E. A. Service

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 12.—Dennis Osterbaan will enter Michigan this fall.

To the casual reader that statement may not mean a great deal but to followers of athletics at the Michigan and Blue institutions it carries quite a bit of weight.

For he is known that Osterbaan ranks as one of the greatest all-around athletes ever developed in Michigan prep school circles. Osterbaan is a star, and then some! He hails from Muskegon (Mich.) high school, where, for the past three years, he has been making sport history.

Osterbaan (he spells it that way, himself) is a four sport man. He performs in baseball, football, basketball and track. He's a pitcher, end, center and weight man.

In 1923, Muskegon reached the semi-finals in the national tournament of Chicago. Osterbaan carried it up that far. As a reward, he was named All-American prep school center.

Michigan looks hopefully to Osterbaan to fill the shoes of Harry Kipke.

NATIONAL DOUBLES TENNIS TOURNAMENT

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—The number of entries for the national doubles tennis tournament which will open on the courts of the Longwood Croquet club, Brookline, on Monday, had been increased to 18 today. Among the latest entrants is a new strong Pacific coast combination, Harvey Snodgrass and Walter Westbrook. Paul Kong and Lock West, members of the Chicago University team, have also entered. George Lott and Emmet Farr, promising youthful stars from the middle west district, will compete.

2 TO 2 TIE IN JUNIOR TWI LEAGUE GAME

The Ironquods and Pawtucket Blues, of the Junior Twilight League, battled to a 2 to 2 tie on the North common last night.

Both teams correlated their tactics in the first round of the engagement while opposing pitchers were still a bit cold. However, when the battery got down to work there was not a chance for a man to make a circuit.

The most spectacular play of the evening, besides the pitching of it, Sullivan and Ducharme, was a lightning double play. Robarge to Rosenberry, Robarge, Ironquods short stop, gathered in a skidding liner, turned completely around and tossed to first. Both Ironquods runs came to a halt.

Two men had taken the air. The third man was also out but the catcher let the strike go by and then threw wildly to first. Then Plouff singled and Robards doubled and two men came home.

PENNOCK STAR YANK PITCHER

Bush and Shawkey Not as Consistent as They Were a Few Years Ago

Hoyt Temperamental and Jones at His Best Only When Team Is Winning

N. E. A. Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The five-star pitching staff of the New York Yankees is slipping.

For three years superb pitching, more than any other one thing, has carried the club to three pennants and one world series.

Opposing clubs in the American league are inclined to the belief that the pitching spell has been broken. Like all other clubs, the Yankees must have effective pitching to win consistently.

Here is the way a certain veteran American league star sums up the Yankees' pitching staff.

"Bush no longer boasts the fast ball that won him fame. He depends largely on his 'fork' ball, which breaks like a dry splitter. This delivery calls for great control. Lack of it makes him just an ordinary pitcher."

"Shawkey is no longer a consistent performer. One day he looks like a million dollars, the next time out, counterfactual money. Too erratic to be depended upon."

"Hoyt, a great twirler but temperamental. Must get the breaks in a winning pitcher. When his team slumps, Hoyt's work falls off to a surprising degree."

"Jones shows to advantage when not hard pressed. In a race such as the present American league struggle, is not at his best."

"Pennock is the one consistent performer on the Yankee staff. The possessor of an ideal disposition and plenty of courage, he does his best work under the severest pressure."

"In reality the Yankee staff is merely a one instead of a five-star combination."

ABBOTS AND SOUTH BOSTON THIS EVENING

Playing at tip-top form, the Abbott Worrieds will clash with South Boston in an important Bowdoin Twilight League game in Grantville this evening. North Cambridge, runner-up to the Abbotts in the bitter recent fight, will face the Chelsea Millstreams this evening. Naturally, Abbott rooters are pulling for the Millstreams to down the Lehigh king, as a defeat for the Cambridge Worrieds would mean the end of a chance to meet the Lawrence Independent for the Abbotts. That is providing the Grantville outfit plays the heat on the South Bostonians this evening.

The Silsila mill team plays in Woonsocket this evening. Tomorrow evening, the team goes to Manchester, N. H., for a tilt with the representatives of that city.

TOMMY ROBSON WINS OVER ROBINSON

BOSTON, Aug. 12.—Tommy Robson of Malden and George Robinson, veteran Cambridge neerer, former middleweights but now legitimate light-heavyweights, boxed 10 sensational rounds at the all-star show of the Commercial A. C. at the Arena last night and the colored man, who a few years ago, when both were at their best, won a decision over Malden Tommy, took the worst beating of his ring career and was adjudged the loser.

But it was a thrilling bout, nevertheless, notwithstanding that it was only a question of how much punishment Robinson could assimilate. The bout served as the semi-final event, but it was far overshadowed by the feature event, that between Pat McCarthy of Roxbury and Wolf Larsen of the crowd took unkindly to the slow, tedious performance of the feature, which eventuated in McCarthy winning the award.

Denise Bent Jarvier

The 10-round bout between the diminutive Filipino flyweights, Young Denise and Jose Jarvier, the latter now stationed at the Charlestown navy yard, was a fast and clever contest for a few rounds, with Denise playing the greatest speed and powers and his aggressive tactics soon wore down his taller and more lanky opponent. Denise weighed 107 pounds and Jarvier was three pounds heavier, but Denise won practically all the way, the severe body punishment he inflicted more than overcoming Jarvier's consistent thrusts for the head.

The opening 10-round resulted in a well-earned decision for Jackie Wilk of Chicago, who gradually weakened his colored rival, Walter Lee of Denver, and by a sensational finish in the final session, left no doubt as to his superiority.

STANDING OF SCHOOL BASEBALL TEAMS

The Moody school playgrounds baseball team is scheduled to clash with the representatives of the Moray grounds, Friday afternoon at Sheld park. They Moody boys played three games last week, winning two, one common score and one one-sided to the Moray. As the Moray team is leading the playground league and the Moody crowd second, there is bound to be a tense rivalry displayed.

	W	L
Senior Baseball
Greenhalde	3	0
North Common	2	0

	W	L
Junior Baseball
Moray	2	0
Moody	2	0
Alken	2	1
No. Common	0	2
Sa. Common	0	2

The Pawtucket boys will go in the junior league. The Lincoln boys will go in the senior league.

CHELMSFORD A. A. DEFEATED BY CENTRALVILLE PRINCETONS

Lowell Twilight League Game on South Common Last Evening—Pouliot and Foye Constitute Winning Battery for Princetons—Score 3 to 1

The battery for the Centralville last night was Pouliot and Foye. That's why the Centralville Princetons of the Lowell Twilight League took a 3 to 1 verdict from the Chelmsford A. A. on the South common. Ray Foye was another reason. He played first base for the winners and cracked out two singles off Sully Kneeland in three times at bat.

The game marked the return to the fold of the three above-named veterans. They showed a lot of pep and added strength to the Centralville outfit. Pouliot picked a fine game, striking out five men, including the last two to face him. He was opposed by Sully Kneeland, who also twirled good ball, but was accorded poor support in the pinches.

The visiting team was the first to score. In the second inning, L. McElroy got a single to left and G. McElroy shot a lough one at Legrand, who threw wild to second and both runners advanced. A neat bunt down the first base line by Conlon scored L. McElroy.

In the third, the Princetons deadlocked the count. Pouliot slammed out a triple to left. Jimmy Cawley cracked one to short and reached first in safety when Belleville bobbled Greenwood's peg, allowing Pouliot to cross the pan.

Legrand's single with a man on base in the fifth gave the Princetons another run. Cawley had walked and stolen second when Legrand injected his telltale blow. Ray Foye started the sixth by striking out. Manuel Fratus was sent to the showers to short center resulted in a crash hit by Pouliot, who was caught by Kneeland between Dickard and Greenwood.

Papa Beats His Boy!

SIoux FALLS, S. D., Aug. 12.—John Barton, 47, one of the best known bankers in this community, beat his young son, Horace, 17, the other night, right out in public. And then laughed.

"You will get fresh with the old man," he chuckled. It was in a tennis match, the finals for the championship of South Dakota.

The elder Barton and the youngster dominated the tournament from the start, and the day of the finals found them on opposite sides of the net, battling earnestly and enthusiastically for cup and title.

It was one of the few times in the history of tennis that father and son met in the finals for an important title.

The most graceful and gifted diver in the Panama Canal Zone is Angela Klemmer, holder of many championships. The young lady is pictured here with starting a backward dive. She is soon to join the Metropolitan A. C. in New York and will be a competitor in the late summer events in the east.

Old Colored Stars Would Have Bothered Present Day Champs

By N. E. A. Service
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—Could Jack Dempsey defeat Jack Johnson when the "Golden Smile" was in his prime?
Could Mike McTigue take Sam Langford when the "Tar Baby" was right?
Could Benny Leonard win from Joe Gans, Baltimore genius?
Could Mike Walker stand up to Joe Walcott when the "Barbed Wire Demon" ruled the welterweight division?
Could Johnny Dundee outpoint George Dixon when the "Little Chocolate" was recognized as the greatest boxer in the world?
To two of these questions you can answer "Maybe." Dempsey is great, so is Leonard. The other answers follow:
Langford would have stopped McTigue with a punch. Walker hardly could have lasted more than one or two rounds with Walcott. Dundee would have been a punching bag for Dixon.
No Colored Stars Left
There isn't a fighter left to uphold the prestige established for the colored race by Johnson, Langford, Walcott, Gans and Dixon. Harry Wills' poor showing against Bartley Madden shows that he is a has-been. Willis was a fighter 10 years ago.
Leonard, lightweight champion, and Walker, welterweight champion, are matched. Experts predict Walker will win.
Dane, lightweight champion, and Walcott, welterweight champion, fought a sensational 10-round battle.

RENAULT BEATS MADDEN

Canadian Wins All the Way, But Is Unable to Put Irishman Away

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Bartley Madden today is declaring numerous painful bruises sustained last night in his 15-round match with Jack Renault at the Queensboro stadium in Long Island City, which the Canadian heavyweight won on points. In spite of cruel punishment the New Yorker was on his feet with considerable stamina to spare at the final going.
Although he decidedly outperformed his opponent, Renault, lacked the power to put the game Irishman away. Madden abandoned the aggressive after the first few rounds and contented himself with defensive tactics thereafter. Renault made only half-hearted efforts to protect himself, an completely did not have the local boxer at his mercy.

In the last round Renault rushed Madden to the ropes and rained a hail of blows upon him but Madden absorbed attack and came up for more at the finish. The spectators gave Madden a big hand for his stubborn battle against overwhelming odds.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 20

"We'd better go back to those three ice mounds," suggested one of the sailors. So back they went. Each of the sailors went into one of the houses and Jack and Flip went into the third one. Jack found it very comfortable inside and it was a relief to be out of the heavy snowfall.

Jack remembered that the sailors had told him that snowfalls didn't last long in the north. So, after a short time, he stuck his head out of the ice hut door. A blanket of fresh snow lay in front but the air was clear once more. "Come on, Flip," shouted Jack, "we can go out again."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 5—THE TRAVELERS VISIT THE KANGAROO

WEENY GAVE A FEW FLAPS WITH HIS BIG EARS

"Where are we going now, Weeny?" asked Nick when the elephant had placed them both carefully on his back after they had left the iceberg. "Who else are you going to visit on your vacation?"

"I believe I'll go to see Kicky Kangaroo," said Weeny. "We used to have a lot of fun in the circus. He lives a long way off, but that doesn't matter, since the Fairy Queen taught me to fly with my ears. Let me see—where's that card? The last postcard I had from him had his address on it."

"It must be in your satchel," said Nancy.

"So it must," said Weeny.

So the Twins opened the satchel and took out Weeny's nightgown and his specks and his toothbrush and there, sure enough, was the last postcard.

"It says 'Bamboo Grove, Australia,'" read Nick.

"Yes, sir! Of course!" said Weeny. "I wish my memory was as long as my trunk. But it's only as long as my tail. My head will never save my heels. I'm afraid. Wasn't it lucky I happened to have that card along! Hold tight now, here we go."

Weeny gave a few flaps with his big ears and soon the travelers were whizzing away over mountains and seas until they came to Australia. At least that's what the whale said it was, when they asked him out in the ocean.

And before they knew it there they were at the Bamboo Grove, where Kicky Kangaroo lived.

In a sort of thicket place under some trees there was a house and on the door-plate it said, "Mister and Mrs. Kangaroo."

"Why, it doesn't say a word about Kicky," said Weeny anxiously.

"Oh, it never mentions the children," said Nick wisely. "But if his mother and daddy live here, he must too."

"Of course!" said Weeny.

"Who's there?" called a voice suddenly from inside.

"Me!" said Weeny. "I mean 'us'."

At that the door flew open and out jumped Kicky Kangaroo himself.

"Hello here!" he cried. "If it isn't my old friend Weeny, the elephant! Are you still doing a circus act?"

"No!" said Weeny. "These are not circus riders. They're Nancy and Nick. The Twins. I'm taking them on travels. And we've come to visit you."

"Then you're just in time," said Kicky. "We're having a ball-game this afternoon between the Jumpers and the Boxers and we need a batter and an umpire. Do you want to play? You can bat, Weeny, and Nick can be umpire to decide who wins and Nancy can watch."

"That's fine!" cried Nick and Nancy and Weeny together.

They all went to the ball-field and after meeting Kicky's friends, the game began with Weeny at the bat. You never saw such a fast ball-game in your life, and when it was over the score was about two hun-

KLAN FACTIONS BURY HATCHET

Agreement Signed Between
K. K. K. and Anti-Klan
at Niles, O.

Action Comes as Culmination of Series of Disorders
Recently

NILES, O., August 12.—What is believed to be the first agreement ever signed between the Ku Klux Klan and
anti-Klan factions has been reached
here as a culmination of a series of disorders which have occurred here
recently.

The agreement provides that both sides forget their differences and "bury
the hatchet" as a means of promoting peace in the community. It was signed by members of the Klan and Knights of the Flaming Circle, an anti-Klan organization, at a conference presided over by Sheriff John Thomas of Trumbull county.

Because the burning of the Klan's
crosses and the opposition organization's circles in Niles have led to frequent street fights, the agreement provides specifically that no crosses or circles be burned in Weatherfield township, in which this city is located. It includes the abandonment of all charges and counter charges between the two parties.

DR. THIERY IS UNDER ARREST

Charged With Murder of His
Brother-in-Law, D. M.
Noble of Somerville

Accused Man Remains in Serious Condition at Mass.
General Hospital

SOMERVILLE, Mass., August 12.—
Dr. Raymond Thiery, who was placed under formal arrest at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, late
last night, charged with the murder
of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble,
in this city last Friday night, remained in a serious condition today. It was understood that he would not be arraigned until he was in better shape to undergo the ordeal.

The authorities declined to make public a statement obtained from Thiery yesterday, which they said had given them important information.
The arrest followed a search of the house in this city where the two men
lived with Dr. Thiery's parents. In the course of this search an Austrian army rifle was found and seized by the officers.

The police said that Thiery, who had told them a story of burglars entering the house, shooting Noble and attacking him, was suffering from the effects of an operation performed at the hospital where he was taken after being found semi-conscious at the foot of the cellar stairs. His condition was complicated, they said, by his previous indulgence in some form of drugs. They declined to say whether they had developed any theory as to a possible motive for the shooting.

Continued.

were able to participate in the Boston ceremonies of their beloved organization, had been eagerly anticipating the Boston trip today. Not one who planned to attend the convention and
march with heroic comrades from every section of the nation, failed to be on hand for the departure in automobiles for the Hub.

An early start from Lowell was agreed upon. Local Sons of Veterans
street at 7:30 this morning, carrying camp members and Civil war veterans guests. Lucius A. Derby was in charge of this group of convention
visitors. A number of other G. A. R.
veterans made the journey in privately owned automobiles. Friends gladly loaned cars and drivers for the day's trip. Some of the Lowell automobiles appeared in the G. A. R. parade, a few veterans preferring to ride because of physical disabilities that prevented
them appearing with more vigorous
veterans parading on foot.

Among the Lowell veterans who appeared in the parade, were the following:

Commander Franklin S. Pevey,
Senior Vice Commander Albert J. Gilman, Junior Vice Commander George
E. Bryant, Officer of the Day Charles
E. Bixby, Officer of the Guard Albert
J. Bixby and Chaplain Coburn S.
Smith of Billerica, all being of Laid and Whitney post, 155. Col. Albert
Pinder of B. F. Butler post, 42; A. R.
Lowell of James A. Garfield post, 120;
and Albert A. Davis, George P. Tilton, Eugene P. Morrill and J. T. Phillips, all of Laid and Whitney post, 155.

shires. They will return to Lowell
Thursday.

Inspectors Eugene C. Loupret and Edward Fitzgerald of the state motor vehicle department spent last night
on NeSmith street halting auto drivers
whose headlights failed to conform with law requirements.

Miss Elizabeth M. Donoghue, stenographer in the mayor's office, returned to her desk at city hall yesterday after a two weeks' vacation. During her absence Mrs. Edith P. Gill acted as a substitute.

A marriage license was issued today by City Clerk Stephen Flynn to Fred Denning, a stepbrother living at 97 St. Stephen street, Boston, and Miss Delcia Goureaux of 269 Appleton street, a waitress.

Miss Mary S. Reed, stenographer in
the lands and buildings department at city hall, Miss Grace Reed, teacher at the Greenhatch school, and Miss Mary MacIntyre, teacher at the Vermont school, are enjoying a vacation at Oak Bluffs.

Francis P. Cogger, elevator inspector in the office of the inspector of buildings, returned from Oak Bluffs after the week-end and started for Newfound lake, where he will spend the remaining week of his annual vacation.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs.
Stephen Callahan at St. John's hospital, Monday, August 11. Mrs. Callahan was formerly Miss Mary E. Clifford.

The Misses Mary E. Whelan and Mary F. Cryan are making an automobile trip to New York, Atlantic City
and Philadelphia.

No particular change was reported today at St. John's hospital in the condition of Edward Smetini, West Chelmsford automobile accident victim, who has been in an insensible
state for eight days. Some signs of returning consciousness were noted,
but only at widely separated intervals.

Representative Charles H. Slowey is in Boston today as a member of the house committee appointed by the speaker of the house for the occupation of the Grand Army of the Republic. The committee today joined the governor's council to review the report from the Tremont street grandstand.

Miss Maude E. MacPherson today
received a card from Miss Katherine R. McLeer, a co-worker in the office of City Treasurer Fred H. Rourke who is spending her vacation on an auto
trip with Miss Mabelle R. Whitlock,
Miss Olive Johnson and Mrs. Fred J.
Nevary. The card, from Narragansett Pier, conveys the information that their auto was rammed by a drunken driver the first day out. No one was injured and damage to the car was slight. The party will proceed from Narragansett Pier to Atlantic City,
thence into Canada and return to

TO HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC AT HENRY FORD'S INN

Many members of farm bureau organizations and granges, located in numerous Middlesex cities and towns,
will participate in the fourth annual county picnic to be conducted by Middlesex County Extension service
and the Middlesex County Farm bureau, at Henry Ford's Wayside Inn,
in Sudbury, tomorrow.

The rally of the tillers of New England soil and the guardians of New England homes promises to be an epoch-making event. Practically every farmer in Middlesex county who can possibly do so, will be there, with
wives and children.

Mr. Ford has taken a keen personal interest in the grand outdoor picnic
and has done everything possible
through his personal representatives
at the Wayside Inn, to make this the most successful event of its kind ever
conducted in New England. He has made special contributions to the day's program, among them being features
to appear in a parade representing agriculture from the days of the ox-yoke to the tractor.

The Chelmsford brass band has been engaged to furnish music for the entire day. There will be agricultural exhibits and a parade of floats of
boys' and girls' clubs representing
the activities of these organizations
and the projects being carried on.

The day's program is as follows:

9:45 a. m.—Arrival and parking of
autos.

10:00 a. m.—Band concert, acquaintance rings, agricultural exhibits, play
festival for boys and girls, inspection
of Wayside Inn.

10:45 a. m.—Horseshoe tournament.
11:30 a. m.—Tug-of-war, town teams.
12:00 m.—Basket lunch (the sure and bring one), milk, toiles and ice cream
to be purchased at refreshment booth.

1:00 p. m.—The Story of Wayside
Inn. Speakers include: President
Edward N. Lewis, Massachusetts Agricultural college; Dr. Arthur W. Gilbert, Massachusetts Department of Agriculture; President Leon Wetherbee,
Middlesex County Farm bureau.

2:00 p. m.—Parade of floats, boys'
and girls' "4H" clubs.

2:15 p. m.—Athletic contests for everyone, young and old.

3:00 p. m.—Baseball game, married
men vs. single men.

The committee on arrangements for the Wayside Inn visitation and festivities includes Raymond L. Clapp, manager of the Middlesex County Farm bureau; Alister F. MacDonnell, tension service, and Louis W. Dean, a trustee of both organizations. They will be assisted by the entire extension service staffs and farm bureau staff employees, as well as the local town
directors of both organizations.

WILL STUDY STREET CONDITIONS HERE

The Lowell cleaner city committee,
composed of about 100 citizens, headed
by Peter F. Sullivan as chairman, today announced the employment of H. S. H. McCurdy of Manchester, N. H.,
for the purpose of making a study of Lowell street cleaning conditions.

"The expense of this study is being borne by private contributions," the announcement says. "His report will be made public."

Mr. McCurdy first came into the limelight here last week when it was announced from Manchester that he had accepted a position with the city highway department which he had held for about 18 months. Coupled with the announcement was the statement that he intended to enter private business
as an efficiency engineer in street work
and had been employed to come to Lowell at once. City officials dis-claimed any knowledge of him or any such arrangement. A few days later he was identified as having been invited
here by the cleaner city committee,
an offshoot of the planning board. Formal announcement of his employment
was made today.

UNDERTAKER DROPS DEAD
CLINTON, Aug. 12.—George W.
Marah, a Marlboro undertaker, dropped dead yesterday as he was removing
a body from a Clinton home.

Mr. Marah's firm continued their arrangements for the Clinton man's funeral, while Undertaker King of Clinton took charge of Mr. Marah's remains.

NURSES FINED FOR WEARING KNICKERS

HAMMOND, La., Aug. 12.—The newly ordained law of the county commissioners of Livingstone parish, prohibiting among other things the one-
piece bathing suits, kissing,
"petting" parties and the wearing of trousers by women, had
its first try-out yesterday, when
two nurses, claiming to hail from Mississippi, were arrested at Denham Springs charged with wearing knickers. They were taken before a justice of the peace, entered pleas of guilty
and paid fines of $5 each.

The justice let it be known
that the law in Livingstone parish is supreme and must be respected.

DAIL EIREANN MEETS

Free State Government to Present Bill Dealing With
Boundary Commission

DUBLIN, Aug. 12. (By the Associated Press.)—With the resumption today
of the Dail Eireann, the Free State government is expected to introduce a bill
dealing with the Irish boundary commission, similar to the legislation being sponsored in the house of commons by the British government. The bill makes no attempt to fetter the commission by limiting the authority in the matter of boundary charges.

Debate on the measure is expected to be prolonged and is certain to develop considerable opposition from the interest of the new republicans headed by Joseph McGrath, former minister of commerce.

MINOR CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

The second arrest in the police-style "Bucket of Blood," an alleged liquor rendezvous in Fayette street,
was made last night by Officers Clyde R. Aldrich and William E. Linton of the liquor squad, and in district court this morning, William E. Linton was arraigned on a complaint charging him with maintaining a liquor rendezvous. He
in $300 bonds until Sept. 4.

Anthony S. Buell of Billerica pleaded guilty to operating an automobile
without a license and was fined $20.
Joseph L. Rondeau, charged with operating a motor vehicle while he was under the influence of liquor, was continued until tomorrow.

James L. Ryan and John J. Dunlavy,
each charged with a similar offense and continued to next Monday and Tuesday, respectively.

A charge of operating while drunk,
preferred against Tony Sylla of Tyngs-boro, was dismissed for lack of evidence.

John Unick, charged with driving at an unreasonable rate of speed, was
continued to Aug. 19.

CONVENTION OF DANCING MASTERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Plans have been outlined before the annual convention of the International Association of Dancing Masters for the elimination of extreme forms of dancing.
Many of the delegates agreed that dancing was being carried to an extreme and that it is time to call a halt.

The association has forbidden the teaching of dancing by milt. The

SIX KILLED IN FIGHT AMONG MINERS

WILBURTON, Okla., Aug. 12.—Officials here were awaiting this morning
word from Hughes, a small mining center 15 miles away where last night,
according to meagre reports, six men
had been killed in a fight among miners at the Bull Hill coal mine. Two
midnight, but nothing could be learned,
since there was no telephone service to
the town.

Feeling has been more or less tense
in Latimer county since a group of miners raided a mine at Cambria three weeks ago and drove a number of non-
union men from their work.

Several men were charged with participation in the incident, and their hearing is scheduled to start here today.

GREAT INTEREST IN VOLLEY BALL LEAGUE

The Girls' Playground Volley Ball
league is now beginning the second half of a very successful season. With the South common aggregation leading for 1,000 and the North common players running a close second with only a few points to go the remainder of the season will witness some thrilling battles. The entire personnel of the league is filled with ambition from the first to the last-enders, so action is assured. The standing of the league is as follows:

South Common	Won	Lost
North Common	4	0
Pawtucket	4	1
Fayette	3	2
Lincoln	2	1
Morey	2	1
Moody	2	1
Washington	2	1
Vernum	2	1
Shedd	2	1

TO AID SHENANDOAH IN MANOEUVRES

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 12.—The fuel
ship Patoka with the dirigible Shenandoah moored here last night, and yesterday. It was the opinion aboard
the ship when she sailed that she was going to take some part in the week's maneuvers in connection with the Shenandoah, since at present her duty is exclusively in connection with the airship.

The deduction here since last night's announcement from Lakehurst is that the former tanker will take position
far at sea to serve in case of emergency but not to otherwise appear in the game.

SÃO PAULO REBELS ARE IN RETREAT

BUENOS AIRES, August 12.—São
Paulo rebels are retreating in the direction of Paraná, under the pressure of Brazilian federal forces, according
to official advices from Cunha, quoted
by the Santos correspondent of La Nación.

Continued arrests are being made at São Paulo of persons suspected of hav-

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 12.— Peter Payne, 32, of this city, is in a hospital with a slight chance of recovery as the result of being shot
through the neck this morning by Patrolman Arthur F. Depray. According to the policeman, he discovered Payne, with two other men, in an alleyway. As he approached the men, Payne made a motion as if to throw a stone, the policeman declared, whereupon he fired one shot from his revolver. The other two men escaped.

SHORTAGE LED TO SHOOTING

Bank Officials Refuse to Discuss Amount Involved
in Gilpatrick Case

Cashier Seriously Injured
and Probably Permanently
Blinded

PUTNAM, Conn., August 12.—Beyond the fact that there is a shortage in the accounts of the First National bank
of this city, whose cashier, G. Harold Gilpatrick, also state treasurer, is seriously injured as a result of a self-inflicted bullet wound and probably permanently blinded, nothing is officially known today as to the nature or extent of the financial troubles, which
are admitted to have led to the shooting. The bank directors, after a total conference of 11 hours yesterday, adjournd late last night without giving out any official statement.

From close friends of the state
shooting, he had revealed the fact that
family continued up to today to maintain complete silence as to the reason for the suicide attempt or the extent
or nature of the financial difficulties
which impelled the attempt at suicide.
Whether any statement could be expected from official sources today was
not made known.

Mr. Gilpatrick was reported to be about the same at the hospital today,
the only change, if any could be noted,
being a slight improvement, the hospital authorities stated.

ITEMS OF INTEREST IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—New bond
offerings today totalled slightly more than $30,000,000, the largest being the $22,000,000 issue of external three-year six per cent gold debenture notes
of the Industrial Bank of Japan at 95 1/2 and interest to yield 6.27 per cent. The only other larger issue
was the $5,000,000 six per cent gold
debenture bonds of the American Power & Light Co. at 94 1/2 to yield 6.35
per cent. The $75,000,000 offering of first mortgage five per cent bonds of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad is expected later in the week.

Stockholders of the Wickwe-ster Steel Corporation will meet in Worcester, Mass., Sept. 25 to act on a plan of reorganization necessitated by
a lack of sufficient working capital.

Recent heavy liquidation of Superior Oil is reported to have been for the account of the Atlantic Refining company which recently sold a $3-500,000 suit involving the sale of superior stock a few years ago.

Freight brokerage will be paid to bonafide brokers only and not to brokers maintained by shippers or comsignees after Aug. 15, the Inter-Coastal and Levant conference lines
notified shippers today. The other conference lines expect to adopt the same practice either this month or September. New bills of lading will be printed bearing the statement that brokerage is paid by the line to the broker with the strict understanding
that no part of it shall revert to the shipper or consignee. It was charged by the lines the former practice violated the shipping act of 1916 and involved an attempt by the shippers to obtain a rebate under the usual tariff
rates.

Subscription books for the $22,000,000
Industrial bank of Japan six per cent
notes were opened and immediately
closed as the issue was promptly
over-subscribed.

WIFE-BEATING SEEMS TO BE FAVORITE PASTIME HERE

Judged guilty of this offense and on his agreement to pay $20 weekly to his wife's support, he was given a sentence of five months in the house of correction, suspended for a year.

James Griffin of Billerica entered a plea of not guilty to a complaint charging him with drunkenness. His wife, however, informed the court that her husband went home last night, abused his child and threatened to
